

Biggest And Best Fair Yet Held In County Will Start In City Tomorrow Morning

Show People, Livestock and Exhibits of All Kinds Are On Hand Now For the Formal Opening of the Fair Tomorrow Morning. MIDWAY SHOWS SAID TO BE OF HIGHEST ORDER. Come to Concord With Big Reputation and Will Offer 21 Separate Acts.—Fire Works Each Night During Fair, Starting Tomorrow.

The third annual Cabarrus County Fair officially opens tomorrow with prospects for the best attendance in the history of the fair, and with indications that fine interest will be sustained throughout the week.

Gates to the fair grounds will be opened at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning and when they are thrown open the fair can be said to be officially opened. No parade is scheduled as a prelude to the opening events at the fair grounds, the fair officials concentrating this year on exhibits, free acts and races instead of devoting proceeds for a parade.

The fair grounds have fairly swarmed with persons today. Everyone is busy arranging last minute details, determined to be ready for the thousands expected tomorrow. The Bernardi Shows did not reach Concord until this morning and members of the troupe have found something to do every minute of the day in preparation for the opening of the show tents tonight. No admission will be charged to the grounds tonight but it is planned to have the shows in operation for the benefit of hundreds of visitors expected.

The persons who are to put on the free acts arrived in Concord yesterday and the manager announced this morning that he is ready now for the initial appearance of his troupe which is expected to put on the keenest free acts ever seen in Concord.

The free acts will cover a wide field, with trained horses and a miniature mule offering acts that are expected to create the greatest interest perhaps. The first of the free acts will be given tomorrow afternoon beginning at 1:30.

As has been the case in the past, fair officials are determined to have the various events begin at scheduled time each day. The races will begin at 1:30 and there will not be the delay that so often detract from races.

The race program for tomorrow will be as follows: 2:19 trot for $300 purse, 2:17 pace for $300 purse. With 100 horses set and primed for the races, officials of the fair are confident race fans this year will see races better than any offered at the two previous fairs.

The big tent which will house the autos was erected this morning and this afternoon decorators were engaged on the interior. All spaces in the tent have been sold, and latest model cars of several makes will be on display.

The tent is to be the mecca for music lovers each morning as the Wisconsin Band, which will play at the grounds during the week, will give a concert in the tent at 11 a. m. daily. Farm produce and livestock of various kind were listed at the exhibit and livestock building this morning.

R. D. Goodman, county farm agent, and Miss Cooley, home demonstration agent, are assisting with the arrangements and display of the fair exhibits and livestock.

The Bernardi Greater Shows have brought to Concord a complete outfit, it was stated by one of their representatives this morning as the show was being placed on the ground. The Bernardi Midway is undoubtedly one of the greatest ever seen in this section, and is so large that management is somewhat cramped for space.

There are 21 distinct and separate attractions, and nine riding devices—two of them, the caterpillar and the devil's plug being European novelties. Many of the attractions, it is said, were first introduced by the celebrated Bostock-Ferer Shows, of which the Bernardi Greater Shows is the successor.

Other striking midway features are 'Shebo', the 'Rheantruss', one of the most talked of features in outdoor amusement circles.

Bernardi Greater Shows' Freak Animal Exhibit which offers no less than 65 of the most remarkable and puzzling actual freaks of animal nature. Some more of the attractions to be seen in the Midway are: Manda Ben's 'Follies de Paris', 'The Show Beautiful', a most fascinating and colorful Dream of Arabian Nights, 'The Bug House', 'Crystal Maze', 'Crossword Puzzle', 'Oh, Look', 'Leo', 'The Wonder Man'; 'Con-

Seeking Bodies of Kansas Persons in Sebastian Inlet

State Library Lost Boat Capsized.—Eleven Bodies Are Found.

Boy Saved Four Persons in Boat

Swam Ashore and Returned With Boat.—Two Children Among Those Drowned.

Melbourne, Fla., Oct. 12.—(AP)—While fishermen and others were searching today for three missing bodies of 14 persons who were drowned here yesterday when the Clara A., a 40-foot pleasure launch, capsized, the bodies of 11 others which had been recovered were being prepared for burial and shipment to their homes.

The trip yesterday in the Clara A. was a part of the company's program of entertainment for their guests. It was the intention of Captain Ed Arnold, master of the little craft, to take them for a ride on the Atlantic Ocean, but after negotiating Sebastian Inlet, 18 miles south of here, he decided the seas outside were too rough for his craft, so he attempted to turn back.

Survivors said the boat did not respond to the helm quickly enough and the waves swept over her decks when she was about a quarter around, sweeping several from the deck. She had not recovered from this shock when a second wave hit her, swamping the boat.

The heroic efforts of James Arnold, 12-year-old son of Captain Arnold, saved the lives of four passengers who had been thrown into the raging breakers, when his father's launch turned turtle.

Survivors said the lad swam ashore and obtained a small boat. Returning to the yacht he jumped into the water, and fighting against the high waves succeeded in placing four persons in the boat and landing them safely.

Two children were among those drowned. Dan Roach went down with his father, C. E. Roach, and Miss Loretta Dreiling, 15, who had accompanied D. T. Ruckles, on the excursion, was the second youthful victim.

Six More Working Days in the First Campaign Period

Candidate, What Are You Going to Do Toward Cinching One of the Big Automobiles?

These Are the Crucial Days

The First Period of Our Subscription Campaign Expires Next Monday at Midnight.

Six more working days remain in the first period of The Tribune-Times campaign. Well may the candidates in this truly great offer ask themselves what they are going to do toward cinching one of the big automobiles in these all-important big vote days. They are the crucial days of this contest, the time when the ultimate winners show strength in their work and the time when the lesser candidates keep up only an ordinary pace or drop into a slump.

Six more days until midnight, Monday, October 13th. We have known all along, from the first announcement of this campaign, that this date was to mark the first decline in the vote given on subscriptions to The Tribune and Times. But now that it looms in the near future it is brought more closely home that this coming week is the biggest time in the whole campaign, the time when each one should do his or her utmost toward piling up the winning vote in the election.

It is important to realize that two, three, four and five-year subscriptions, especially the latter, are invaluable to candidates in this first period. True, not many of these can be commanded by any one person, but each one, no doubt had hopes of getting a few. Now is the time to get them in when they get the biggest vote. Just one five-year subscription to The Tribune gives the candidate producing it 250,000 votes and if new, 100,000 more. And to this is added the club value of the business. A five-year to The Times carries 100,000 if old and 150,000 if new. Just a few of these now can put an entirely different aspect to the looks of any one's standing in the campaign.

The Cabarrus County Fair, which opens tomorrow for five days, is due to be an appreciable factor in the campaign with the campaign department having arranged for space in the automobile show tent in which will be displayed the campaign automobile prizes. At the opening there will be seen the Studebaker phaeton, the Hudson coach and the Chevrolet sedan. It may be the second day of the fair before Parks Lafferty of the Standard Buick Company, from which the Buick Buickham was purchased, can make arrangements to have the biggest car on display but it will be there. It will be a good idea for candidates to bring their friends around to that booth and show them what they are working for.

Let midnight, Monday, October 13, be the biggest hour of your lives and see that by the time that fateful hour arrives you have done your very best toward securing the subscriptions and votes for one of the big prizes.
