E. P. ROE'S NOVEL IS SENSATIONAL FILM Splendid Acting in Picture Without Dull Moment.

There is no dull moment to be found in the feature picture on the program today at the Concord Theatre. It is "Barriers Burned Away," and so dramatic full it is of good picture material that it is a marvel how it ever adapted the screen this long, being an adaptation of E. P. Roe's novel of the Chicago fire.

The story is a sentimental one, showing the way of a man with a mind who is selfish, proud, haughty, and snobbish. Not a very attractive character for a heroine, but when she has been properly subdued and her spirit tempered in the fires of love and fate, she is most adorable, and you are glad the hero wins her. The hero is most long-suffering. Occupying a mental position for the sake of getting a line on a thief, he is looked down upon by the haughty heroine and snubbed at every turn.

All hope for the hero seems lost when he blunderingly finds fault with her painting which she topped to have accepted by the Academy of Designs. It was her fondest hope—and he smashed it to atoms with his criticism—so she planned a cruel, cunning revenge—a revenge only a woman who hates fiercely, or loves greatly, could have devised—and Christine, to her amazement, finds that she loves her enemy!

Fidel La Barba, the new world's flyweight champion, is a native of New York City, although he has done all his fighting on the Pacific coast.

Swanding the Shrew. New York Mirror. A British physician suggests that ill-tempered women should be forced to wear tartan plain stockings as a warning to unsuspicious suitors.

"Every woman is born chaste but deceitful, whereas every man is born honest but incontinent," he sets forth. "A woman, therefore, has to develop truthfulness, and a man has to build up self-control."

But why brand the woman? From the doctor's own words it looks like a fifty-fifty break in shortcomings between men and women.

VENUS OF FAITH HERE TAKING IN THE FAIR

The Famous Correspondent Spends Time at Grounds Taking Down the Names of Visitors. Venus, Faith's foremost citizen, that well-known and widely read correspondent of The Tribune and The Times, is in the city today a-gathering of the news and incidentally attending the Fair.

He came Thursday and spent the greater part of the day in the center of activity in Cabarrus, the Fair Grounds, where he mingled with the milling multitudes and took down the greater number of their names for future publication.

From all reports, Venus had a busy day. With his note book and pencil in hand, he halted many of the amusement seekers and had them jot down their names so that he might swell his contributions to the next week's news.

Some, hearing that he was on the ground, sought him out and made bold to hope that he would put them in as the "prettiest girl I have ever seen" and such like.

The Fair was fine, said Venus, and so was Dr. Spencer. He declared that he was having the time of his life visiting the shows on the passes that Dr. Spencer, Fair Secretary, had given him.

He liked the doctor so well that he was going to write him up in his next items, thereby giving the Fair Officials something to look forward to.

Among the interesting things which he saw Thursday, the fat lady, Lillian, made a vivid impression, being delightfully conversational with him and even consenting to write some choice bits in his memorandum.

The "bug house" or the maze of mirrors, as he himself dubbed it, was most amusing, the boys and the pretty girls' bumping into each other.

Venus, whose real name is J. T. Wyatt, spent Thursday night at the home of Joe T. Cress, on East Depot street, and today was constantly busy filling note book after note book with names of the fair visitors.

As the originator of the phrase "if you can't beat this, trot it out," Venus has made a unique reputation for himself and is one of the most widely read country correspondents in the state.

BOB'S BUILDING NEW BUSINESS OFFICE Putting Office in Front of Laundry. Front of This Building to Be Changed.

Bob's, one of Concord's most progressive dry cleaning establishments, is putting in an office in the front of the Concord steam laundry which will give the establishment a street entrance and will also make a more convenient entrance for customers.

The new room takes the entire left front of the laundry building. An enclosure has been constructed with facilities for handling garments which have been cleaned and are to be used for as well as the handling of all the business affairs of the firm.

The present plant will, of course, be retained for the actual work of cleaning.

With the new business office, customers will no longer have to make the descent of the steep declivity which has been one objection to the present place of business.

In the new office, there is a display window for showing completed work and also a case with a glass front for storing this completed work.

An office similar to the dry cleaning office is to be constructed for the laundry business and the entrance will be changed, giving one for use of customers and another for use in taking clothes back.

THE PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD.

Spillman, of Charlotte, Is Re-elected Secretary by Rising Vote. Morgesville, Oct. 15.—The consideration of the report of the committee on stewardship and the adoption of the report occupied almost the entire session of the synod of North Carolina in the United States this afternoon, that item of the report about which most discussion centered was that which recommended that the $704,255 fund for benevolent causes be divided equally between those of the general assembly of the synod. This recommendation was substituted with one naming the percentage of 60 per cent for assembly and 40 per cent for synod's causes in the distribution of benevolent funds, and this recommendation was adopted.

The budget for the work of the stewardship committee was fixed at $10,000 beginning January 1st.

J. B. Spillman, of Charlotte, was re-elected secretary of the stewardship committee by a rising vote.

The report was read by Rev. J. H. Henderlite, chairman of the committee for the past three years, and he was re-elected for another similar period of time.

Among those speaking to the report were Rev. Egbert W. Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., Rev. D. Clay Lally, Rev. G. F. Bell, Rev. W. F. Hill, Rev. J. L. Fairley, Dr. Henderlite and others.

The report of the committee on schools and colleges held the attention of synod at the morning session, and at its close the members went to Barium Springs for dinner and inspected the plant there, where the church is caring for 358 children, 70 of whom have been received this year.

In connection with the consideration of Christian education, the importance of orthodox Christian teaching in state schools was emphasized by Rev. E. W. McCormick, Rev. A. R. Shaw and Rev. William Black, members of the committee.

A vote of appreciation was given F. L. Jackson, treasurer and his assistant, Mrs. Mattie Thompson, Davidson, who handle the finances of synod's committee on schools and colleges without remuneration.

A popular meeting in the interest of foreign missions was held this evening. Addresses were delivered by two of the foreign missionaries now at home on furlough, Rev. C. L. Crane, of Africa and Rev. Maxey Smith, of China.

Didn't Believe in Signs. The Pathfinder. "This water is contaminated," was painted in large letters on a sign above a roadside spring between Moresville and Hood river, near The Dalles, Oregon. But that did not prevent a thirsty tourist from puffing the water. When questioned about his act he explained that he thought the word "contaminated" meant "a kind of mineral spring."

As a result, the state highway commission has discarded the long work and repainted the warning sign to read: "This water is rotten."

Confucius and Confucianism. The Pathfinder. Question: Who was Confucius and what religion did he teach? Answer: Confucius was a Chinese sage who lived between 551 and 478 B. C. He was the founder of Confucianism, which is really not a religion, but an ethical system based on moral relations and ancestor worship. It teaches that the source of all true devotion and morality is filial piety. Chinese jurisprudence and education are based on the teachings of Confucius.

Chats With Your Gas Man Customers sometimes ask us: "Why is the heating value of gas so much higher in summer than it is in the cold winter weather?" They seem to think that gas like every-thing else gets cold in winter.

The fact is that the heating value of gas is actually higher during cold weather than it is during hot weather. The reason for this is that the heating value is increased one per cent for each five per cent decrease in temperature of the gas.

However, the starting temperature of the food and water that must be heated in cooking will be colder in winter than in summer; therefore, a larger quantity of heat will be needed to bring the food or water to the boiling point. This explains, briefly, why more gas is used for cooking in winter than in summer.
