BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Greatest in the Kingdom.—Whoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 18:4.

WILL IT PROVE ANYTHING?

While the two aircraft inquiries are still in their infancy and could hardly be expected to develop anything definite, it is a fact nevertheless that they start out in a manner calculated to make the public think nothing constructive will result from them.

COUNTY ROADS IN FINE SHAPE

Despite the fact that roads in the county have not been worked since early in the summer, they are in good condition taken as a whole. Some of them are especially good while others must be classed as fine.

road in excellent condition. While this road is claiming chief interest of the highway forces now, supervision is being given to other roads in the county that are being built or repaired.

WANTS THE "HIGHER-UPS"

General Andrews, who has charge of prohibition enforcement in this country now, serves notice on the public that he is after the "higher-ups" in the liquor business. He is not going to overlook the "small fry" but at the same time he is going to train his biggest guns on the man who makes it possible for the retailers to exist.

If he can stop the supply of the "leggers" he has solved the prohibition question and the question will not be solved until this is done. It is right and proper to arrest and convict the man who sells the stuff by the pint and quart but it is much more important that the man from whom he received the stuff be arrested and convicted.

FACING THE FACTS.

Winston-Salem Journal. The Federal Council of Churches has a frank way of looking at things as they are that is disturbing to those who believe that unfavorable facts should be covered up, or at least hushed up in the shadows. It is surprising how up to date the tendency is to out pet theories or cherished beliefs.

With the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, many well-meaning persons sank back in their easy chairs, breathing forth sonorous signs of relief in celebration of what they believed would be the automatic and complete end of the liquor business.

But the run dragon was not so obedient to the mandates of the law. He has kept very much alive; and most of his activity has been under cover since he was formally outlawed, whereas before there were many doors to his abode that he opened right out onto the public and much-used streets.

A report recently issued by the research bureau of the Federal Council of Churches shows many weak spots in prohibitions. For example: there has been during the last two or three years an alarming rise in the number of cases of mental collapse due to the use of liquor. This is due, of course, to the quality of the stuff that is drunk and not to any larger number of drunkards.

To Speak to Farmers and Business Men.

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—(AP)—C. O. Moser, of Memphis, Tenn., general manager of the American Cotton Growers' Exchange, will spend the week of October 5th to 10th in North Carolina speaking at mass meetings to farmers, business men, and others on cotton problems.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Arriving as a miner to dig for gold in the Yukon, Pierce Phillips meets with many strange persons on the trail across Chilkoot Pass to Linderman. First it is 'Poleon Doret, a giant French-Canadian, then Tom Linton—and then the beautiful Countess Courteau.

Phillips went on with his story and told of spending the night with Tom Linton, then of his return to Sheep Camp to learn that he had been robbed of all his savings. Corroboration of this misfortune he left to the oral testimony of the two brothers McCaskey and to the circumstantial evidence of Jim's hand-grenade.

Jim McCaskey was next called and Pierce made way for him. The younger brother made a poor start, but he warmed up to his own defense, gaining confidence and ease as he talked.

In the first place, both he and Joe were innocent of this outrageous charge—as innocent as unborn babes—and this air of suspicion was like a smothering blanket. This Jim declared upon his honor. The evidence was strong, he admitted, but it was purely circumstantial, and he proposed to explain it away. He proposed to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; letting the blame fall where it would and leaving the verdict entirely up to his hearer. Joe would substantiate his every statement.

It was quite true that he and his brother had been Good Samaritans; they had opened their doors and had taken in this young man when he was hungry and homeless, but that was their habit. They had fed him, they had shared their blankets with him, they had helped him in a thousand ways, not without serious inconvenience to themselves. Why, only on the day before the speaker himself had volunteered to take the young man's earnings to Dyea for safekeeping, thereby letting himself in for an unmerciful mauling, and suffering a semi-fractured skull, the marks of which would doubtless stay with him for a long time.

Phillips had left camp early the previous morning, to be sure, and he had not come home until an hour or two ago, but where he had gone, how he had occupied himself during his absence, where he had spent the night, of course the speaker had no way of knowing. Phillips was often absent at night; he came and he went all the hours, and neither Joe nor the witness ever questioned him, believing his statements that he was packing for hire. Neither his brother nor he had ever seen that sack of rice until it was uncovered by the posse, and as for the other plunder, it was all part and parcel of an outfit which their guest had been assembling for some time. They supposed, of course, that he had bought it, bit by bit, with his earnings.

"That's all we've got to say" concluded the elder of the precious pair when he had finished. "You can judge for yourselves who did the stealing. Jim and I've got all the grub we want; this fellow hasn't any."

"Have you anything to say for yourself?" The chairman addressed himself to Phillips. "I have," Pierce again took the stand. "You're making a great mistake," he said, earnestly. "These men have lied; they're trying to save themselves at my expense. I've told you everything, now I demand that you wait to hear the Countess Courteau or Mr. Linton. They'll prove where I spent last night, at least."

MURPHY'S ATTACKER GETS SUSPENDED TERM If Vining "Messies" With Liquor a Two-Year Sentence Will Take Effect. Greensboro, Sept. 24.—Judge D. H. Collins, in municipal court this morning, warned J. V. Vining, of this city, that if he "messies" with liquor in any way, he will put into effect a two-year sentence, imposed as the result of Vining taking three shots with a pistol at T. J. Murphy, former mayor of this city, on September 15th.

The case came up for trial this morning and the two-year sentence was imposed as a result of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. A $50 fine and costs were imposed for carrying a concealed weapon. Vining's attorney stated that his client regretted very much that he shot and the sentence of two years was suspended as a result.

Mr. Murphy told the court that there had been found in the room which had been occupied in the Murphy home by the Vining's a big pistol, loaded and he asked the court what to do with it. An officer was sent to get the gun. Vining stated that the pistol was his wife's. Vining paid his civil obligations, his attorney said.

The man, when arrested after he shot at the former mayor, said that he shot because his wife told him that Mr. Murphy cursed her. Mr. Murphy declared that he did not curse her. The trouble started over a call on Mrs. Vining for rent on the apartment, and she went to Mr. Murphy's office and state afterward that he cursed her.

A man walking along a country road found an Irishman perched upon a signpost which pointed north, with the inscription, "This will take you to Malvern."

"What are you up there for?" asked the man. "Faith," said the other, "I've been sittin' here for two hours, and I'm wonderin' what time it starts."

The college man of today is reading three times as many books as did his father when he attended college 25 years ago, says Asa Don Dickinson, librarian of the University of Pennsylvania Library.
