

THE DEBT MISSION PERSONNEL IS NOT KNOWN IN FRANCE

Briand and Caillaux Have Failed to Agree So Far and Matter Has Been Postponed.

CAILLAUX SURE TO HEAD PARTY

It Is Planned For Him to Come In Advance of the Mission and Stay in This Country Only Few Days.

Paris, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Finance Minister Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand have failed to agree concerning the composition of the French debt mission to Washington and the council of ministers again today postponed final decision in the matter.

Mr. Caillaux and Briand will hold private conferences to decide the percentages of political personages and financiers to be included in the mission and will report the next cabinet meeting.

It is virtually certain Mr. Caillaux will go to Washington with one minister. It is expected will remain in American capital only a few days, and delegates will take up work where he leaves it.

The disagreement between the finance and foreign ministers is not regarded as fundamental but is ascribed rather to their lack of opportunity to get together since Mr. Caillaux's return from London. No pessimism is expressed as to an ultimate accord between them regarding composition of the debt mission.

MUSCLE SHOALS POWER WILL BE AVAILABLE

Government to Allow Power to Be Sent to Aid Industries Affected by Drought.

Washington, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Army engineers in charge of the Wilson dam hydro electric power plant unit will start at least one of the big turbines at work as soon as an effort to give increased power to the industries in the southeastern Atlantic states which have been curtailed in their operations or compelled to shut down entirely because of power shortage, due to drought conditions.

Appeals from Senator George of Georgia and other congressional officials in the states affected, caused the War Department to inquire if the big turbines in the dam could be put into operation immediately. Major General Taylor, chief of the army engineers, advised acting Secretary Davis' office today that one turbine could be started immediately, but would have to run slowly until it could be thoroughly dried out and begin a power production of 18,000 kilowatts per hour.

It is the intention of the War Department that this increase in power should be made available under the contract with the Alabama Power Company and distributed through the power company's system and relay connections to plants where emergency conditions exist in industrial establishments. The power company now is working the steam plant at Muscle Shoals to capacity and with the turbine output from the dam would be able to carry about 90,000 kilowatts over its transmission lines from Muscle Shoals. The maximum carrying capacity of the transmission line is about 85,000 kilowatts.

Operators and Miners Again Fail to Agree

Can Not Agree on Rules to Govern Pumpmen, Engineers and Watchmen During Miners' Strike.

NECESSARY TO PROTECT MINES

If These Workmen Strike Mines Face Dilemma Even More Serious Than Walkout of the Miners.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Anthracite operators and miners today remained deadlocked on the employment rules for pumpmen, engineers, watchmen and electricians to be left in the mines under the suspension ordered by the union last night becomes effective in September.

Discussion of the matter still continued, however, at the meeting of the anthracite board of conciliation at the Reading Terminal here. Leaders of both sides expressed the hope that agreement be reached by night. Otherwise, it was said the mines would face a dilemma even more serious than the walkout itself. Where idleness would be only temporary in all of effects, flooding and cave-ins which maintenance men are left in the mines to prevent, would be very serious. A week's neglect might easily cost the industry a million dollars in damage, it was said. A full meeting of the anthracite industry will be held this afternoon at the offices of the anthracite operators' conference.

Crisis Passed

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The anthracite operators and miners here today reached an agreement on the question of maintenance men for working the mine during the suspension set for September 1st.

The arrangement provided that "normal conditions that obtained during the idle period in the past shall be the basis of the agreement."

REVENUE CUTTER IN FIGHT WITH SMUGGLERS

Cutter Fired on Vessels Which Are Believed to Have Carried Liquor.

Wes Palm Beach, Fla., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Firing operations were being carried on as its single gun could be loaded and discharged, a revenue cutter last night engaged in combat with smugglers and liquor runners inside the Lake Worth inlet, and forced the two smuggling and run craft out to sea where the battle was continued.

Captures of the runners was regarded as certain but had not been reported this morning.

Six negro aliens who were being brought into the United States on the smuggling craft were captured by Palm Beach deputy sheriffs after they had jumped overboard to escape being struck by the revenue cutter shell.

A search was being started for other aliens who may have escaped last night.

The government prohibition agent on board the revenue cutter unexpectedly came upon the liquor smuggling boats just inside the inlet just after midnight.

A search light revealed attempts being made to land a cargo of liquor and cigars.

Full speed ahead the boats started through the inlet to the ocean, with the cutter in close pursuit.

After firing several warning shots at the fleeing boats, the cutter commenced direct firing, but so far as could be learned, none of the shots took effect.

MARKETING BY RURAL CARRIERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Practical aid to the farmer and the reduction of the cost of living are obtained by means of the rural marketing service which the post office department has inaugurated in an experimental way on about fifty rural mail routes in various parts of the country. Both objects are expected to be accomplished through the elimination of the middleman, who at present is held chiefly responsible for the high price of foodstuffs in the cities and towns.

The new system is planned to provide one-day service from the farm to the city, the rural carrier who collects the foodstuffs from the farmers being required to deliver it in order to collect his commission of half the postage, which he is to receive in addition to his regular salary.

Any form of edible or drinkable farm products, with limitations on the latter to conform to the Volstead law and other existing regulations, may be sent to city customers with assurance of delivery on the day sent. Customers to whom the food is sent may be those of the farmer or ones solicited by the rural carrier. They must be either on the same rural carrier. They must be either on the same rural route or within the city or town from which the rural route emanates.

Josephus Daniels Speaks to Students of Furman University Greenville, S. C., Aug. 27.—(AP)—"Is there any way to wake up the shell-shocked world absorbed in money getting or dancing to jazz music?" That was the question propounded here tonight by Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, and Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson, in the first of two addresses here before the Political Institute at Furman University. "Above any issue or political policy, lies the imperative need of arousing the millions of non-combat citizens and getting them to take part in their government," continued Mr. Daniels. He then answered his own question in his declaration: "It is the youth we must look to—

to the youth of faith, for Age fears the things that are high, and Prudence is the foe to Progress." Mr. Daniels, who was speaking on "The Student in Politics" then proceeded to discuss the part the colleges may take in fitting the youth of today for taking its place as leaders in the political program of the country. The country is faced by two problems, Mr. Daniels said. Men "who ought to be leading are drifting," and many voters are drifting instead of "choosing leaders and following them." And the speaker quoted Dr. Charles W. Eliot and Will Rogers to confirm his statements. The former he referred to as "the most eminent living" (Continued on Page Two) deadlocked at a meeting today on the terms to govern the maintenance work. The miners insisted that the full number of men be used as in times of normal production and that these men be retained during the emergency period without either reduction or replacement by monthly men. The operators, on the other hand, had wanted the right to skeletonize these forces where practicable. The meeting adjourned without decision at 5:20 p. m. to resume at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The quarrel had never come up before for discussion by the two sides but was brought up by the miners this year because of abuses they alleged had occurred in suspensions in the past.
