

AMUNDSEN WILL RENEW ATTEMPT TO REACH THE POLE

Is Dissatisfied With the Results Attained, Says Copenhagen Paper, and is Determined to Try Again.

WILL PROFIT BY RECENT ATTEMPT

Explorer Says the Experience Gained Will Enable Him to Reach His Goal.—Other Members Agree With Him.

Copenhagen, June 19.—The Social Democrat published a report from Oslo, the Norwegian capital, stating that Capt. Roald Amundsen who returned to Spitzbergen yesterday after his sensational Arctic flight is dissatisfied with results attained and is "quite determined to renew the attempt to reach the pole".

All Relieve at Amundsen's Safe Return. New York, June 19.—Explorers and scientists rejoiced with laymen in all parts of the world today in the safe return of the Amundsen-Ellsworth north pole aerial expedition.

Donald B. McMillan, who sails tomorrow from Wiscasset, Maine, at the head of an all-American Arctic expedition, admitted a big burden had been lifted off his mind.

The Norwegian government which on June 4th sent two relief planes to Kings Bay, called congratulations to Amundsen.

It was in an attempt to fulfill the second great dream of his life that Amundsen organized the North Pole flight.

Many termed the proposed flight a foolhardy experiment. But it was remembered that in 1906 Amundsen bobbed safely up at Eagle Alaska, after being lost in the Arctic for three years.

Stockholm, Sweden, June 18.—A dispatch received here from Oslo, Norway, says the two airplanes in which Amundsen's expedition set out for the north pole on May 21 arrived in Spitzbergen Tuesday afternoon.

German seaplanes which were built in Pisa, Italy. When they took off from Kings Bay they had on board everything deemed necessary in the way of equipment and provisions.

London, June 18.—The daily Mail quotes Smith Peterson, secretary of the Norwegian club at the Norwegian legation in London, as saying that he had received information that which had not been confirmed that the entire crew of both the Amundsen planes were picked up by the Norwegian government patrol boat Heimdal, while it is attached to the expedition sent north by Norway, to endeavor to find Amundsen.

Mr. Peterson said the radio from the Heimdal reported "all safe and well."

He added, "There is no mention in our information as to whether Amundsen actually reached the pole. We are prepared to believe, however, that he did, and that the absence of an announcement of it in his message is only an indication of the explorer's modesty. Our chief reason for believing he accomplished his object is that when he reached Auckland, New Zealand, from the South pole, he did not mention his great achievement."

He further had full authority to use, store or sell the crude oil royalties, Judge Kennedy held, denying the government's contention that the secretary's action in dealing in commodities of the government was a "usurpation of congressional authority for appropriating money for such dealings."

The act of June 4, 1920, was a special act, and authorized the building of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Portsmouth and other places as designated under supplemental contracts between the government and the Doherty, the judge said.

Judge Kennedy struck from the record all exhibits and records of Falls bank accounts and financial dealings with the Continental Trading Company in sustaining a defense motion.

The government's bill of complaint was dismissed, every major contention in it having been denied in the decision.

Will Go to United States Supreme Court. Washington, June 19.—Harry F. Sinclair's victory in the government's attempt to cancel Teapot Dome Naval oil lease probably will result in throwing that case as well as the one decided against E. L. Doherty involving the Elk Hills reserve, into the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Doherty case, in which the government won, has already been appealed, and government counsel have given notice they will carry the Sinclair case to the higher courts in the event their efforts at Cheyenne result in failure.

Where Many Were Trapped While Asleep

PRESIDENT'S VACATION PASTIME PERPLEXING

Doesn't Fish, Swim, Golf or Ride Horseback—White House Crew Puzzled.

Washington, June 19.—President Coolidge has his White House crew guessing about his vacation. "What can he do but work?" is the question. Fishing does not appeal to him. He is not an enthusiastic swimmer. He once tried to learn to play golf but gave it up in disgust.

The riding of a live horse does not appeal to him, and the mechanical horse in the White House weighs a 1,000 pounds and is hard to move. The only thing in prospect is the 20 minutes' walk every morning.

The horses may be loaded on the Mayflower with the servants and attendants and taken to Swampscott. A decision will be reached about that tomorrow.

The President has no favorite pastime. No games interest him, except that he likes to watch an occasional game of baseball. In Vermont he helped to make hay, but at Swampscott he will have no opportunity for that.

The Mayflower loaded with cooks and servants and White House supplies will sail Saturday morning for Massachusetts, to put the summer home in shape for the coming of the President and Mrs. Coolidge. Rob Roy, the White House collier, and Paul Fry, the President's aide, go on the Mayflower.

All the secret service men attached to the White House will be transferred to Swampscott. A number of marines will go along to make the President safe from intrusion.

STURGIS TALKS OF HIS SON'S ESCAPE

(By the Associated Press)

Third Corps Commander Taking No Hand in Young Man's Troubles. Baltimore, June 17.—Robert B. Sturgis, twenty-two year old son of Major General Samuel D. Sturgis, third corps commander, will have to stay in jail at Charlotte until the general's son-in-law, Hugh A. Murrill, Jr., relents, it was said today by General Sturgis. The father said that he knew of no romance in which his son was reported to be entangled in Charlotte and that the only facts in his possession were that the younger Sturgis had passed worthless checks. It was on Murrill's complaint, said General Sturgis, that the boy was arrested.

General Sturgis said that settlement had been made of three hundred and forty-seven dollars to a concern from which the general's son took an automobile and drove it to Charlotte. Gen. Sturgis added, "I feel that my son has been guilty of a creditable escape but not guilty of larceny."

The management of the matter in Charlotte is entirely in the hands of my son-in-law. I know of no plans which my son, any young woman had to marry. He did have young women friends in Charlotte at those houses he was a visitor but there were no plans for an elopement of which I have been informed."

It is believed that the charges against young Sturgis will be dismissed but that his father wants him to stay in jail a few days to teach him a lesson.

The delegation from Denver, where next year's convention will be held, staged a snowball battle in Public Square. The demonstration was in support of Denver's slogan, "Sunshine and Snowballs, Denver, 1926."

The snow, which fell in Colorado two weeks ago, was brought here in a refrigerator car. Trucks hauled it to the square, where the Denver Rotary Club's delegation and girls in bathing suits snowballed each other and the crowd. The snowballing was preceded by a parade.

Cincinnati, June 19.—Unqualified approval of birth control and a challenge to the Swedenborgian Church to "take its stand" for the support of the practice were voiced in a paper read before the National Council of Ministers of the denomination here today.

The paper, presented by the Rev. Paul Dresser, Bath, Me., caused a sensation among the fifty ministers who form the body of the Swedenborgian Church. Conservatives denounced it bitterly as "unfaithful to the teachings of the church." Liberals hailed it as "marking a great forward step in the recognition by the church of progressive sociology."

COURT UPHOLDS THE TEAPOT DOME LEASE TO HARRY F. SINCLAIR

Decision Says That the Secretary of the Navy in Making Lease Acted Fully Within His Rights.

BILL OF COMPLAINT WAS DISMISSED

Every Major Contention of Government's Complaint Was Denied.—Act of June 4, 1920, Was a Special One.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 19.—The leasing of the Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair and his Mammoth Oil Company was upheld today, Federal Judge T. Blain Kennedy, who rendered his decision in the annulment suit by the government.

"The allegations of fraud in the bill have not been sustained," Judge Kennedy ruled.

The secretary of the navy was fully within his rights as acting as he did, having been authorized by act of June 4, 1922, "to develop, conserve, use and operate" the naval oil reserves, Judge Kennedy held.

He ruled that the phrase "in his discretion" embodied in the law, placed no restriction on the manner in which reserves were to be handled.

He further had full authority to use, store or sell the crude oil royalties, Judge Kennedy held, denying the government's contention that the secretary's action in dealing in commodities of the government was a "usurpation of congressional authority for appropriating money for such dealings."

The act of June 4, 1920, was a special act, and authorized the building of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Portsmouth and other places as designated under supplemental contracts between the government and the Doherty, the judge said.

Judge Kennedy struck from the record all exhibits and records of Falls bank accounts and financial dealings with the Continental Trading Company in sustaining a defense motion.

The government's bill of complaint was dismissed, every major contention in it having been denied in the decision.

Will Go to United States Supreme Court. Washington, June 19.—Harry F. Sinclair's victory in the government's attempt to cancel Teapot Dome Naval oil lease probably will result in throwing that case as well as the one decided against E. L. Doherty involving the Elk Hills reserve, into the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Doherty case, in which the government won, has already been appealed, and government counsel have given notice they will carry the Sinclair case to the higher courts in the event their efforts at Cheyenne result in failure.

Although the situation presents an apparent conflict of judicial opinion, it is pointed out here that some of the circumstances in the two cases differ and they will be fought out on their individual merits.

One portion, however, on which a sharp division was presented in the decision of the judges who heard the two cases was that involving the President's right to transfer the oil reserve to the Interior Department. In the Doherty case this right was denied, while today it was upheld at Cheyenne. This point is expected to furnish the basis for a long legal battle.

STATE RESTS IN THE SHEPHERD MURDER TRIAL AT CHICAGO

Continuation of Cross Examination of Faiman Delayed Several Hours While Attorneys Argued.

COURT DECIDES AGAINST DEFENSE

Shepherd Watched the Proceedings Intently in Effort to Hear Low Voiced Statements of Faiman.

Chicago, June 19.—The State rested its case in the Shepherd murder trial at 12:20 p. m. and the defense began to present its evidence.

Continuation of the cross examination of Charles C. Faiman was delayed several hours this morning while attorneys argued in the chambers.

The defense sought to have Judge Thomas J. Lynch permit questioning of Faiman about alleged "shady" deals at his school, the National University of Science, where he testified yesterday William D. Shepherd obtained three test tubes of typhoid bacilli and instructions how to use them in slaying William N. McClintock, his millionaire foster son.

The State contended the defense could not bring out any except "infamous" crimes against the witness.

The court finally decided against the defense and Faiman resumed the stand. Faiman was handed a transcript of his testimony at the hearing at which he was granted bail, and with another copy in his hand W. S. Stewart, chief of defense counsel, attempted to show where Faiman's accusation of Shepherd yesterday differed from his previous sworn statement.

Two of ten meetings with Shepherd described yesterday were not touched upon at the last hearing.

"I'm mixed up on it," said Faiman. "I know you are mixed up on it, that is why I am going over it in this manner," replied Stewart.

Shepherd watched the proceedings intently and strained forward in an effort to hear Faiman's low voiced statements.

TRAFFIC RESTORED ON SOUTHERN MAIN LINE

(By the Associated Press)

Nineteen Cars of Northbound Freight Tie Up Traffic in Deep Cut.—Broken Wheel Is Cause. Greensboro News.

A broken wheel on a tank car was the cause of the derailment of nineteen cars of Southern freight train No. 52 at Otter River, Virginia, causing delay to three of the crack flyers of the line. The accident occurred early yesterday morning in a deep cut, the very location of the accident causing unusual delay in clearing the tracks. No one was hurt. Southbound traffic was opened at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and northbound traffic went through unhindered at 9 o'clock last night.

No. 57, the Crescent limited, the best train operated by the Southern, through this territory, from New York to New Orleans, was exactly four hours and fifty minutes late on arrival here, while the Piedmont limited, No. 33, was six hours and 35 minutes behind its schedule. No. 39 was five hours and 25 minutes behind time. The Crescent limited was badly late for the second time since it was put on.

All three of these trains were derailed via Lynchburg to Burkeville over the Norfolk and Western, thence to Danville over the Southern, where the direct journey was resumed. Northbound traffic was delayed north of the scene of the derailment.
