Economy in the Long Run

Any housewife ought to consider well the cooking and wearing qualities, the fuel economy and the appearance of the range she buys. Remember that it is a lasting purchase—you are buying for a long time. No purchase for the home is more important than the kitchen range. You cook on it three times a day, every day in the year. Your peace of mind and the health, energy and contentment of your whole household depend on the better cooking that a New Majestic Range will enable you to do every meal. It is false economy to buy a cheap kitchen range that wears out quickly and often makes the best cooks fail. The only true economy is economy in the long run. Therein lies the economy of the Majestic. It cuts down fuel and repair bills and its long life of never-failing efficiency makes it cost less per year than any other range in the world.

Be sure to come in. It will cost you nothing to look.

MISS COLE WILL TAKE STAND IN FATHER'S TRIAL

Will Make Fight For His Life and Her Own Good Name.

Charlotte Observer. Miss Elizabeth Cole, Rockingham heiress, fresh from the ordeal of having her lover shot to death and her wealthy father thrown in jail charged with murder, is preparing to take the witness stand to fight for her father's life and her good name.

While she steels herself for the effort, her father's lawyers are laying careful plans for the 10-day trial which they seem confident will restore him to liberty.

They will rely on a self-defense plea with possibly an emotional insanity plea as a second line of defense, it is said. They smile at the suggestion that the self-defense plea will be abandoned.

Bold Defense.

From sources which are considered reliable, however, the information was available to The Observer that the Cole defense has bridged its dilemma of which to defend, the young lady's reputation or her father's life, by a bold, offensive stroke, which will expose every ghastly fact of the case, in the expectation that such a course will bring both father and daughter from the ordeal fully vindicated.

The defense lawyer are understood to feel that their fight to preserve Miss Cole's reputation fully equals in importance their effort to clear her father, Miss Cole and her father, since the shooting of W. W. Ormond, are the two remaining principals in the case. Both will be witnesses and their testimony is expected to feature the trial.

W. W. Ormond, who was killed on the streets of Rockingham by W. B. Cole following a love affair between Ormond and Miss Cole, was armed with a revolver, the defense will contend, it is said. It is also said that the Cole lawyers will seek to establish as a fact that the revolver was taken from the car in which Ormond died and secreted by a girl friend in her trunk.

Had Love Died?

The defense will also introduce evidence, possibly by Miss Cole, herself, that what affection she once had for the slain young man died months before the incident of the shooting, it is understood.

Mr. Cole's provocation, according to a self-defense line of attack, would be that his understanding, after exchange of letters with Ormond, was that blood would be shed at their next meeting and that the one quickest on the draw would be victor. An emotional insanity plea would involve an attempt of the defense, to establish that Mr. Cole's mind became so inflamed at defamatory remarks said to have been made by Ormond that he momentarily lost his power of reason and shot while insane. It is pretty well established that the defense will make an effort to show that Ormond, defeated in his hope of marrying Miss Cole, made remarks damaging to her reputation.

While public interest has remained centered on the imprisoned millionaire and his daughter, the forces of the prosecution have continued their plans for the trial. Strong legal talent has been secured to assist Solicitor F. Don Phillips.

The state, it is understood, will fight evidence that Ormond had a revolver with him at the time. The prosecution will also contend, it is said, that the relation between Miss Cole and Ormond remained one of affection and harmony and that it was their intention to wed when he should have established himself. The state lawyers will also resist any insanity plea, it is said confidently, and will seek to convince the jury that the shooting was premeditated murder and that no provocation existed.

Weekly Cotton Review.

New York, Sept. 4.—The selling movement which started in the cotton market here shortly after the publication of the government's mid-August crop report continued until the price of December touched 22.10 last Monday. This represented a decline of 178 points from the high price of last bureau day and of 360 points from the high price touched on the advance of late July. Evidently the decline had left the market in a firmer position and there were rallies later in the week on trade buying and covering in preparation for the adjournment over Labor Day and the government crop report Tuesday. December sold up to 22.95 during today's trading making a recovery of 85 points from the lowest, but considerable hedge selling was reported on the advance and the demand tapered off toward the end as if the scattering short interest had been pretty well evened up.

Work Stock Shortage May Come. Tait Butler, in The Progressive Farmer.

About five years from now there may be an acute shortage of work animals unless larger crot crops are raised from now on. We know this to be a fact, because a large per cent of the work animals on the farms of the country are past the age of greatest usefulness. Of all horses, only 11.4 per cent are under four years of age, 456 per cent are from four to nine years, and 43 per cent are over 10 years. The average age is 9.8 years. Of all mules, 15.9 per cent are under four years, 51.9 per cent are from four to nine years, and 31.6 per cent are over 10 years of age. The average age of mules is 8.4 years. These figures show that a mule shortage is not as close at hand as a shortage of horses. Five years from now, for animals of the most useful age, four to nine years, there will be only 101 head of horses for every 450 head now on the farms, and only 278 mules for every 519 at present.

The Story of Cinderella—1925 Version

The Pathfinder. (Chapter 1) Once upon a time there was a little girl who was very, very poor. Her name was Mary Spas. She was the daughter of Bohemian parents who came to this country as immigrants. One day she heard that a rich New York man—Edward Browning by name—wanted to adopt a poor child as a companion for another adopted daughter. Mary walked five miles to his office and was chosen on the spot. It was a lucky day for Mary, but 12,000 other girl applicants wept salty tears.

(Chapter 2) But disappointed applicants and other envious persons set ugly rumors afloat. These were digested and elaborated on with relish by the yellow journals. An investigation followed. First came a cable from Mary's native town in Europe saying she was 21 years old instead of 16. This was verified by her school records in this country. Men were found who admitted that they had been engaged to the supposed child of the blue eyes and flaxen curls. New York officials got after Browning for making a money settlement on Mary's parents in violation of a state law. And glowing reporters published articles to the effect that the "poor" Spas family owned a big apartment house and an auto.

During all this Mary wept copiously. Browning at first sided with the girl but after spurning her as an "adventuress" and had the adoption annulled. Mary has returned home minus the rich gifts.

Asks Issuing of Call For Prayer For Rain. Charlotte, Sept. 4.—Rev. J. Frank Armstrong, pastor of Belmont Park Methodist church here, suggests that Governor McLean follow the precedent of Govern McLeod, of South Carolina, and issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the state to pray for rain.

It is much easier to be critical than to be correct.

"Up top"

UPON the hill-top your vision grows. For miles and miles you see the work of man and nature. Down in the valley your view is limited by the hills, by your neighbor's home—by the store across the way.

This newspaper—properly used—will guide you to the hill-top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse all the doing of the days.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited to the things around home. You remain in ignorance, not only of events here and abroad, but of much that concerns you even more vitally—news of the very things that have to do with your personal, every-day life.

Someone might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for shoes or clothing—but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live a happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.

Read the newspaper advertisements—and know everything that goes on in the market-place.
