Owners All of the Time

With all the confusion, misunderstanding and general lack of information on the subject of tire buying, one might think Abraham Lincoln coined his famous phrase after an experience in tire buying. The truth of what he said as applied to tires is best summed up today in this statement of fact: MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND. Of course there is a real reason.

BUS PASSENGER TRAFFIC
JAMS CENTRAL TERMINAL

More Adequate Facilities Must Be Provided, Operators Say.—Plans Indefinite.
Charlotte Observer
All interurban traffic was handled from the union terminal at 500 West Trade street, Wednesday as required by the recent state regulation. The Dixie Motor Coach line operated its large busses from this terminal, although the company was compelled to retain its offices at 519 West Trade street because of a lack of office quarters at the central station.

It was generally agreed yesterday that something would have to be done to provide more adequate facilities. With a cessation of permission to call by hotels, the small waiting room was jammed yesterday morning. At the terminal it was said that quarters would have to be provided to accommodate at least 150 persons.

No definite move has yet been made as to a new union station. It was said J. H. Catter has offered to erect such a structure on West Trade street directly in front of the old Mint building of adequate proportions to handle the traffic and ample sheds for busses. The building proposed is a two-story structure to cost approximately $350,000 and the shed about $30,000. This offer is now before the bus line operators, but no decision has yet been reached, it was said.

One idea advanced yesterday was to repair and enlarge the present station. City commissioners allow the busses to receive and discharge passengers at the corner of North Tryon and Seventh streets to accommodate persons coming here for treatment at the Professional building, and hospitals on Seventh street.

PICTURE OF BEAUTY
DESCRIBES THE FILM

Lavish Sets and Atmosphere of Luxury in the Background.

"Let Not Man Put Asunder," the J. Stuart Blackton production adapted from Basil King's famous novel of the same name, will be the attraction at the Capitol Theatre today only. This is the most sensational, emotional exposition of the pitfalls of marriage and divorce that ever has been presented on the screen. The theme of love misguided provides one of the most gripping, human, heart-touching stories ever offered motion picture lovers. It is a ringing indictment of divorce and a stirring appeal to men and women who contemplate marriage, and those who are married, to abandon the follies of modern life wherein lies the peril of discontent.

It is a picture of beauty; the sets are lavish and there is an atmosphere of luxury that places the picture far in advance of any recently shown here. It breathes wealth and society, yet possesses the element of greatness in drama, human characters who live and suffer and are regenerated through the supreme sacrifice.

Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen, two of the greatest emotional players on the screen, have the leading roles and are supported by Leslie Austen, Helena D'Algy and an all-star cast of players.

Copies of Wheeler's History Received Here.

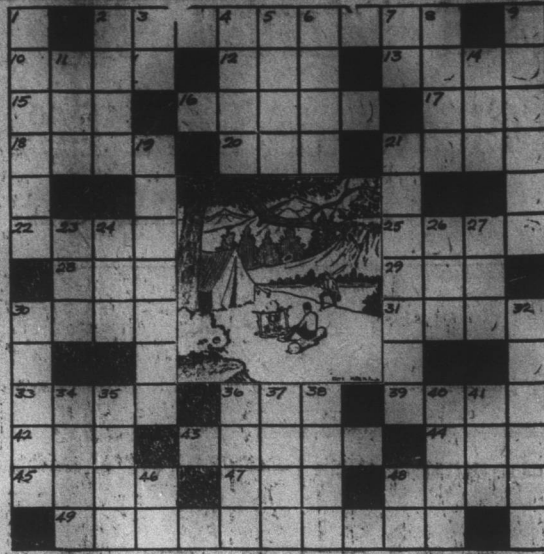

Several Concord persons recently have received copies of "Wheeler's History of North Carolina," the copies being part of the reprint edition recently prepared by Mrs. Magnolia McKay Shuford under the direction of the Daughters of the American Revolution in North Carolina.

The original book, written by the late John H. Wheeler, is recognized as one of the finest histories ever published on North Carolina and as there were few copies of the first edition left, the North Carolina Daughters of the American Revolution undertook to have another edition prepared, so the splendid history could have general circulation throughout the state.

Calmar county gets attention in the history as do all other counties which had been established at the time it was written. The history was written in 1851 and covers a period of about 300 years.

DURHAM PLANS BANQUET
FOR JAMES B. DUKE

Plans on Foot For One of the Most Elaborate Entertainments Ever Held in State.

Durham, July 2.—Within a short time a committee of Durham business men will call upon James B. Duke, at Charlotte, to present a formal invitation to a banquet which is being planned in his honor, the banquet to take place some time in October.

The committee, appointed by Mayor John M. Manning, recently received a letter from A. H. Sands, Jr., Mr. Duke's secretary, in answer to a telegram sent by the chairman, stating that Dr. Duke would receive the committee.

Mayor Manning's committee is composed of the following men: R. O. Everett, chairman; W. D. Carmichael, C. M. Carr, W. G. Frasier, D. W. Newson, J. K. Mason, and W. P. Budd.

The chairman states that in the event the invitation is accepted by the capitalist and philanthropist, plans will go forward immediately for one of the most elaborate banquets ever held in Durham.

In No Hurry to Buy.

What would the Broadway motor salesman do with this case, which is typical of the inertia that he would encounter almost every day in the Orient?

A friend of mine was trying to sell a motor car to an Indian in Delhi. The latter gave many excuses for not purchasing, but in reality he was merely maintaining an attitude of "watchful waiting." The price had been reduced already several times. The salesman assured him that rock bottom had been reached. If not, no further reduction would be made for at least a year. The Indian at once replied, with a gleam of triumph, as if he had tricked his adversary into disclosing secret intelligence: "Ah, in that case, I shall wait until then! There is plenty of time!"

Presenting Memorial Coins
To Confederate Veterans

PERHAPS the most impressive and touching ceremony in connection with the recent Encampment of Confederate Veterans at Dallas, Texas, was the presentation to their officers of the fifth, sixth and seventh memorial coins minted by Hollins N. Randolph, President of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental Association.

To the Veterans, these beautiful coins minted by the United States Government in their honor, have a double significance. Not only do they bear on their face the likenesses of their beloved leaders, Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, but by one of those strange coincidences, in which many are wont to see the hand of Providence, they were struck at the Mint on the birthday of Stonewall Jackson, January 21st.

Colonel Hollins N. Randolph, president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Association, presents the fifth coin minted of the Confederate Memorial currency, to General James A. Thomas, Commander-in-Chief of the United Confederate Veterans. The first of these coins was given to the president of the United States.

as would be possible to no other Memorial.
"Lee died five years after Appomattox, his citizenship never having been restored, virtually a prisoner in parole. I like to think that through these coins the National Government has sought to restore that citizenship and has recognized that the valor and those many virtues which shine forth so transcendently in the life of Lee, are national heritages, worthy to be handed down from generation to generation."

OUR ILLITERACY RATE
DEPLORED BY M'LEAN

"Almost Makes Us Hang Our Heads," Says Governor At Asheville Conference.

Asheville, July 2.—Addressed by Governor Angus W. M'Lean, Gov. Max Gardner, of Shelby, former lieutenant governor, and Dr. Carl C. Taylor, dean of the graduate school, North Carolina State college, in which the educational needs of North Carolina, particularly in regards to the education of adult illiterates, were stressed, featured the closing session tonight of the attendance and illiteracy conference of county superintendents of North Carolina at the Asheville summer school.

The large audience greeted Governor M'Lean with a rising ovation. The governor intoned in strong terms the work being done in Buncombe county by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morris, director of community schools, and director of the state conference. He declared Buncombe county is leading the state in this work, in reference to adult illiteracy is one of the outstanding feats of school work in North Carolina, the governor declared.

"There is nothing I am more interested in than education," he said, "for education is the only cure for our ills in North Carolina. I have been gratified at the progress of the educational work in North Carolina in the past few years. Every feature of education is of interest to me. The only thing we still have to regret in North Carolina is that this state is near the bottom in percentage of illiteracy. Just think of it! It almost makes us hang our heads in shame. I wish to see the time come when every county in the state gets results in adult illiteracy work as in this county."

"Nothing would give me a greater pleasure if during my administration the rate of illiteracy was tremendously lowered in North Carolina," the governor

In his address Mr. Gardner said in part: "The greatest problems in all government is the human problem and the civilization of every state is but a reflection of the attitude of the common wealth towards the solution of its intimate needs. One of the most stubborn human problems of this generation in North Carolina is illiteracy. With all of our boasted wealth and marvelous material achievements it is humiliating to admit that there are 104,844 native-white illiterates in North Carolina, that our state is 48th from the top in this distressing process."

"What are we going to do about it? Buncombe county has lighted the way. In the past five years more than 3,000 adults in this county, whose average age is 30 years have been lifted from the bondage of ignorance and the bitterness of darkness. Today there are only 0.4 per cent of the population of this county who are illiterate. Buncombe is but a herald of the awakened social consciousness of North Carolina. In the past eight years we have enacted more than 50 laws of economic and social import largely dealing with rural social welfare. The administrations of Bickett and Morrison did more for the relief of this problem than can be found in any hundred years of the state's history."

"We are rapidly coming to think in terms of the community and to realize that the state is but a great parish." In his address, Dr. Taylor spoke on "Universal Education." His two main conclusions were that: "So long as our common and secondary schools chiefly aim to prepare men and women to enter college they will miss fire in 75 per cent of the cases and people will be chiefly motivated and educated to other forces than those dealt with in the schools."

The way of right is forever the way of greatest safety, no matter what dangers seem to beset it.
