REV. L. E. STACY RESTS FROM LABORS AT SHELBY

Services Held Where He Attended Home-Coming Week Before. Shelby, Oct. 4.—In the same church where last Sunday a large congregation stood honoring his long service in the preaching of the Gospel another vast crowd gathered today to pay final respects to Rev. L. E. Stacy, veteran and sanely Methodist minister, who died suddenly Friday morning at his home at Belwood, this county. It was at home-coming day at Central Methodist Church here last Sunday that the 78-year-old superannuated minister saw an entire home-coming congregation rise to its feet in his honor and the same large structure this afternoon would not hold the hundreds who gathered for the second funeral services held for the first services at the Belwood home. Immediately after the services here those attending both services followed the remains to Shelby's Sunset Cemetery, where they were interred. The simple services at the home were conducted by Rev. Robert Hoyle, while ministers taking part in the services and tributes here were Rev. A. L. Stanford, pastor of Central Church; Rev. C. S. Kirkpatrick, district presiding elder; Rev. Dwight Brown, of Gastonia, and Rev. Mr. Green.

His noble life in the ministry covered some forty years during which he became one of the best known and most widely loved preachers in the Western Methodist Conference. He was superannuated several years ago on account of declining health and has since lived at Belwood. The veteran minister gave to the state distinguished children, on the bench, at the bar, in the pulpit, in educational and business life, the youngest Chief Justice in the United States, Justice W. P. Stacy, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, being a son.

The scene last Sunday when he was honored by hundreds of Methodists at Central Church touched the heart of the saintly old minister and that the honor coming from the heart of the people is fitting tribute to the noble work to which he dedicated his life was evidenced here this afternoon by the many who could not get in the church, although it was the second service of the day, the family's farewell being at the home.

Protecting the Motorist.

Durham County Progress. One thing which the Carolina Automobile Association should do when the North Carolina legislature holds forth again is to present and have made into a law a bill which will tend to give more protection to the motorist from a "passel" of scatter-brained individuals who have been vested with the power of constable or special police and who are today patrolling and infesting the highways of this state endangering the lives and property of law-abiding, Good-fearing citizens.

North Carolinians have had examples galore of innocent men and women being shot down by some harem-bred officer who thought that they had whiskey in their car, who didn't stop to make sure that such was not the case but blazed away and killed them as dead as a doornail only to find out that the gunmen were wrong. It is a known fact that no officer has a right to shoot at a motorist even if he knows that motorist is transporting liquor. Let, it is being done every week and some sort of a drastic law to stop this is needed.

The automobile owners and drivers in this State are due protection. They are, in the main, law abiding people, and are tired of being held up by some little petty officer and having their lives endangered.

The automobile association could take no better step toward protecting the autoists of the state than to formulate some such a bill and to make it so drastic that the law enforcers would think many times before they blazed away with their artillery at any motorist.

Putting the Skids Under the Mail Order House.

Durham County Progress. North Carolina has long suffered from the onslaughts of the northern and western mail order houses and, realizing that this is one of the richest of the southern states, the mail order barons are directing special attention this way at the present time.

In Durham, for instance, a report made by local postal officials is to the effect that as much as $25,000 is paid for money orders, on occasions, during the course of one day and that this money is sent to these mail order firms by individuals who could buy the same thing right at home for less money and be sure of complete satisfaction or their money refunded.

The mail order menace is doing more to endanger North Carolina today than any other one thing of which we know and they are being aided in this by the people of the state who are being hoodwinked and bamboozled into believing that they can get better bargains elsewhere than they can get at home.

There are ten thousand and one arguments against trading with these mail order firms and not one in favor and North Carolinians who cease patronizing them will be doing just that much toward bettering their own state and improving their own condition in life because a dollar turned loose in this state is sure to come back to the owner sooner or later while a dollar sent to Chicago or New York rarely ever gets back to this state.

Do your buying in North Carolina and help this State grow.

Serious Diphtheria Epidemic on Coast.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 3.—A serious epidemic of diphtheria has broken out in the village of Hattars, N. C., and already one death, that of a 12-year-old girl has occurred. Seaplanes from the Hampton Roads naval base have rushed all available antitoxin to the village and naval physicians hope to prevent a spread of the disease beyond its present stage.

OPERATION SUBJECT LEAVES HOSPITAL

Blanchard Says He and His Family Will Try to "Be Somebody." Monroe, Oct. 5.—Turner Blanchard, whose 15-year-old stepdaughter perished on him a criminal operation his request, on the 10th of September near Monroe, was released from the Ellen Fitzgerald hospital today and the county commissioners of Union county, after considerable discussion, paid his hospital bills. Blanchard comes out of the hospital in fine spirits and with a resolve, he says, "to live for the Lord." He says that he feels that he has a better chance to be saved and but for the expense and suffering, is still glad of the operation. He will take up life again with his family and as soon as he can get a job they will all work and save and "be somebody." He says that he expects to send his children to school, give them a good education and raise them to be thought well of. He and family will return to Charlotte in a short while or maybe to Gastonia for the reason that these cities offer better opportunity to mill operatives. In case he does not go to either one of these places Blanchard says that he and his family will return to his native state, South Carolina, and take up farming. He adds that he expects to pay every cent of his hospital bill or in case some one pays it for him he will refund it. While signing the voucher for the Blanchard bill today Commissioner Simms said that he for one would be glad to see Union county have some immigration restrictions, but the feeling at the courthouse is that expenses to the county is not yet over and that the next scene in the Blanchard affair will open when Solicitor Don Phillips comes around.

$3,000,000 Hotel Talk.

Greensboro, Oct. 5.—Talk is heard here for a $3,000,000 hotel and resort project for Mount Vernon Springs, in Chatham county. It is said that the proposition, which is closely guarded, is to make it a year-around playground for millionaires, with the springs, lakes and construction of golf courses, polo fields and other athletic appendages.
