INCREASE IN CIGARETTE CONSUMPTION.

The Guaranty Survey, a publication of the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, gives some interesting figures on cigarette manufacture and consumption and these figures are of special interest to North Carolna because of the fact that this State produces more cigarettes than any other State in the Union, with Winston-Salem leading the list of cigarettes producing towns in the State. The Guaranty Survey points out that the manufacture of cigarettes causes the use of more tobacco than does the making of cigars, and also that with the exception of 1920, increase in cigarette consumption has been shown every year over the previous year since 1901.

Last year, according to these figures,

Last year, according to these figures, the indicated production of cigarettes was 71,000,000,000, not including the 10, 000,000,000 produced in bonded ware

North Carolina pays huge amounts each year to the federal government in taxes, and Winston-Salem leads the State for the simple reason that it is the largest cigarette town in the United States. Dispatches carried in State papers several days ago showed that the cigarette factories of the Twin-City pay, in tox, $1,000,000 every three days in the year.

cigarette inctories of the Twin-Aty 243, in tox, $1,000,000 every three days in the year.

The Charlotte News, in pointing out that "the growth of cigarette-saicking has been a phenomenon of the past several years," expresses the belief that women smokers have had much to do with the increase. The News admits that "the smoking habit was given a tremendous impetus during the war, but the chances are that the increasing number of women smokers has materially had its effect, also upon the question of production."

The Guaranty Survey gives an interesting insight into the growth of the cigar and cigarette business, which says that the sharp drop in cigar consumption after 1833 is noticeable, following the earlier steady growth. Not again until 1600 was the record for 1832 equalled; and in 1920, when production, already noted, was at the peak, the maximum of 2.205,000,000 was reached. The subsequent trend has been irregularly downward! The indicated consumption last year was 7.003,000,000 cigars.

Not until 1877 did cigarette consumption pass the 100,000,000 mark, but its expansion was very rapid for twenty years thereafter. Then followed four years of sharp decline, and ten years passed before the 1897 figure, 4,153,000,000, was again attained. The n-tual decline in consumption after 1897 was less than that indicated, owing to the reclassification of what came to be known as little cigars. In only one year since 1901 has a decline been recorded. The drop in consumption in the firscal year ended June 30, 1921, corresponds to the curtailed production shown above for the calendar year, 1920.

The truck replaces mule teams which had been used for many years. It is to be hoped that the change will prove so beneficial that additional trucks well be purchased for use in the residential sections of the city. It is to be regreteted that Concord has no systematic way of removing the trush that inevitably gathers in the yards of its residents. In many cases, or rather in a majority of

The Dangerous Part of a Dog.
Four-year-old Mary and her father, were taking a walk. As she went gayly hippity hopping down first Street a big dog, evidently attracted by her exuberance of spirits, ran out from a yard and began to rook about her. Mary, frightened, beat a retreat to her father's side and clung timidly to his hand.
"Why, Mary," said her father, "you aren't afraid of this nice dog! He is just friendly. See how he wags his tail."
Mary looked up into her father's face.
"But, father," she said earnestly, "that's not the end I'm afraid of." Shehans Put Their Private Cars Into Moperation in Effort to Sustain Franchise.

Then where the doore did they drop "from?" asked Lord John.

"A question which will, no dould, be eagerly discussed in every scientific accisety in Europ and America," the Professor answered his chest canormously and looked insolently around him at the world-"is that evolution has advinced under the poeuliar conditions of this content yaround him at the world-"is that evolution has advinced under the poeuliar conditions of this country up to the verticerast stage, the old types surviving and living on it company with the newer once. "I'll go and look after him," said I. I picked up my rife and strolled in the direction of the brook, leaving my frieds to lay out the scanty hreakfast. It may seem to you rash that even for so short a distance I should quit the shelter of our friendly thicket, but you will remember that we were many miles from Ape-town, that so far as we knew the creatures had not discovered our retreat, and that is any case with a rifle in my hands I had no fear of them. I had not yet learned their cunning or their strength.

I could hear the murmur of our brook somewhere ahead of me, but there was a tangle of trees and brushwood between me and it. I was making my way through this at a point which was just out of sight of my companions, when. under one of the trees, I noticed something red huddled among the husbes. As I approached it, I was shocked to see that it was the dead bedy of the missing indian. He
