The revolutionary officers occupied public buildings and the railway station. Press censorship has been established. A revolutionary proclamation has been issued.

A military communique says the revolutionary movement is now in control throughout Greece. The Greek fleet under Admiral Hadjiflorakis, former minister of marine, has joined the revolution.

Leaders of the revolution telegraphed the President of the Greek republic: "We proclaim an overthrow of the government. We will hold the cabinet responsible for any bloodshed."

DRUG MEN WILL END MEETING DURING DAY

Will Choose Officers and 1926 Convention City During Afternoon Session.

Blowing Rock, June 25.—Rapidly drawing to a close, the annual convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association today was marked by the entertainment of visitors preceding the business session during the afternoon, at which officers for the ensuing year were to be elected, and the 1926 convention city chosen.

The druggists of the state were entertained at a barbecue at Green Hill, after which elections were in order. The plan outlined this morning was to install the newly elected officers on the spot immediately after the election.

When the final session of the Association got underway, various reports were rendered and adopted.

There was considerable merriment among the delegates and their wives and sweethearts when the traveling man gave away samples of everything from headache powders to 5-pound boxes of candy.

Following the storm last night, ideal conditions prevailed today.

BABE RUTH IS AGAIN LAID UP FOR REPAIRS

Swollen Legs and Ankles Made It Necessary for Slugger to Take Week's Rest.

New York, June 25.—Babe Ruth, disabled for the first two months of the major league season by influenza and indigestion, is laid up again for repairs.

Unable to take his regular position in right field for the Yankees yesterday at Washington because of swollen legs and ankles, he went to the bench for a week's rest after warming up with the team before the game. Bobby Yeach took Ruth's place.

Mr. Higgins said he had permitted Ruth to resume play too soon after his discharge from the hospital. Ruth will travel with the team but will be a spectator until he fully recovers.

(By the Associated Press) New York, June 25.—The cotton market opened steady today at decline of five to 18 points from the previous day, and the market held fairly steady during the first hour within a few points of yesterday's quotations.

The relatively easy ruling of July in New Orleans had a rather unsettling effect on sentiment, but evidently there was a disposition to cover short contracts before the end-June crop and condition figures.

Cotton futures opened steady: July 23.35; October 23.58; December 23.50; January 23.00; March 23.80.

NEWSPAPER COMICS GOUD FOR NERVES, SAYS DOCTOR

Neurosthenics Urged to Look on the Funny Side of Life. Comic Strips Healthful.

New York, June 24.—Read the newspaper comic sections, cultivate a taste for good stories and look on the humorous side of life if you would be healthy, was the advice given today by Dr. Frederick W. Seward, neurologist of Goshen, N. Y., at the 81st annual convention of the American Institute of Homoeopathy.

"People whose ire is easily aroused, who fly into rage on the slightest provocation, are candidates for nerve exhaustion and brain fog," Dr. Seward said. "A calm, even temperament is an invaluable health asset."

"I advise neurosthenics to look for the funny side of life. The liberal sprinkling of our newspapers with comic strips is a decidedly beneficial thing from a health standpoint."

Personality is largely a matter of inheritance, Dr. Seward asserted. "We are largely under the influence of our inherited ductless glands," he said. "But what we are and what we become depends greatly upon ourselves. We owe much to the coming generations. The gains we make in health, strength and mental efficiency are a priceless heritage to succeeding generations."

BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET

Annual Convention of National Federation of Women's Clubs.

Portland, Me., June 25.—Advice received by the committees in charge of local arrangements indicate that at least 2000 delegates and members will attend the annual convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, to be held here next month, making it one of the largest national gatherings ever held in the State of Maine. Elaborate preparations are being made for the affair, and everything is to be done by the local clubs, as well as by the state and city officials, to make it an outstanding success.

A great international day when women from all principal parts of the world will be the guests of the business women of America will be one of the most impressive features of the program. Thursday of convention week is the day set for this demonstration of international friendliness between business women. Women of other lands will be guests of the federation for morning motor trips to the pleasure resorts of Maine immediately surrounding Portland, and in the afternoon will participate in the convention program, remaining over for the great banquet at the Exposition Building this evening.

When Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio supreme court will arrange a program of which international co-operation will be the keynote.

The International Day feature will be another step toward the foundation of the great international federation which is expected to materialize within a few years, as active organizations of business and professional women now exist in practically every country of any importance in the world.

Briefly outlined, the program for the convention includes a meeting of the executive board on Monday morning, July 13, and the opening convention session Monday afternoon. The gathering will be called to order by the national president, Adella Prichard, of Portland, Ore. The visitors will be welcomed by Mrs. Allan Prescott Stevens, member of the Portland city council. Responses for the delegates will be made by Miss Florence McKay of Seattle. The annual address of the president and the reports of other officers and standing committees will conclude the business of the initial session. In the evening a reception to the national officers will be held.

Tuesday evening will be given over to round-table discussions, and the vocational luncheon will be held Tuesday noon. Tuesday night will be set aside for the impressive ceremonies of character night, where charters will be issued to all the new clubs.

Further round tables will be held Wednesday morning, the birthday luncheon which represents the completion of the federation's sixth year, at noon, and a clam bake and sail Wednesday afternoon when delegates from many sections of the country will make their first acquaintance with Maine lobsters and clams.

Thursday will be international day, and Friday the election of officers will take place, and the Prank Fest at Old Orchard, one of the most famous beaches on the north Atlantic coast.

The Saturday and Sunday preceding the convention will be given over to formal luncheons for many sections of the convention body, and the Saturday following the Prank Fest will be featured by a trip to Poland Spring as guests of the Levistown, Me., club and to Quillcote-on-Saco, for many years the summer home of Kate Douglas Wiggin, where the scenes depicted in many of her stories will be depicted.

Speech of Judge W. P. Stacy Before the Judicial Conference

(By the Associated Press) Raleigh, June 25.—"The real strength and power of the courts must rest ultimately upon the faith and confidence of the people," Chief Justice Stacy presiding, told the Judicial Conference at its first sitting, in the Supreme Court room, today. The conference, composed of the judiciary, the attorney general and twenty attorneys appointed by the governor, was created by the 1923 General Assembly, at the request of Governor McLean.

Today's session began at 10 o'clock. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the members will attend a memorial to the late Judge Henry G. Connor, of the United States district court, to be held in the federal court room.

"The three departments of government in this country draw their life blood from the same source," continued the chief justice, in his address outlining the purpose of the conference. "They are separate and distinct, yet each serves as a check and auxiliary to the others."

"This body of men, composed of the justices of the Supreme Court, the judges of the Superior Courts, the attorney general and one practicing attorney from each of the judicial districts of the state is being called together, under authority of an act of the legislature, charging us with the duty of studying the organization, procedure of the judicial system of the state of North Carolina; and it is the expressed desire of the legislative department that we recommend such changes and reforms in the system and in the practice and procedure of the courts as our judgment may be useful and proper."

"The reason for the establishment of such a conference is obvious," continued the chief justice. "Ours is a government of laws and not of men. In this country the law is supreme and it must be obeyed. Rights created by law can legally be enforced only by an appeal to the law, and for every right there must be a remedy, or for every wrong there must be a complete redress."

"Under such a polity, the courts are necessarily charged with the task of adjudicating the rights of litigants, or judging and expounding the constitution and the laws which have been, or may be, made in pursuance thereof; and it is essential that this should be done speedily, so that the rights of the parties to such judgments be not unjustly delayed. In short, it is the end of all civil society. It has never been and never will be pursued by men until it is attained, or until liberty is lost in the pursuit. Our present task is a part of that pursuit. And the judiciary is particularly interested in the quest for truth."

But with the detailed machinery of the courts, controlled, almost exclusively by the legislative branch of the government, the trial judges have often found themselves bound by inflexible and, more or less, unrelenting statutes, enacted by piecemeal, and which sometimes make for delay, amounting in many instances to a denial of justice, rather than for reasonable dispatch of business. As a result, the courts have been charged with incompetency and lawyers with indifference, if not insincerity, regarding a condition which they did they not wholly create and which, up to the present, they have been unable to alter. Appreciating the fact that, if the bench and bar are to be held responsible for the results of court procedure, as they are in the lay mind, they should be allowed to suggest at least the necessary remedies to cure the defects, the legislature has provided for this conference, and its operation and assistance are not only invited but they are earnestly desired. What is wanted is not impatient criticism, of which much has been given in the past, but competent advice. The legislature is seeking to better and to render more efficient administration of justice in the state.

"The real strength and power of the courts must rest ultimately upon the faith and confidence of the people. The three departments of government in this country draw their life blood from the same source. They are separate and distinct, it is true, yet each serves as a check and auxiliary to the others. They are servants of a common master, working in a common business, striving for a common end. I think it may be safely said in this learned presence that no institution, ever yet devised, can sustain its authority over a free and thoughtful people unless it merit their respect and confidence. Hampered as we may be by the restrictions of certain statutes which at times seem to tangle justice in the net of form, still the responsibility is ours to merit and retain the respect of the people at large. No man can measure the debt of the country to its courts. On the other hand, who dares to measure the obligation and duty of the bench and bar to a patient and patriotic people in seeing to it that their faith and confidence are justified and sustained? This is not a duty which we owe to ourselves as much as it is a debt which the bench and bar owe the state and nation, over and above the obligations of citizenship, by virtue of their high calling, and by reason of their opportunity to look beyond the vision of battling races and an impoverished earth and catch a dreaming glimpse of peace, to borrow an expressive phrase from Mr. Justice Holmes. Faith, respect and confidence constitute the trinity upon which the enduring strength of the court must be planted and sustained."

Judge Stacy declared that "it is the work of the trial courts to settle litigation; it is the task of the appellate courts to settle the law; it is the business of all to move with reasonable dispatch, that justice may not be denied by delay. And I pause to make this pertinent observation about the administration of the courts: When parties resort to the judiciary for the settlement of their disputes, they are invoking a public agency, and they should not forget that rules of procedure are necessary and must be observed, in order that the courts may properly discharge their duties. And while the adjective law is not to be enforced harshly or oppressively, but rather in a spirit of liberality, to the end that justice may be administered in all cases, yet this does not mean that the courts should apply the rules of practice in such a manner as to favor the negligent and at the same time penalize the diligent party."

"Quite a number of recommendations have already been suggested for consideration, and others will readily occur as we progress with our deliberations. But as to whether they shall be taken up in the first instance by the whole conference or referred to committees to be considered by them and reported back, I leave to your decision. The question of organization and the procedure of the conference itself is the first matter for consideration. I now declare the conference open for the transaction of business."

STEEL AND CONCRETE IN ERECTING SMALL HOUSES

Offer Distinct Opportunities in Home Building, Says Expert.

Detroit, Mich., June 25.—Steel and concrete, generally associated with skyscrapers and office structures, have entered the realm of possibility as building materials in the construction of small homes and should be given consideration, said Henry R. Brigham, of Boston, speaking today before the National Association of Real Estate Boards in convention here.

"One of our national handicaps in new inventions is to get away from precedent," he declared. "Architects and builders cling to old designs and find it difficult to use unfamiliar designs required for new materials. Concrete and steel offer distinct opportunities in home building, both in design and attractiveness."

Declaring it is false economy to produce shoddy houses or houses of poorer construction than appears on the surface, unless for some recognized temporary use, Mr. Brigham said:

"It is far better to have the floor joists unnecessarily braced and unnecessarily large than to have the floors sag, the walls and ceilings crack and the doors jam after two or three years. The builder may have sold his house and obtained his profit, but the purchaser finds that his house is not so good as it looked and the reputation of its builder, and of builders in general, is injured. Although such injuries are so insidious that builders may not be conscious of the extent, nevertheless, each injury of this kind makes it harder to sell the next house at a profit."

SHEPHERD CASE TO GO TO THE JURY TONIGHT

Probable That Arguments Will Be Concluded During the Afternoon.

Chicago, June 25.—The Shepherd murder trial probably will be concluded with the session tonight, Judge T. J. Lynch and lawyers of both sides tentatively agreeing to such a recess session in chambers.

Stewart today continued his plea in behalf of Wm. D. Shepherd. Theing up the manner of the making of the will, Billie McClintock, foster son whom Shepherd is accused of having used typhoid germs to murder, the attorney cited that as a point in the defendant's favor.

"If he had been nursing the boy along to slay him, wouldn't he have gotten someone else to draw the will?" asked Stewart. "That is one of the points he is going to have to explain in the probate court in the will fight. He must face it. But if he had been trying to prepare an alibi, wouldn't he have had someone else to draw the will so as to cast suspicion on him?"

Stewart took up the testimony of the many witnesses in the trial and analyzed it from his viewpoint.

ELEVEN YEAR OLD BOY DIES ON OPERATING TABLE

Ray Safrin Has Heart Action Suddenly Stopped When Ether Takes Effect.

Ray Safrin, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Safrin, of Ashland Avenue, died this morning while undergoing an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids and a slight operation on his nose. Death resulted when the child's heart suddenly stopped functioning due to action of the ether.

The operation was partially finished when the condition of the boy became serious. Dr. B. M. King, who occupies offices with Dr. Rankin, was called in at once and though artificial respiration measures were resorted to for some time, nothing could be done to save his life.

Up to the time the ether had taken effect on his heart the boy had stood the operation very well, having bled but very little.

No arrangements as to funeral services have been made yet.

PROHIBITION CASES ARE CAUSE OF CONGESTION

Make Up Majority of Cases Tried in the Federal Courts in North Carolina.

(By the Associated Press) Charlotte, June 25.—Prohibition cases are largely responsible for the congestion in the federal courts as indicated by the volume of fines imposed in the western North Carolina district during the past twelve months, it was pointed out today.

Veterans of Kansas Neglect to Collect Bonus From State.

Topeka, Kans., June 25.—Scattered all over the globe are some 5,000 World War veterans entitled to share in the $2,500,000 remaining in the Kansas soldier bonus fund, but ignorant of the fact that the money belongs to them.

"Sadder still," remarked Leslie E. Edmonds, state bonus director, "those veterans, who probably need the money, will not be able to get a cent of it after June 30th. The state legislature has extended the time once, but will not do so again."

About 1,000 claims have been paid by the state since the legislature extended the time for considering applications. Most of these were paid to veterans in other states, or in foreign countries, who had just learned that Kansas was paying a bonus to men who were bona fide residents of the state at the time of enlistment or conscription.
