CAPT. SIGG, OF WINSTON SALEM, PRAISES KARNAK

"It's Fine—It Beats Anything I Ever Saw.—And A Man Don't Have to Be Sick to Be Benefited by It," Says A Prominent Man.

dollars to better advantage than in taking a few bottles of Karnak," declares Capt. Sigg. "I have found that when a man reaches my age of sixty-three he generally feels the need of something to keep up his vim, vigor and vitality, and to ward off a general run-down condition into which he might otherwise fall.

"According to Capt. John J. Sigg, superintendent of the Southern Public Utilities Co., and prominent citizen of Winston-Salem, N. C., residing at 205 North Main St., a person does not have to be really sick in order to experience the beneficial results of Karnak, which he declares to be the best tonic and system builder he has ever used.

In fact, Capt. Sigg says it has been his policy to fortify himself against a run-down condition by always getting something to strengthen. And what he has to say of Karnak in this regard will be of much interest throughout all Carolina.

There was a big drop in the temperature during the night, the change being brought about by a stiff wind which sprang up after midnight. It is said by weather men that the wind is part of the storm which struck the middle western states Sunday, sending cold weather to Chicago and other cities in Illinois.

Work in the public schools of the city was conducted just half a day Monday, due to the hot weather. This schedule has been followed since the opening of the schools and will be continued until more seasonable weather prevails. It is very difficult to hold the attention of the pupils for an entire day with temperatures of 90 or more.

Mrs. A. W. Gibson, Mrs. H. M. Patterson and Ralph Y. Moore have sold to Eunice C. Moore for $1 and natural love and affection property on Cedar street, according to a deed filed Monday. Another deed records the sale of property in No. 4 township by Thomas Shankle to A. F. Goodman and D. A. McLaurin for $200.

Chief Taltier and Patrolman Robinson, of the local police department, went to Wilson today to get Roy L. Spry, wanted here on a charge of violating the prohibition law. The warrant for Spry was issued about four months ago but was not served until he was arrested in Wilson as he left Concord before officers could locate him.

Pierce Phillips, penniless in Alaska, where he has gone to seek his fortune in the newly discovered gold fields of the Yukon, hires himself out packing provisions over Chilkoot Pass. In this manner he hopes to acquire the money required by the Canadian government to enter the country.

CHAPTER III. (Continued) During this speech, delivered in a matter-of-fact, business-like tone, the owner of the tent had managed to overcome his first surprise; he removed his hat now and began with an effort:

"I'm a bad hand at begging pardons, miss, but you see I've been suffering the pangs of bereavement lately over some dear, departed grub. I thought you were a thief and I looked forward to the pleasure of seeing you dance. I apologize. Would you mind telling me where you came from?"

"From Dawson." There was a silence the while the flaxen-haired woman eyed her interrogator less disdainfully. "Yes, by poling-boat and birch-bark. I'm not fleeing the law; I'm not a cache-robber."

"You're—all alone?" The woman nodded. "Can you stow me away for the night? You may name your own price."

"The price won't cripple you. I'm sorry there ain't some more women here—Linderman, but—there ain't. We had one—a doctor's wife, but she's gone."

"I met her at Lake Marsh." "We've a lot more coming, but they're not here. My name is Linton. The more-or-less Christian preacher thereto is Tom. I've got a partner named Jerry. Put the two together, and drink hearty."

"I've got a partner named Jerry. Put the two together and drink hearty..." "Just an ordinary stamper, like the rest of us, I think."

"He's more than that. He's the kind you'll go through and make good. I dare say his partner is just like him."
