Here is a new type of necklace that is a relief from the inevitable pearl choker. It consists of a number of short lengths of pearls hanging from a band of black velvet ribbon. It is an excellent thing for the woman with a short neck to avoid.

DANCER SECURED FOR HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL

Twelve-Year-Old Girl to Appear Twice.—Davidson College Orchestra Also Secured

Another feature has been added to the Halloween Carnival which is to be staged Friday afternoon and night. This latest entry in the long list of amusements is Miss Dorothy Mallard, formerly of Wilmington, who has been attracting enthusiastic approval by her performances in a number of Southern Cities.

Miss Mallard is considered one of the most promising young dancers of the State has ever produced. She is only twelve years of age but her dancing is of such a high quality that her appearances have accorded her an ovation not the cities where she has appeared.

She is coming to Concord to assist in the Charity Carnival and will dance on two occasions, at the Children's Matinee in the afternoon and also at the Square Dance at night. She is giving her services free of charge since it is a charity affair.

The following is a quotation from the Wilmington Star of September 5, on an appearance at Wrightsville Beach:

"The evening was featured by two dance interpretations by Miss Dorothy Mallard, one of Wilmington's most accomplished and talented young dancers. The first number was a toe dance of the most difficult kind and the beautiful little artist captivated the large audience. Her next number was a fancy dance which took the crowd by storm and it was a difficult matter for the manager to have the crowd cease their applause."

Miss Mallard has studied in New York.

The Square Dance in the gymnasium at 9 o'clock Friday evening is expected to be one of the outstanding social events of the winter season here. Large numbers of local people have signified their intention of attending and many people from out of town are expected.

BUS TAKES SIDEWALK TO AVOID HITTING AUTOMOBILE

Driver Cuts Into Y. M. C. A. Fence When Car Suddenly Turns in Front of Him

One of the big inter-city buses, traveling from Greensboro to Charlotte Monday night, was forced to take to the sidewalk and barbed-wire fence at the Y. M. C. A. to avoid hitting an automobile which suddenly turned out in the street in front of it.

No damage was done other than tearing out a section of the Y fence and frightening the passengers of the bus badly.

As is customary on such occasions, a large crowd of persons gathered immediately afterward and stood around until the bus was able to disentangle itself from the fence it had run into and drive off.

According to persons who reached the scene of the accident soon after it occurred, the bus was driving down North Union street at a moderate rate when the car parked on the side of the street suddenly pulled out.

To have stopped suddenly would have meant that the line of cars behind would have probably had a smash. The bus driver, and to have kept going at his same speed would have meant running into the car in front, so he took to the sidewalk.

COUNTY MARKET WILL BE OPENED SATURDAY

Miss Martha Creighton to Assist Saturday.—Successfully Conducted in Past Years

The County Market will open Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at the county building, the same store room to be used this year that was used last year.

As has been the custom heretofore, only women from the county will be allowed to enter their produce and marketable goods in the store. It will remain open until 1 o'clock.

For the past several years the market has been run successfully and plans are underway this year to make it the equal of past markets. Miss Martha Creighton, of Charlotte, district home demonstration agent, will be in Concord to assist in Saturday's work.

Boy Struck by Ford Near Hartsell Mill

Johnnie Fisher, youngster of the Hartsell Mill community, was injured Monday shortly after noon when struck by a Ford car driven by Josephine Alexander, negro woman from Charlotte. The accident occurred near the Hartsell Mill.

The woman was arrested following the accident and gave bond in the sum of $200 for her appearance in court here tomorrow afternoon.

The injured lad was carried to the Concord Hospital, where an examination showed his wounds were not serious, police officers report.

Conflicting reports as to how the accident occurred were received by officers, who have summoned a number of witnesses for the hearing tomorrow afternoon. One report said the boy stepped from a truck directly into the path of the Ford while another said the woman was driving rapidly and could not control her car quickly enough to avoid striking the boy.

WAR MOTHERS AGAIN HAVE THEIR KITCHEN ORCHESTRA

Same Performance to Be Put on That Delighted Audience Here Several Weeks Ago

The War Mothers, flushed with recent theatrical successes and looking for new fields to conquer, are again presenting for public delectation their Kitchen Orchestra, that medley of sights and sounds.

Again the High School auditorium is selected as the place for the performance and the time set is 8 o'clock tonight.

Advance press notices indicate that practically the same program is to be presented this time with the various and sundry orchestral instruments taking the foremost place in the performance.

The orchestra, as heard here several weeks ago, proved to be one of the most delightful home talent entertainments ever given in the city and a large audience is expected to be present for this evening's show.

New Pastor of Bayless Memorial and Brown Mill Churches

Rev. Waldo P. Robertson, for two large country churches—Cross Roads and Stony Creek—in Alamance county, near Mebane, N. C., has accepted a call to Bayless Memorial and Brown Mill Presbyterian churches; taking up his work on Sunday, November 1st, 1925.

Mr. Robertson comes highly recommended both as a preacher and a pastor. Being a man of pleasing personality and winsome nature, it was with reluctance that he was released from his labors in Alamance.

Bayless Memorial and Brown Mill are extremely fortunate in securing the services of one so highly recommended and successful in his past labors.

Rev. and Mrs. Robertson are both taking courses in certain departments of Sunday School work; and this, added to the above recommendations, will supply these two churches with the best equipment for the service of the Master that they have had in recent years.

Let us all work and pray that the Lord's Kingdom may be furthered in Concord through our co-operation with these good people.

Durham County Progress

Regardless of whatever engagement he had previously made, regardless of the fact that he was scheduled to open the North Carolina Fair, Governor Angus Wilton McLean should have cast aside all engagements and have traveled the twenty-six miles between Durham and Raleigh to attend the funeral of the late James B. Duke.

That he did not do so but resorted to the simple and commercial method of sending his regrets by telegraph, shows that Governor McLean is not as great a diplomat, is not as great a citizen of the state, is not as great a leader as some would have us believe.

When a man as great as James B. Duke, a man who has done as much for North Carolina and for the nation as James B. Duke has done, dies, it is the least that the governor of his native state of that man can do to attend the funeral service over his body, especially so when the service is conducted only a few miles away.

It made no material difference whether Governor McLean, as a man, attended the funeral service. But while he is governor of North Carolina, Angus Wilton McLean represents the people of the state—he is, in a measure, the state and the state was in mourning and bowed down with grief Tuesday morning when the mortal remains of Mr. Duke were laid to rest.

Yet the governor saw fit to open a fair at Raleigh instead of attending the funeral service in Durham.

It is a slight which Durham people will never forget and one which the governor will never be able to offer an excuse for committing.

He has demonstrated his real spirit by his attitude and that speaks louder than the written or the spoken word.

An Unlovely Mess in State of Texas, Raleigh Times

Ma Ferguson, who is being accused of extravagance and perhaps worse in her conduct of the State highway department of Texas, advises those who are bringing the charges to take them before a grand jury. The Speaker of the House says that if Ma does not as Governor call a special session of the Legislature, he is going to do that same.

Prospects are for the special session with a row once more featuring Ma's husband Jim, who appears to be her worst fault. It has been continually charged since Ma took office that Jim was really Governor and that he has been practicing all previously-known forms of graft and devising new ones.

It is a most unlovely situation at best. The State of Texas is to blame for it. The election of a woman as governor whose candidacy was based on her desire to vindicate a husband who had been impeached by the Legislature—a well-nigh impossible undertaking if Jim had not been guilty of flagrant abuse of his office—was so patently foolish that even the simplest should have known that it would result in confusion.

Now Jim must be brought from behind his wife's skirts and given hell all over again. It's a nice mess, isn't it?

Victim Identifies Asheville Negro and He Is Rushed Off; Another Attack, Another Mob

Asheville, Oct. 26.—While 200 or more people formed on Pack Square tonight in an attempt to take Preston Neely, a negro arrested earlier in the day on a charge of attacking a West Asheville white woman last Thursday afternoon, and Sheriff's deputies were speeding toward Raleigh with the negro, another negro was attempting to attack a white woman on Broadway, one of the city's principal business streets.

The negro who is alleged to have attempted to attack the woman tonight was arrested after a chase by citizens and officers, the latter being called by the husband of the woman who had left her to make a small purchase in a nearby store. The alleged assailant was placed in the Buncombe county jail. Whether or not it was planned to take him from the city could not be learned.

Prominent Men in E. City and county authorities were pleading all during the night with various citizens to use their influence with the mob to prevent violence. In this crowd tonight, different from that of some weeks ago, it was said that some of the city's most substantial citizens were members. The prominence of the woman attacked Thursday was given as the reason for this.

The alleged attack of Neely was the third of its kind within the six past weeks and the attempt of the negro tonight added fuel to the flames of indignation which are to be seen on the faces of the hundreds of people who have gathered together in groups in and about the city.

Victim Recognizes Neely on Street, Calls Officer

Asheville, Oct. 26.—Preston Neely, 23, who was identified late this afternoon as the negro who committed assault upon a white woman near Honeysuckle, in West Asheville, last Thursday afternoon, was tonight en route to the state penitentiary at Raleigh.

Neely was arrested by Officer W. C. Glenn after he had been recognized on the streets by the woman victim, who notified the officer.

Upon seeing the negro after his arrest, the victim is reported to have said:

Neely is said to have been an employee of the Moxley Sandwich shop of this city. He came to Asheville from Laurens, S. C., last August, he said.

The woman was attacked last week as she was crossing a field en route to her home. The negro drew a revolver and threatened to kill her if she uttered a sound. Later she gave the alarm and a wide search for the assailant was started.

"I Am Not Guilty," Negro Sails, Before Accusation

Asheville, Oct. 26.—Preston Neely, 23, negro, of Laurens, S. C., was positively identified this afternoon as the negro who committed a criminal attack upon a West Asheville white woman Thursday afternoon.

The negro was seen by the victim on a downtown street and was pointed out to an officer who followed him a short distance and placed him under arrest. The officer, Policeman Glenn, said the first words the negro spoke were, "I am not guilty."

The small taxpayers. The government will contend that it collects something like $500,000,000 a year by two cent postage stamps and that the five and ten cent stores are a splendid illustration of the principle that small profits on a quantity basis make money for the seller.

Thus the Treasury is arguing that the small taxes will hardly be felt by the people with incomes under $5,000 but that if these taxes are removed altogether there cannot be as much relief given to the persons above $5,000 and the consumer will continue to pay the bill just the same.

Cotton Goods Markets

New York, Oct. 26.—Cotton goods markets ruled quiet today with an easier tendency following the issuance of government cotton report.

No influence to buy or sell was visible although the traders generally anticipate higher prices when current contracts are closer to expiration. Yarns were easier with agents willing to cut some prices for future business. Burlaps markets continued strong following news of further advances in Calcutta. Raw silk was slightly lower. Business for quick shipment improved in cloak and suit lines.

NO ESCAPE FOR THE SMALL TAXPAYER

Republican Fical Experts Figure on Basis That He Must Pay Tax

Washington, Oct. 26.—The question of whether politics or economic will dominate the minds of men who frame the next tax law is difficult to determine this early, but the proposal to exempt all incomes under $5,000 from taxation, advanced in some quarters as a splendid vote-getting device affecting three million or more families, is to be fought sharply by the fiscal experts who now say they can prove conclusively it will not furnish as much real relief to the small taxpayer as a reduction in indirect taxes.

In other words what's the use of cutting the direct taxes and leaving the tax on bread, clothing and other necessities of life which have been passed on to the consumer by the producers? The experts insist that if politics is to be taken into account the Democrats, for example, who have always insisted that tariff duties simply increased the cost of living must face an inconsistency if they refuse to believe that high income taxes are not passed on the consumer too.

The other argument which is being projected is that it costs too much money to collect taxes from

MOUNTAIN COUNTIES ARE THE MOST HEALTHFUL

Climate in That Section Seems to Be Most Conducive to Health

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—(49)—What section of North Carolina is most healthful? That distinction appears to go to the mountain counties of the northwestern part of the state. Whether or not the climate is most conducive to health in that section, there are fewer deaths in those counties, in proportion to population than elsewhere in the state.

This is shown by figures compiled by the bureau of vital statistics of the State board of health and contained in that bureau's annual report just published.

The figures show that of 27 counties having fewer than ten deaths in 1924 per thousand population, seven were in the mountainous northwestern section of the state. Those counties are Avery, Ashe, Yancey, Alexander, Alleghany, Yadkin and Surry.

Avery county last year had the second lowest death rate of any in the state, the lowest death rate being that in Graham, another mountain county, but in the southwestern part of the state. A slightly higher death rate is reported in Ashe and Yancey, with exactly the same death rate, these two counties standing third from the top of counties in low death rate.

Alexander, another of the northwestern mountain counties, had the fifth lowest death rate, with Alleghany sixth. Mitchell county, which led the state in birth rate last year, is ninth. Yadkin, another northwestern county, had the same number of deaths per thousand population as Stanly and Gates, eastern counties, 13th position going to these three. And Surry county's position is 16th.

Three other mountain counties—Cherokee, Swain and Haywood—were respectively eighth, tenth and eleventh in standing. Ten of the eleven lowest death death rates in the state were reported from mountain counties, though not all of these were in the northwestern part of the state. Dare, which had the seventh lowest death rate, was the only non-mountainous county to hold a place in the eleven counties reporting the lowest rate, ten of the eleven counties having the lowest death rates being mountain counties of the western half of the state, and five of them being in the northwestern corner of the state.
