Children,
At the advanced age of 100 years, Mrs. Honeycutt can still get around the house and sees well enough to sew some, not even requiring the use of glasses. Up to three years ago, she was very spry, considering her age. At this time she had an accident which has since left her very lame.

sew some, not even requiring the use of glasses. Up to three years ago, she was very spry, considering her age. At this time she had an accident which has since left her very lame.

She was in the back yard of her daughter's home when "of a sudden" said, "like the Lord lifted me off the ground and then let me drop. When I woke up, my hip was hart. For a long time I couldn't walk at all and now I have to use my chair to get around the house." She referred by this to her method of circumlocution which was of putting her hands on the arms of the chair and then pushing it forward while leaning on it.

In the Civil War, four of her brothers went off to the battle front. None of them was killed although one became sick while abroad and died on board ship bound for this country. Her father during the conflict, kept his farm running at full tilt and, according to Mrs. Honeycutt, fed all the needy in the surrounding country. So many of the men were gone that there was difficulty in getting the effeks plowed and planted. Her father, with the assistance of his daughters, raised grain in abundance and when the neighbors came for food, her fundantly, said Mrs. Honeycutt. "As I was the oldest, I would tell the rest of the family to be smart, behave themselves, keep out of bad company and trust in the Lord." One brother and one sister of the original twelve are still living in Union County.

Mrs. Honeycutt is very religious. She declares that during the past fifty years, she has been working for fifting at the square does not mean than the significant that a change in traffic but signifies that a change in traffic to to be made, police fifting at the square does not mean than the neighbors came for food, hereful to the fifting the past of the family to be smart, behave themselves, keep out of bad company and trust in the Lord." healthy, said Mrs. Honeycutt. "As I was the oldest, I would tell the rest of the family to be smart, behave themselves, keep out of bad company and trust in the Lord." One brother and one sister of the original twelve are still living in Union County.

Mrs. Honeycutt is very religious. She declares that during the past fifty years, she has been working for a higher place—Heaven. She believes, she says, that it will be a haprier place than the earth. Although she has not been able to go to church since her hip was injured, on several coensions she has had the preacher come to her home where services were held. Last year the women of the First Baptist Church took her a cake and other gifts. They plannel to make her a similar visit this year. "I can mind things that happened to make her a similar visit this year." I can mind things that happened to make her a similar visit this year. "I can mind things that happened fate." She said in the course of the conversation. She then spoke of her hardships: "Sometimes I have had hard times and sometimes easy. All I ask is that the Lord give me bread to keep life, anyway."

The daughter, Mrs. Morgan, has only one son at home now. Her hus-

The daughter, Mrs. Morgan, has onnember as far back as the Civil War-but her memory goes even further back, to the time when the soldiers returned from fighting in the Mexican War. She can remember the time when they returned and stopped at the spring where she was getting water and asked her for some. Toward the last of the converse ion, the old lady seemed to turn to a nore serious mood, realizing, perhaps, hat she was growing old. She spoke of the fact that she must soon pass wer and that when she did she honed ver and that when she did she ha to meet the Lord and hoped to meet her old friends ago. "By and by," she concluded, "I hope to meet my and sisters. I know they are there."

She dropped her head slightly as though pondering on this and then in a moment looked up and smiled, changing the conversation to other things.

Street Home on Magnolia Street.—Hurt Hip When "The Lord Lifted Me Up."

Wis. Martha Honeycutt is today celebrating her 100th birthday anniversary.

Heg life, which has been one with numerous hardships, commenced in the year John Quincy Adams was inaugurated as sixth President of the United States.

She was the oldest girl in a family of twelve children and, from earliest childhood, had to go to the cotton fields to, help in the work there. Because of the fact that she was needed in the fields by her father, she had only one week of schooling.

When almost grown, her mother died and she had to take the helm in the household management. Shortty after the Civil War she married Lew is Griffin and by this marriage was born her only child. He dided soon after the birth of the daughter, his death being caused by ill health resulting from exposure in the war. She married again but there were no children.

At the advanced age of 100 years, Mrs. Honeycutt can still get around the house and sees well enough to sew some, not even requiring the use of glasses. Up to three years ago, she

The daughter, Mrs. Morgan, has only one son at home now. Her husband left her over 15 years ago. She had seven children and they in turn have 18 children which makes Mrs. Honeycutt the great-grandmother of eighteen.

Coffee drinkers may take heart when they are told that they are ruining their health. Mrs. Honeycutt tays that she always takes a cup of this beverage at breakfast and that it does not make her nervous.

Not only does Mrs. Honeycutt remember as far back as the Civil Warbut her memory goes even further back, to the time when the soldiers returned from fighting in the Mexican Check up on your balloon tire pressures-you may find that you have been riding on "highpressure balloons" and losing the advantages of true low air pressure.

THE whole purpose of low pressure cushioning is defeated if your balloon tires are pumped up too hard.

Of course, it may be that the kind of balloons you are using must be run hard in order to protect the tires themselves.

If you find this is true, you will be glad to know the facts about U. S. Royal Balloons.

These tires provide all the comfort that balloon tires are intended to give, and yet you need have no fear about the life of the tires when run at proper cushioning pressure.

U.S. Royal Balloons are built to be run at true low air pressures.

They have the new flat "Low-Pressure Tread."

This tread has far greater area of road contact than a round tread, and distributes the weight evenly over the entire tread surface.

That is why U. S. Royal Balloons wear slowly, venly and gracefully.

They have the further advantage of Latextreated Web Cord construction-a U.S. Rubber Company invention that gives the ideal combination of strength and flexibility essential to real balloon cushioning.

Ride on U. S. Royal Balloons and you will know what a world of comfort genuine low pressure can give.
