

Many New Ideas in Better Buicks

Standard Six, five passenger two-door sedan

Greater Power, More Protection to Working Parts Included; Prices Lower

Buick again demonstrated the marvelous resources and abilities of the automotive industry when it introduced the present Better Buick. Embraced in this latest Buick offering are additional power and strength, the newest engineering achievements designed to give even longer motor car life, the maximum in comfort and safety, besides new beauty and refinements of design and finish representing the latest skill in body craftsmanship. And in face of these material and costly improvements lower prices are announced throughout the entire line of Standard and Master Sixes.

The announcement and the showing of the better Buicks silenced the rumors that Buick would abandon the valve-in-head for another type engine which would permit of cheaper construction. The same principles that were inaugurated by Buick 21 years ago and which have made it the leader in the industry have been adhered to throughout.

The mechanical improvements introduced would have been considered impossibilities only a year ago. They represent the work of Buick research and engineering staffs constantly striving for betterments.

The new prices likewise represent achievements of the engineering, production and business departments of the Buick organization, and are in no small measure due to the phenomenal approval of Buicks by the public. This latter factor has resulted in continuously increasing sales with the attendant possibilities of economies in purchasing and production.

The complete line includes 16 models, six in the Standard Six and ten in the Master Six class. In all cases the distinctive Buick lines have been continued, with refinements such as the rounding of radiator lines and the addition of streamline mouldings. All are finished in new and beautiful tones of durable Duco. Some of the models have Duo-tone Duco finish in distinctive combinations. All closed bodies are by Fisher and are upholstered in quality plush.

Buick has always been noted for its sealed chassis, which prevents dirt or water entering any of the moving parts. Now it has added an air cleaner, oil filter and gasoline strainer. These, combined with the standard Buick construction, practically eliminate the possibility of any foreign substance entering the engine or moving parts of the chassis and, consequently, minimize service requirements and add to the life of the car.

Because these three new units have no moving parts, there is nothing to get out of adjustment. They require no power—in fact are thoroughly automatic, and require only occasional cleaning to remove the dirt and grime gathered from the air, fuel and oil.

The above illustration shows the Standard Six five-passenger, two-door sedan. The price of this model, $1,195, is representative of the increased values included in the entire line of Better Buicks.

TODAY'S EVENTS.

Saturday, August 1, 1925.

Today is the Swiss national independence day.

Colorado today celebrates the beginning of her 50th year of Statehood.

Eleven years ago today the great war began in earnest with the German invasion of France.

The General Conference of Christian Workers, founded by the late Dwight L. Moody, will begin its annual session today at East Northfield, Mass.

One hundred and ten years of peace between the United States and Canada, since the ratification of the treaty ending the War of 1812, will be celebrated at Belleville, Ontario, with a gala week of sports and festivities scheduled to begin today.

No Quake in Tunnel.

When the earthquake occurred at Santa Barbara, Cal., workmen were busy on the Montecito water tunnel 2000 feet horizontally in the depths of the mountains near the city. They were about 3000 feet below the summit of the range. These workmen testify that they did not feel the big earthquake at all; in fact they were not conscious of it at the time and knew nothing about it until they came out. This upsets, to some extent at least, many of the theories of quakes; for many scientists in explaining the shocks say they were due to displacement deep down in the earth. This notion seems to be contradicted by the fact that the workmen did not feel the quake.

The good die young, so you never know whether they would have remained good.

HUGE CROWD PAYS TRIBUTE TO BRYAN

Rain Falls in Torrents As Cortege Goes to Arlington National Cemetery.

Washington, July 31.—The very heavens wept as funeral services were conducted this afternoon over all that is mortal of William Jennings Bryan. The elements themselves appeared to be in sorrow for those who grieved that the Commoner had been called hence, but despite the rain, the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, right in the center of business commercial life of Washington, was filled to its capacity, every seat occupied and many standing back of the pews in the body of the church and in the gallery.

At the conclusion of the services, just as the funeral cortege took up the route to Arlington National Cemetery, the rain, which began during the night, poured down in a torrent, but this did not interfere one whit with the tribute of the people to the leader whom they loved in life, and whom they honored in death. Beneath umbrellas in open street fronts, in the windows, great numbers of people were to be seen as the hearse and the following automobiles passed on to the city of the dead. It was the funeral cortege of a beloved leader until it reached the very gates of Arlington; when it became military, but military softened to the uttermost.

Military Escort.

Under military escort by desire of the widow of Mr. Bryan even less than would ordinarily be accorded a colonel of the army, for William Jennings Bryan was a colonel, holding that position at the head of a regiment he had organized in the Spanish-American War, the funeral procession passed to the knoll on which stands the Admiral Dewey mausoleum, and there the last words of the officiating minister at the church services were said, "Taps" was sounded by military bugler and the body of the beloved dead consigned to Mother Earth. There in peace lies the man whose life had been stormy in many ways, about his resting place banked huge stands of floral remembrances that came from great numbers of his countless hosts of friends.

At a late hour last night there were changes made in the list of honorary pall-bearers because of the arrival here of so many friends and intimates of Mr. Bryan who came unexpectedly. Former Secretary of the Navy Daniels, first announced as to have been one of the honorary pall-bearers, was made one of the active pall-bearers, this group of men closely associated with Mr. Bryan in his long career, two from Illinois, the state of Mr. Bryan's birth; one from Florida, the home of the last days of Mr. Bryan; one from Lincoln, the Nebraska city where he had so long lived; one from Kentucky, who represented close friendship; one from North Carolina who for over 30 years had been a close friend both personally and politically, and who held place with him in the Wilson cabinet.

Attend Services.

Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, accompanied by her brother, William J. Bryan, Jr., reached the city this morning after the long trip from Los Angeles to be present at the last sad obsequies of their father. Mrs. Hargreaves spent some time with her mother and sister, and went with the family to the church after it was closed to the public to take the last sad look at the still face of their loved one. During the morning Mrs. Hargreaves recalled in conversation with the News and Observer correspondent the time she had made Raleigh her home, said she had a deep love for the city, and that her present purpose was when the time arrived to send her oldest daughter to Raleigh to enter St. Mary's school, that it is an institution which appeals to her as a place in which to have her daughter educated.

Need of a Home For Wayward Girls.

High Point Enterprise. No worthier undertaking could be started in High Point than plans for the erection and maintenance of a detention home for wayward girls. That such a place is needed here there is no doubt, and it will not be many years before the mistake in not providing for such a place will be bitterly realized.

Recently a 14-year-old girl was kept in the local jail for an entire week. She was locked up as a hardened criminal, with the same environment as is the lot of the bootlegger and thief. That this girl was wayward there was no doubt, but in her formative years there is still a chance of guiding her into the better paths of life. But with no other place but the jail to keep her there is slight chance that she could be given a more wholesome outlook on life.

Boys and girls in their teens, even though they have done wrong, cannot be regarded as human wreckage. Proper environment, supervision, and correction will do what the cold, bare walls of a cell can never do. Society is now more complex than ever before, and each unit of society has an influence on the others. It is worth while to salvage misguided young lives in the beginning and thereby avoid the almost impossible task of reclaiming adults who have drifted in lives of crime and vice.

Employment Endurance Bill Passed.

London, July 31.—The employment endurance bill was passed by the House of Commons today after a labor motion to reject it was defeated by a vote of 203 to 98. The measure was one of the most important projects announced in the recent budget presented to Parliament by Chancellor Churchill.

The woman who entertains well---

THERE'S something indescribably fine about the woman who entertains well. From the cheery appearance of her home to the service she so deftly affords—everything is so natural—yet so charmingly different.

Such splendid hostesses, once very rare and belonging only to the idle classes, are now to be found everywhere. They grace homes in every walk of life—making them happier through the many friends they attract.

Newspaper advertisements keep these women ahead of the commonplace. Newspaper advertisements tell of the newest and most delightful things. Newspaper advertisements announce new customs and practices. They tell what the world approves as correct.

The woman who entertains well must read the newspaper advertisements. Not only to keep pace with progress—but to learn how to do so on a limited purse. For newspaper advertisements are more than harbingers of style—they are announcements of economies that may be practiced safely.

Read the newspaper advertisements—to know what is new, what is correct—and what is economical
