Interesting Statement of Religious Faith

Rockingham Post-Dispatch. The sort of preaching done by Rev. George Stewart, of Evanston, Illinois, who has written a book called "Evolution a Witness to God," should help to prevent folks from getting too much wrought up over the antics now going forward under the guise of a "trial" at Dayton, Tennessee. As a matter of fact, evolution is nothing more nor less than a scientific hypothesis as to how God created man. The following statement, of religious faith by Mr. Stewart is interesting. "Evolution is not a thing. It is not a God. It is not a substitute for God. It never did anything. It will never create anything. It has not added a feather-weight of probability or reasonableness to materialism or atheism. There is nothing irreligious about evolution. It does not answer the 'who' or the 'what' of creation; it does however, throw light on the 'how' of creation. Truth, from whatever horizon it comes, must be welcomed, for truth in any way and every form is God, is a revelation of God, is a word of God."

Eight Hundred Per Cent Dividends. Reidsville Review. A Reidsville mathematical sharp has figured to his own satisfaction that hard surfaced roads pay 800 per cent dividends to motorists. Here is the way he calculates the profits: It has been ascertained that motor cars of average horsepower can be operated on hard surfaced or improved topsoil roads for 2.58 cents per mile less than on ordinary dirt roads. State tax of four cents per gallon on gasoline and State license tax will make a total of about thirty cents collected by the State on these items for each 100 miles an auto travels on improved roads. Saving $2.58 on a tax investment of thirty cents shows a dividend of about 800 per cent.

As the gasoline and license taxes collected by the State pay the interest and sinking fund on road construction bonds and for the upkeep of the roads this 800 per cent profit to motorists seems to be based on a sound calculation. No wonder that all motorists are enthusiastic for increased road expenditures by the state.

Salisbury, July 19.—The grounds of Catawba College today swarmed with the Reformed people of North Carolina. Thousands of people from Salisbury, Rowan county and the Reformed church were on the grounds for the day attending the missionary conference of the Reformed Church of the state. The large college chapel, seating 750 people, was filled to the limit at the chief service of the day at 11 o'clock. The annual conference sermon was preached by Rev. H. Nevil Kerst, D. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, of Canton, Ohio. Dr. Kerst, one of the leading preachers of the Reformed Church and pastor of the largest Reformed congregation, declared that the present unrest in theological circles is a sign that there is a thinking body within the church. Israel did not think, did not know. The religion of Israel was largely ceremony, often perfunctory. He drew a parallel between Israel of old and the church of today, here are too many so-called Christians today who do not put their minds to work for God—the God given intellect to be used for God. Dr. Kerst made a special appeal to the young people present at the conference in great language. "The appeal is to think God's thoughts after Him. Young people made in the image of God are to know the known God. Dr. Kerst is a firm believer that the present agitation and the present unrest is a sign that the thoughts of the people are coming forth out of the old forms and old habitations. Truth is eternal. The Bible is firm as the rock of ages. Dr. Kerst challenged the great congregation to take a more intelligent part in the worship of the church. A number of the local people gave a musical program at the afternoon service. The worship in sacred music was emphasized, and although it was hot the chapel was filled with people who had a mind to hear. Dr. J. C. Leonard, of Lexington, brought the message in a sermon that was an appeal to the Reformed Church to have compassion on the larger number of people who are in need of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock the study periods of the conference begin. For five days there will be four periods. The first period is devoted to the study of the Bible. Dr. F. W. WASHINGTON — Extraterritoriality!

Try saying it. It can be done, of course—by most people. But mighty few can say it "on high." A vast majority have to throttle down and feel their way. What I mean is: Can you come to "extraterritoriality" unexpectedly, in the middle of a sentence, and take it uninterruptedly and go right on, without a pause or a backward glance or a passing thought that you topped that enunciated hurdle by pretty good style? Well, I'll take the negative on all bets offered, and win by a wide margin in the long run.

To illustrate, here's the opening sentence in a letter from President Green of the American Federation of Labor to President Coolidge of the United States. See if you can read it rapidly and distinctly, clearly pronouncing every word, from start to finish, without a hitch. "On behalf of the American labor movement I wish to urge for your favorable consideration and speedy action that the United States take the initiative in calling an international conference to make plans to abolish extraterritoriality in China."

SEE there. You couldn't do it.

Until you come to "extraterritoriality" everything went okeh. Not that the first 35 words were all just little one-syllable affairs. But when you got to "extraterritoriality," though, you had to bring up—abruptly, too—and consciously grapple with that word.

SAYING "extraterritoriality" is a serious problem at the state department right now. Chinese troubles have been uppermost there for several weeks and "extraterritoriality's" their keynote. In many experts' opinion, so it has to be talked about half the time.

Some of the department's top, by constant effort and application, have got it down pretty pat. Some have trouble with it every time. A few can't say it at all. It's delayed business appreciably, if the efficiency bureau, which is deeply concerned in such matters, is to be believed. Delay is inefficient.

So the bureau asks, "Why not abandon the darn word? In future let's say 'extraterritorial rights.' You gotta hand it to that bureau. It does think up the brightest things.

CHURCH IS COMING OUT OF ITS OLD HABITATIONS

Reformed Church in Dayton, O., will lead the adults. Missionary G. R. Snyder will lead the young people. The second period is the important period of all the conference—the mission study hour. The interdenominational text books will be used. A third period is given over to group conferences which will study the practical work in the local congregation. The fourth period is a series of inspirational addresses. The chief feature of the program for Monday at 8 o'clock is an address by Dr. C. Banks McNairy, formerly superintendent of the Caswell Training school. Dr. McNairy has many friends and supporters in Rowan county, where he was a resident physician, and in the Reformed Church, in which he served as an elder during his residence in Lenoir. The conference is expecting one of the largest meetings in the whole conference when Dr. McNairy speaks. The college buildings are taxed to capacity. Dormitory rooms that were intended for two have four. The dining room was filled for the Sunday dinner. The aim is to take care of all who come, though handicapped for lack of room.

A Supper in the Woods.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch. If you want to have a real time one of these fine afternoons, put on an old sweater and get an outfit ready for a little hike in the woods and a hot steak in the open in the afternoon of one of these gorgeous sunsets. A toaster, a knife, tin cups and a coffee pot are the biggest part of the paraphernalia. Take steaks a half-inch thick. Don't have them too thick. Take a loaf of bread or rolls, some pickles, fruit, coffee and cream. Fasten the toaster to a long, thick branch and put the steaks in the toaster and over the hot coals of a wood fire. Place the steak between bread as soon as it is taken from the coals, season and eat. Sit around the fire a little while afterward, then go home early and you'll have such a night's sleep as you haven't enjoyed in a long time. Maybe you don't know the wonder of the air and sunset and the smell of burning wood. Maybe you don't know the wonder of an open fire in the night and millions of stars overhead. Maybe you thought you had to wait for that long vacation trip you have been planning in the future when you would be free to live in the open a while. This sort of time is waiting for you just out of town.
