Puttees for Women

The wool stocking has its friends, but also its avowed enemies. This season the fashionable new puttees for women promise an alternative. They are made of the material of the frock or the coat and are exceedingly warm and comfortable.

MISS ADELAIDE HARRIS TO LAKE EXTENSIVE TRIP

Leaves Today For Raleigh and Next Week Goes to New York For Ten Days.

Miss Adelaide Harris left today for Raleigh and Durham where she will spend the week-end prior to starting on a trip which will last for almost a month's time.

She expects to attend the State-Carolina football game in Raleigh and also stay for the dances at State College. On Friday she will be the guest of Miss Matilda Bryant, at Durham.

On Saturday, Miss Harris, together with Miss Virginia Wainwright, Miss Robert Walker, both of Charlotte, and Miss Bryant and Jim Cobb, of Durham, will leave for New York, making the trip in Mr. Cobb's motor. They will be met in New York by Mrs. W. S. Lee, Miss Martha Lee and Misses Louise and Alice Gibbon, all of Charlotte.

After a short stay in New York, Miss Harris will return to Durham, Va., where they will attend the wedding of Miss Eugenia Goodall, of that place, to Edwin Ivey, of Lynchburg. Miss Goodall is well-known in Concord, having visited Miss Harris here on several occasions.

Miss Harris will return to Concord with Mrs. J. F. Goodman, who has been visiting her daughter, Miss Catherine Goodman, at Hollins College, for the past month.

THRILLS, THROBS AND TEARS IN MELODRAMA

Spectacular Production Given Chicago Fire Story.

Thrills and pathos, romance and melodrama vie with each other to hold you spellbound at the Concord theater, where "Barriers Burned Away" was shown for the first time yesterday, remaining all week. This Concord picture presents Mabel Ballin and Frank Mayo in the leading roles of E. P. Bow's famous story of the Chicago fire. It is a drama of the power of a woman's love and the depth of her love, the heroine being a proud beauty, who, in a fit of pique, toys with the love of a man who, beneath her in station, worships her from afar until she gave him encouragement.

Miss Ballin's performance is splendid. She does not hesitate to make the heroine anything but lovely when necessary, and therefore, when love and suffering temper her spirit, she is all the more adorable. Frank Mayo is a noble and long-suffering hero. Tom Santschi gives a delightful portrait of a political boss of 1871, and J. P. Lockney and Mrs. Charles G. Craig as Mr. and Mrs. Leary, whose cow kicked over the lantern, supply some humor. Wanda Hawley has a comparatively small role, but you'll never forget her in it. The rest of the cast—Harry T. Moore, Arthur Hutter, Walter Van, Eric Mayne, William V. Meng, Frankie Mann, Pat Harmon and James Mason—are admirably selected.

The Chicago fire has been staged in a manner that beggars description. It must be seen to be best appreciated. Suffice it to say that it sends the thrills up and down your spine—you almost smell the smoke and feel the heat of the flames. It is superbly done and you're passing up hundreds per cent. over the picture if you don't go to the Concord theater today.

RAINFALL IN CITY

TOTALS HALF INCH

Indications That Rains Will Continue Despite Local Hopes to the Contrary.

Wednesday's rains which put a damper on the Fair Grounds gave indication that the drought, prevalent over this section of the state since last June, has at last been broken.

Starting Tuesday night, a total of 1.7 of an inch fell until early morning Wednesday. Wednesday's total fall was .33 of an inch, making a total for the two days of one-half an inch.

Clouds hanging low over the horizon today gave indication that the showers have not ended, despite the fact that there has been no rain today. Local people are anxious for clear weather until the Fair is over and give the biggest event in Cabarrus in the year a happy ending.

It is an ill wind, however, that blows no good. The flags and banners, strung across the principal streets of the city, present a much better appearance since the drenching rains gave them a much needed washing, freeing them of superfluous dirt and dust.

LOCALS READY FOR STATESVILLE FRIDAY

Confident of Victory With the Irell Team—Entire Team in Good Condition.

Coch MacAuley takes his team of High School footballists up to Statesville Friday afternoon for the fourth game of the thus far undefeated season in an effort to continue the winning streak which has featured the play of the locals this year.

Although confident, the Concord team is by no means too sure of the game. They believe that they can win but they are not letting old over-confidence get the better of them.

Statesville has a strong team this year, one said to be much better than usual. The only game which offers a comparison between the two teams is the game which each played with Mooresville. Concord won their game by a score of 13-7; Statesville tied Mooresville. On paper, therefore, Concord is at least a touchdown better than Statesville.

Of course comparative scores are of little value, since there is many a slip 'twixt the promise and the deed. It looks as though Concord should win.

The locals are in good shape, the entire team being free from injuries, thus far and the eleven playing with clockwork regularity. The line has been playing a remarkable game, opening holes easily on the offense and stopping everything on the defense.

IN MEMORIAM

Lavinia Montgomery Register.

On the morning of October 10, 1925, in the early morn. God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take away my beloved and devoted friend, Mrs. E. C. Register. Had she lived until October 24th she would have been sixty-three years of age. Though the average milestone of life had been reached, her death came as a great shock to her family and countless friends. We have no pretense at knowing the intricacies of Providence, nor do we understand why such a beautifully unselfish, self-sacrificing life should be taken, but we do know that all is well that ends well, and to the Christian there are no catastrophes. One day we will understand better, and the dark things which do now appear may prove to have been the veil which hides the beautiful face of the Father. Memory is immortal, and while her dust may sleep through centuries, and the wonderful flowers which now cover her grave may perish, her sweet devoted friendship will not fade from the memory of her loved ones, but will live to inspire them to nobleness of living. To have known her as I have has meant more to me than I can ever tell. Her life was one of inspiration. She has quickened many a soul to live their faith. She has awakened many new songs of hope, and built many altars of love in lonely hearts.

Her life was an open book and her life work is finished. Rarely do we ever see such a gathering of friends to pay their last tribute to such a great noble soul. The floral offerings were in great profusion, and it was a touching sight to witness the filing of friends past her bier to take their farewell look on earth at her. Just two days before her death she spent the afternoon with me and in discussing some of our friends who had been so unfortunate as to not even have the necessities of life I can hear her say, "Well, Sister Henderson, let's see that I've ever told, cared for." By my years of intimate association with her, I knew of words and deeds of kindness that the world will never know. She has gone into the hedges, highways and byways, scattering sunshine. She was a friend to the rich and more than a friend to the poor. Her annual Thanksgiving dinner to the inmates of the county home have been looked forward to and enjoyed for years. The inmates never hesitated in calling on her for anything they wanted. I have seen her gratify their wishes hundreds of times.

The old Confederate veterans—how she loved them and how they loved her. She was known as their general. For years she had in charge the Lee and Jackson dinner. She rarely ever missed a monthly luncheon and on Saturday mornings had planned to come to Charlotte and help serve them. She felt that not a single soldier should be left unattended when it came to their comfort or pleasure. She felt that she must.

Like today as though today were all. As though this very morning she were born. Her yesterdays were days beyond recall, but yesterdays were days beyond recall. Tomorrow did not come until the morning, and she was gone.

She rested not upon the victories she won. Perhaps, some times she lost, she surrendered not to fear. She felt that yesterday ended with the sun. Tomorrow had not come, today is here.

She loved her church and occupied her few leisure moments kept her away. She stood with far-reaching hands for everything good and noble. She was the leader of her circle and loved each member devotedly. She was the faithful efficient treasurer of her D. A. R. chapter for years but resigned on account of her bad eyesight. She was identified with every civic organization in Charlotte, and was always bubbling over with interest in them all. She had been offered the highest office in them all, but would refuse by saying, "I prefer a place in the rear ranks." Her last active work was in staging a musical for the Old Ladies Home. So intense was her interest in this home that some of her friends will furnish a room in her memory. She was a Friend in need, a friend in deed. A friend staunch and true: She kept a supply of love and cheer for all the folks for all the year. She knew that a gentle loving smile Was the best tonic for all the while.

Her passing away will be keenly felt by the city of Charlotte and throughout the state. Though her passing away came suddenly

"She was waiting for the last sweet summons home" And she is waiting calm and patient now.

She was ready when the call did come. Her faith secure, all would be well she knew.

"She is not dead, but just asleep. In the encircling arms of death. Unconscious while we o'er her weep And tell our grief in quickening breath:

For in our memory still she lives, And will while love's tribute gives," MRS. ELLIS W. HENDERSON.

The Dominion government has granted a site in Ottawa for a national women's memorial hall, which will be used to house the general offices of virtually all of the prominent national organizations of women in Canada.

ter than Statesville.

Of course comparative scores are of little value, since there is many a slip 'twixt the promise and the deed. It looks as though Concord should win.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD IN SESSION AT MOORESVILLE

Synod Adopts Budget of $850,000 Recommended by Assembly.

Mooresville, Oct. 14.—At the meeting of the Synod of North Carolina in session here tonight, Rev. William Black, of Charlotte, who for thirty-one years has been a general evangelist of the synod was re-elected to this same office and provision was made for two additional men in the same capacity.

The attention of the synod was directed this afternoon to the great work of stewardship and the synod adopted the budget of $850,000 for benevolences as requested by the general assembly. Of this amount approximately $80,000 will be in the way of a challenging fund and the balance will be apportioned to the individual churches.

The feature of the morning session was the report of the school and colleges, at which time a resolution was introduced regarding a great benevolent work of the late J. B. Duke. In the resolution the synod went on record as expressing their appreciation of the great gift and in view of the recent death of Mr. Duke expressing sympathy for his family and business associates in their loss.

Today's registrations bring the total well over the three hundred mark and the sessions closing tonight witnessed the reports of the two most important committees of the church.

In connection with the afternoon report of the stewardship, the synod heard Rev. Egbert W. Smith, D. D., executive secretary of the Foreign Mission committee of the Southern Presbyterian Church. He outlined the controversy that has existed in certain institutions in the foreign field with reference to certain modernist doctrines reported taught there. He declared that such no longer existed and that it was the unchangeable policy of his committee to forestall even the possibility of such if that were possible.

One of the features of the meeting so far was the report of the Synod's Home Mission committee, of which Rev. E. E. Gillespie, D. D., of Greensboro, is superintendent.

The report submitted in this connection was the 37th annual report of the synod and according to it the record for the thirty-seven years was broken in that "more persons have been and are now employed than ever before and the receipts this year are several thousand dollars in excess of any previous year, having received on apportionments $6,025 more than was given last year." This made the synod self-supporting with a surplus of $500 to apply on the past deficit.

The monthly outlay in salaries of the 84 on the rolls of the committee was reported as about $5,000. As a result of the efforts of these men there have been over a thousand accessions to the Presbyterian Church on profession of faith, and nearly two thousand professions of faith all together.

The report of the schools and colleges in the synod shows three high schools, two junior colleges, three senior colleges and Union Theological Seminary, of Richmond, Va., owned wholly or in part by the church of this synod. These institutions report a total of nearly two thousand students.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN

Customers sometimes ask us:

"Why is the heating value of gas so much higher in summer time than it is during the cold winter weather?" They seem to think that gas like everything else gets cold in winter.

The fact is that the heating value of gas is actually higher during cold weather than it is during hot weather. The reason for this is that the heating value is increased one per cent. for each five per cent. decrease in temperature of the gas.

However, the starting temperature of the food and water that must be heated in cooking will be colder in winter than in summer; therefore, a larger quantity of heat will be needed to bring the food or water to the boiling point. This explains, briefly, why more gas is used for cooking in winter than in summer.
