Central P.-T. A. Meets.

The Parent-Teachers Association of Central Grammar school held its second meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon at the school building. It was an enthusiastic meeting with a large and representative number of mothers present.

Carrying on the project undertaken last year, that of providing a sufficient library to place Central school on the list of standard grammar schools of the state, the association voted last month to purchase a set of supplementary readers for the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

BOST CASE MAY GO JURY DURING THE DAY

Two Speeches by Counsel and Charge of Judge Were to Be Delivered During Afternoon.

The case of Martin Bost, charged with murder for the slaying of Jesse Vanderburg in September of last year, may go to the jury late today, but indications at noon were that it would go over until tomorrow morning.

When court recessed at noon arguments were yet to be made by L. T. Hartsch, for the defense, and Solicitor Zeb V. Long for the State. In addition to these arguments the charge of Judge Lane must come before the case is given to the jury.

J. Lee Crowell spoke for the defense during the morning and M. B. Sherrin spoke for the State. The entire session of court again yesterday was devoted to the case, only one other case being considered by the court.

Introduction of testimony was completed during the afternoon and three arguments by lawyers were made.

Hayden Clement opened for the State, and H. S. Williams and J. Lee Crowell, Jr., spoke for the defense. The arguments were concluded this morning and immediately Judge Lane charged the jury.

Court proceedings were interrupted at noon when a memorial service was held for the late T. D. Maness, who died suddenly several weeks ago.

The one case taken up yesterday was State vs. B. D. Davis. The defendant was found guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated, and was fined $50 and the costs.

South Carolina Press Upholds Cole.

Unlike North Carolina newspapers the press of South Carolina almost wholly, has upheld W. B. Cole for the slaying of Bill Ormond. The Fort Mill Times is herewith quoted:

"The case is a simple one and the jury ought to be able to dispose of it in a very few minutes. Cole shot to death a young fellow named Ormond, who appeared to be little more than a vagabond, because Ormond had slandered Cole's daughter, a worthy young woman, whose conduct appears to have been above reproach. Cole is reputed to be rich, while Ormond's possession seemed to have been confined largely to the possession of a Ford car and a worthless character. The lawyers for the prosecution are trying to make much of Cole's wealth as against Ormond's poverty, as if Cole, even though he be wealthy, did not have as much right as other men to protect the character of helpless members of his family against the vile and vicious assaults of a propertyless young 'sport' who had never accumulated anything in life because he was said to have been too trifling to work. Ormond was pusillanimous enough to try to ruin the character of Cole's daughter because she thought him of no account and would not marry him; but Cole was not pusillanimous enough to let Ormond get away with it. So he shot Ormond to death and the world seems to have lost little."

President Roosevelt said, "Good crops are of little value to the farmer unless they open the door to a good life on the farm."

LYCEUM AT MT. PLEASANT.

The Lyceum season opens at the Auditorium at Mt. Pleasant, N. C., next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock with "The Climax," a dramatic masterpiece of comedy and music. For two years the play thrived New York, had a long run in Chicago and is now being rendered by five road companies. When "The Climax" was rendered at the Garrick theater in Washington, D. C., criticisms were unanimous in their approval.

Season tickets are now on sale and indications point to a full house for this splendid opening number. 22-24-c.

Meeting Now in Progress at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church

On Tuesday night the meeting began in the A. R. P. Church at the corner of N. Union and Marsh streets. Services are being held at 7:30 each evening. After the service last night there was a short personal workers' conference. Already there are evidences of a revival in the community.

Rev. R. T. Kerr, of Vidette, Ga., is doing the preaching. Everyone who has heard him is delighted with his preaching. His subject last night was "Tasting God's Goodness." And it was greatly enjoyed by those present.

We are anxious to have members of all denominations of Concord worship with us. You will find here a spiritual blessing, and a hearty welcome. X.

Youngblood and Company to Carry Distinctive Line of Goods.

F. M. Youngblood and Co. local wholesale grocers, have received a carload of canned goods which is put up for them under their own name under the Thanksgiving label. The goods were canned for them by Stokely Brothers, of Newport, Tenn.

Featured on the paper covering is the picture of a turkey in colors, which makes the can not only attractive but distinctive as well. In the carload received were tomatoes, corn, cranberry, pumpkin, peas, and hominy. This will be one of the main lines which Youngblood and Co. will carry.

This year's victory gives the San Francisco Seals a tie with Los Angeles for pennant winning honors in the Pacific Coast League, each team having captured six flags since the present league came into existence in 1903.

A whippet has been timed to cover two hundred yards in twelve seconds, a speed nearly twice as great as that of any two-legged athlete, and not far behind that of a very much bigger greyhound.

GASTONIA HOPING TO REPEAT LAST YEAR'S WIN

Coach Crawford Drilling His Men Daily. Five Games Here Friday.—Boyd Won't Play.

Gastonia High School eleven comes to Concord Friday afternoon all set to repeat last year's performance and win from the locals.

Reports seeping in from the Gaston capital indicate that the boys there have the state championship bee in their bonnets and are not figuring on letting any one get ahead of them, even though the series to determine the "best team" has not yet begun.

Interesting to local line-men, in particular, is the information that "Jab" Boyd's Gastonia's 290-pound guard, is not eligible to play this month. He failed on a portion of his classroom work and as a result has been ruled off, it is stated.

Expecting Stiff Fight.

Word from the "Yarn center of the South" is to the effect that Pat Crawford is drilling his men hard for the game. He is said to have warned his charges that Concord always puts up a stiff fight and is doing everything to keep them from getting overconfident.

The lineup which will probably face Concord here in Friday's contest is as follows:

Substitutes scheduled to make the trip here include F. Carson, end; Faysoux, guard; Farris, center; Hood, halfback; Grier, halfback; and Yarrowburgh, guard.

Concord Busy.

While the Gastonia team is working with a view toward winning the contest Friday, Coach McLaughlin has his squad going through the ropes daily in an effort to iron out the kinks which became painfully apparent last week in the Statesville fiasco.

He is working the members of the team from 3:30 each afternoon until dark so that they may show more stuff than they have recently.

In Tuesday afternoon's scrimmages, Aleck MacFayden, one of the most promising of the younger scrubs, broke his collar bone when he tackled Gene Hoover. This definitely eliminates MacFayden from participation in any further games this season.

Hal Jarratt, regular halfback, who has been on the sick list since the Salisbury game, is back, although it is not certain that he will be able to start the game Friday. Claud Duke has been showing up well in Jarratt's place.

Another sub, Furr, who is taking William's place in center is also doing good work.

The game will be played on Webb Field at 3:30 o'clock.

"PAID IN FULL BY GOD" HIS RECEIPT TO POOR DEBTORS

The Tale of a Country Merchant Who Died a Rich Man.

Santa Fe, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Treasured in many a humble adobe house in the mountains of Rio Arriba county, New Mexico, is a little soiled and wrinkled slip of paper.

On it appears in Spanish: "Juan Sanchez (or whatever the name may be) to Felix Garcia, Dr." Then an itemized list of purchases of chili, coffee, sugar, flour, beans and at the bottom the endorsement: "Paid in full by God."

It is the tale of the country merchant who died a rich man, despite the fact that he never pressed a debtor for payment, crossed the obligations of poor people off his books, and left among his papers bills receivable and promissory notes amounting to $100,000.

Garcia, once a nominee of the Democratic party for governor of New Mexico, died from a bullet accidentally discharged. Few men in New Mexico were more widely or sincerely mourned. The esteem in which he was held was based entirely on his honesty and humanity.

He was not a brilliant man but was gifted with sound business judgment.

Garcia started a typical small Spanish-American merchandise store. He made a little money and acquired a number of small ranch properties. But the poor people did not contribute to his increasing fortune.

If a customer fell sick or had bad luck on his little mountain farm, or was out of work, Garcia promptly dug out his account and sent him the bill marked "Paid in Full by God."

He ran two stores in the little village of Lambertson; one a cash store, the other a "credit store" where he let his needy patrons run accounts as long as they wished. It is not of record that his generosity was often taken advantage of by those able to pay and the bulk of the $100,000 left unpaid on his books really represented charity to the poor.

Caracas on Watershed Brought Him Trouble.

Stanly News-Herald.

In recorder's court yesterday a case came up that shows that people all over the country are thoughtless in more ways than one. In this particular case an old negro man was being tried for placing the carcass of a horse on the watershed of Long Creek.

During the examination of the old fellow, he admitted putting the horse's body there, about 100 feet from the bank of the stream, and it stayed long enough for nothing but the bones to be there. He pleaded ignorance to the law forbidding one from putting anything on the watershed of any stream from which came the water supply for any community.

The ignorance on the part of the old negro is typical of the ignorance of others throughout this and other counties. It is against the law to place "carcass, human excrement, or other matter that would pollute a stream" or allow the same to remain on the watershed of any stream which is the water supply of any city or town in the state of North Carolina.

This one case, insignificant though some may think it to be, will doubtless help some one else steer clear of such an indictment in the courts of Stanly county.

Where He is Himself.

Charlotte News.

W. O. Saunders, editor and publisher for a number of years of The Elizabeth City Independent, ran off about a year ago to take a position with Collier's in its New York office, and has come back to his former stamping grounds and to his first love.

He didn't like it up there and frankly says so, too much system, too much suppression of the personality and the individuality, too many card indexes, stenographer and errand boys to do his "fiddling." Saunders is one of those rustic fellows who wants to do his own work in his own way, who has a distinct personality of his own that shines lustroly through his writings, and he is about one last man one would think of to fit in with any degree of delicate adjustment to the systematic, machine-like methods dominant in the big publishing concerns of the metropolis.

It is not that he failed to display his editorial wares that his connection with Collier's has been severed. It is, on the other hand, a tribute to his own good sense that he returns to a small community where he can be of greater service and have unhindered chance to himself.
