MOUNTAIN COUNTIES STILL SUFFERING FROM DROUGHT

Western Area Badly Handicapped by Lack of Moisture. Hail in Other Places Damage.

The weekly survey of weather and crop conditions, for the period ending Tuesday night, emphasizes that the western tier of counties is still suffering from the longest drought on record. Crops and gardens have greatly deteriorated, and pastures no longer are providing food for cattle.

Another interesting feature of the report is that Orange, Chatham, Franklin and Nash counties had somewhat severe storms during the week, hail doing considerable damage in some areas. The survey follows:

"Rains occurred during the week in nearly all of the central and eastern counties, with some damage by strong winds, mainly from Orange and Chatham counties to Franklin and Nash, also, damage by hail in some small areas.

"The mountain district is still without relief from the longest drought of record, where crops show further deterioration, water is the lowest in many years, meadows dried up and pasture stock being fed in some sections. Reports continue favorable in the coastal plain regarding effect of weather upon corn, tobacco, peanuts, sweet potatoes, truck and minor crops, and fair to good advance is reported over the Piedmont section.

"On the whole, cotton made generally satisfactory advance and bolls are beginning to open in the southern section, but considerable shedding is taking place over large areas and weevil damage is increasing, especially on the top corn. Tobacco is mostly housed in the eastern section. Pulling fodder is in progress, and fall plowing is under way in some central sections."

Women candidates may now compete in examinations which select recruits for the highest branches of the British Civil Service. Women have long been admitted to the minor branches of the civil service. Only the new ruling means securing positions in the first division of the service, but the new ruling means securing positions in the first division of the service, and will mean not only permanent careers, which marriage need not end, but access to the highest positions.

BELIEVE JOHN JAMISON, OF CHARLOTTE, SUICIDE

Prominent Young Man Reported Dead in Virginia.—May Have Hanged Himself.

Charlotte, Aug. 20.—Charlotte relatives and friends of John M. Jamison, 26, prominently known young business man, tonight were without detailed information as to his death last night or early this morning near Orange, Va. A message received here this afternoon by John Fox, an official of the American Trust Company and a friend of Jamison, from Commonwealth Attorney A. S. Robinson, of Orange, Va., said that Jamison was found hanging from the limb of a tree by the side of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad a short distance from Orange this morning.

A message received by the Charlotte police earlier in the day said that Jamison was found hanging in his room at a Rapidan, Va., hotel this morning.

Mr. Fox said tonight that Mr. Robinson had been specific and definite in his message that the dead body of Jamison was found swinging from the limb of a tree near Orange and local people were invited to accept the commonwealth attorney's message as the straight of the case tonight.

Mr. Fox asked Mr. Robinson for a more detailed report but late tonight this information had not been received and Mr. Fox said that he did not expect it until tomorrow morning.

According to Mr. Robinson's message Mr. Jamison was supposed to have jumped from a C. and O. passenger train just out of Orange, Va., and committed suicide by hanging himself. The message said that Jamison had been seen on the train by a traveling man and that within a few minutes he was missing.

The body was identified as that of Jamison by Rev. George Mauze, who knew the youth at Davidson College, it was reported by Mr. Robinson.

Friends of the young man were at a loss to understand the motive for the supposed suicide, although it was reported that Jamison had been worried for some time over financial matters.

WRONG LEG CHAINED TO PRISONER'S COUCH

Next Morning the Limb and the Shackles Only Were Found.

Winston-Salem, Aug. 20.—This week T. H. Ward, a white man, and a woman of questionable character were arrested at a local hotel for alleged immorality—trying to palm themselves off as husband and wife when investigation revealed that they were not. Both parties were given stiff fines in the municipal court. The woman managed to pay her assessment, but the man had to take a term on the roads. He was sent to one of the county convict camps, but he remained only a short time. The first night, so the story goes one of the guards chained one leg of the prisoner to his couch. Next morning the convict was missing and to the astonishment of all the guards they found the chain and a wooden leg as the only reminder that a prisoner had once been there. The guard contends that he had no idea the man had only one good limb when he chained him. The real puzzle to those around the camp, convicts included, is how the prisoner managed to get away without being detected.

"What makes Peck look so worried?" "He's been contesting his wife's will." "I didn't know his wife was dead." "That's just it—she isn't."

Faking Feats of Strength

Probably in no branch of athletics are there so many possibilities for cheating and deception as in weight-lifting. The people always have been fooled in this particular, most of them are being deceived today, and as a whole they never will wake up. The reason is that the showmen are too clever for their audiences. This illustration taken from "Muscle Builder" for September, a Macfadden Publication, shows Maria Farra, a strong woman lifting an elephant by means of cleverly concealed pulleys.
