

INDEPENDENCE THROUGH THRIFT ALWAYS A POSSIBILITY IN AMERICA

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

TREMENDOUS possibilities exist for increasing the earnings of the people of the United States through greater thrift and efficiency. While rapid strides are being made in these directions, there still remains a wide discrepancy between our material wealth and our individual incomes.

ing 53 per cent of the world's output and using 49 1/2 per cent of the world's consumption although we constitute but 6 per cent of the world's population. The point also is made that we are using 25 billion cubic feet of timber annually and regrowing only 6 billion cubic feet while in a survey of waste in industry Secretary Hoover found that in six major industries there was an average waste of 50 per cent in raw materials and man power employed or at the rate of 30 billion dollars annually.

On the other hand it is estimated that our 1922 income returns showed a net profit of a little over 5 per cent of the billion dollars worth of production in basic industries we are producing.

These figures, starting in their significance, are not given in the spirit of criticism, because it is everywhere apparent that we are making tremendous strides in thrift, but they show the limitations, possibilities, for the individual in this country. During illness or accident or similar misfortune, there is no reason why any man cannot acquire a position of financial independence in America, if he will adhere to the practices of ordinary thrift and industry.

The tent meeting held by Rev. S. L. McIntyre on West Depot street is progressing nicely, it is said, and large interest is being taken in it. Services are held at 2:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend. The stage is all set for the golf match at the Cabarrus Country Club this week. The two teams have been playing fine ball and the series this week is expected to bring out some of the best games of the present season in Charlotte. Capt. Sunday was one of the hottest days of the year in Concord. There was little breeze at any time during the day and the humidity made the day unusually hot. The hot weather of the past several days has been general throughout the state, judging by reports brought to Concord by persons who have visited other cities during the past week. Pittsburgh strengthened its hold on first place in the National League yesterday by defeating Chicago while Brooklyn was defeating New York and Cincinnati was winning from St. Louis. In the American League Chicago defeated Detroit, Washington won two games from New York and Cleveland defeated St. Louis. Dr. R. L. Paterson, Lutheran minister who was born and reared at China Grove and who is now teaching in a theological seminary in the west, called on a number of friends in Concord yesterday. He plans to spend part of the summer at Mt. Pleasant. Dr. Paterson was formerly pastor of Lutheran churches in Charlotte and other North Carolina cities. Many expressions of regret were heard when announcement of William Jennings Bryan's death was made. "The greatest man in the country is dead," one man was heard to remark, while others expressed the opinion that "one of the greatest men in the history of the country" passed with the death of the Commoner. The Tribune first learned of his death in a dispatch from the Associated Press. Miss Elizabeth Alexander Died in Charlotte Sunday. Elizabeth O. Alexander, age eighty-five, died Sunday morning at 803 North Davidson street in Charlotte at 10 o'clock after an illness of several years duration. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Bayless Memorial Church and burial was made at Oakwood cemetery. The pastor was assisted by Rev. T. F. Higgins, of Forest Hill Church. Miss Alexander was the daughter of Muse Alexander. She was born in Mecklenburg county October 5, 1839. She resided in Concord practically all her life with the exception of the last eight months when she was sent to Charlotte. It is uncertain at what date the game of golf was introduced into Scotland but in 1457 its popularity had become so great as to interfere with the more important pursuit of archery.

CONTRACT LET FOR BUILDINGS AT DUKE

Fuller Company to Erect Women's College on Present Site of Institution. Durham, July 25.—Contract for the erection of eleven new buildings, at a cost of four million dollars, has been let to the George A. Fuller Company, of Washington, D. C., according to an announcement made from the office of Horace Trumbauer, Philadelphia architect, received here today. Contracts were signed between J. B. Duke and the Fuller concern. Construction is to start at once and some 18 months will be required to complete the project, it was stated in the message received. The contract calls for the erection of five dormitories, an auditorium with seating capacity of 2,500, science buildings, union building, faculty apartment house, student union building with club and restaurant accommodations, library to accommodate 150,000 volumes, and class room building. All of them will be of colonial brick and limestone, and of colonial architecture similar to the Independence and Congress Halls in Philadelphia. The buildings will be grouped along a large rectangle which will contain a beautiful pool. Women's College to Be First Constructed. Philadelphia, July 25.—The Colonial Architecture of Independence and Congress Halls is to be the style of eleven new buildings for the Women's College of Duke University, at Durham, to be erected at a cost of four million dollars by the George A. Fuller Company. This was the announcement today of Horace Trumbauer, architect for the Duke foundation, established by a forty million dollar gift from James B. Duke, of New York, for the former Trinity University which now takes the name of his family. Contracts were signed in his office between Mr. Duke and the Fuller concern. The new buildings, which include five dormitories, an auditorium to seat 2,500, a science building, a union building, a faculty apartment house, a student union with club and restaurant accommodations, a new library to accommodate 150,000 volumes, and a classroom building, are to be of colonial brick and limestone. They will be grouped along a large rectangle which will contain a beautiful pool. Mr. Trumbauer, who designed the Curtis building and the Public Ledger Building, is one of America's foremost architects. Construction is to start at once, and is expected to take some eighteen months. The new buildings will be on a 114 acre tract at present occupied by the University. Four of the structures now in use will be preserved in the arrangement. Coincident with these plans, it was learned that the men's college of Duke is to be located on a 5,000 acre tract a mile and a half south of present location on a beautiful natural site where woody eminences, lakes and streams predominate. A statue of Washington Duke, father of the tobacco magnate, and an original benefactor of the institution, is fitted harmoniously into the landscape scheme. The plans for the school at present call for accommodating one thousand students. One of the features of the plans is a theater to be included in the auditorium. The interior will be plain and without elaborate decorations, it was said. The dormitories are to be three stories in height and the other buildings two story structures. Other edifices now contained in the campus, but separated from the rectangle, which are to be retained, include and gymnasium and several recitation halls and dormitories.
