Of Course She Knew.

A lady in a southern town was ap-ached by her colored maid.

"Well, Jenny?" she asked, seeing that something was in the air.

"Please, Mis' Mary, might I have the afternoon off three weeks from Wednesday?" Then noticing an un-ended look on her mistress' face, she added, "I want to go to my uncle's funeral."

"Goodness me," answered the lady.

"Your fiance's funeral!" Why, you don't even know that he's going to die, let alone the date of his funeral. That is something there can't any of us be sure about—when we are going to die.

"Yes'm," said the girl doubtfully and then with triumphant note in her voice, "Ise 'sure bout him, Mis'

'cos he goin' to be hung."

A Supreme Court Justice in Brooklyn, refused to approve a certificate of incorporation for the gressive Society on the ground that the name was un-American.

It is a good plan to let everyone air his views. But for some views airing is not enough; fumigation would be better.

Play at Mt. Pleasant.

A play, "Am I Intruding?" is to be presented at the Mt. Pleasant Auditorium Saturday night at 8 o'clock by a cast comprised of the most talented of the local characters. It is a mystery play in a comic vein and is one that should furnish amusement to the spectators from start to finish:

The cast is as follows:

Mrs. Hastings, the housekeeper—

Mary Lower.

Blair Hoover, the adventurer—J. H.

McDaniel.

Ernest Rathburn, Jane's secretary

—Tempe Ritchie.

Marjory Vare, the elder daughter—

Mildred Barrister.

Dickie Waldron, a romanticist—L.

W. Patterson.

Mona, the maid—Salome Shirey.

Horace Vare, the father—Prof. Roy

Webster.

Violet Vare, the younger daughter—

Mable McAllister.

Peter, devoted to Vi—Brown Mc

Allister.

Dora, a friend of Vi's—Helen Seaford.

Jane, Vare's niece—Laura Helling.

Glen Parker, baritone soloist of Salisbury, will render several selections between acts.

MARKET HERE ENTERED DURING THE NIGHT

Market Operated by H. A. Graeber Visited by Thieves Who Got Nothing.

Thieves during the night entered the Concord Market, owned and operated by H. A. Graeber, but they got nothing for their efforts.

Entrance to the market was made through a front door, where the screen was cut in the upper part of the door.

A cash drawer was smashed open but Mr. Graeber had left no money in it.

A desk was ransacked and papers scattered about but like the cash drawer, it was empty so far as money was concerned.

Mr. Graeber does not close the wooden doors at the front of the market, leaving them open so plenty of air can reach the interior. Only a light wire was used on the door and this was cut by the intruders.

There was plenty of meat in the market but apparently the thieves were after money only.
