PEOPLE THE WORLD OVER ASK ABOUT THIS STATE

The California writer, who indicated that farmers in his section were anticipating a move to North Carolina, mentioned Salisbury as the place to which they would like to settle. His knowledge of North Carolina may be explained, however, by the fact that he is originally from Richmond, Va., according to his letter.

"Received the book," his letter read, his reference being to "North Carolina—the Land of Opportunity," a department of agriculture publication. "It is just what I want. Another thing it contained facts. I wish you would advise me the best section to live in. I am thinking of going to Salisbury. There are several families here interested in North Carolina, and as I am a native of Richmond, Va., I am boosting the state and its people."

The California writer stated that he was interested in a small farm, near a town suitable for poultry, fruit and a few hogs.

Inquiries from other states, far and near, continue to arrive. It was stated at the department of agriculture. Numbers of persons making inquiries have indicated that they desired to settle in North Carolina. These letters have come from present residents of Illinois, New York, New Hampshire, and points in Canada.

A recent letter from a Winder, Ga., school pupil stated that her grade was making a special study of North Carolina. She asked for a map and other information about this state.

Instances of North Carolina thrift and prosperity, which have been published in the newspapers, account for many of these numerous inquiries, in the opinion of department of agriculture officials. Some of North Carolina's agricultural activities have evidently been related in foreign newspapers, probably through the exchange of newspapers, the department believes, although it has no direct evidence of such an explanation.

NO DECISION YET FROM MORRISON

Former Governor Not Talking Politics Now, He Says.

Charlotte Observer.

"They've had me running for everything from United States senator to the state legislature. I don't know which I'll select," former Governor Cameron Morrison humorously replied last night when asked about the latest report that he was scheduled to run for the legislature in Mecklenburg county next year.

He added that he is not talking politics now and declined to make a statement as to his thoughts with reference to the last or any of the other "booms" that have been started to get him into politics again.

Governor Morrison said he had not seen the recent stories emanating from Raleigh and putting him in the general assembly next fall. He indicated amusement at the many things some of the papers have been printing about his running for this office, intimating that since "they" have started him out, then it is up to "them" to stop him. He appears to be enjoying the connections "they" form for him in efforts to draw him out on subjects political.

Wants to Stay Out.

He said that he had not talked politics with several people he is supposed to have conversed with along such lines in the past few months and that newspaper stories along such lines were mere speculation.

"I prefer that 'they' speculate and leave me out of it," he said, intimating that he has a right not to be precipitated into a political declaration, so far in advance of any election in the state.

Careful Treatment for Orchards.

Lexington, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Fifteen home orchards in as many communities have been treated recently with P-benaine, to control peach tree borers, reports C. A. Sheffield, farm agent in Davidson county, in which county these treatments have been given.

More than 3,000 trees have been treated, and farmers are beginning to realize that orchards respond to care, as well as livestock and crops, says Mr. Sheffield. The orchards are scattered over several townships and the treatments and results should prove of much value to those farmers interested in better kept orchards, Mr. Sheffield believes.

Stewart Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON—Judson Churchill Welliver, much better known as "Jud" Welliver, who has just retired as White House chief clerk to become public director for the American Petroleum Institute, got his start as a public character by disagreeing with President Roosevelt.

JUD was Washington correspondent for the Munsey publications at the time. One day the president sent for the newspaper men, among them Jud, to outline for their benefit, a scheme he had doped out looking toward a solution of the country's railroad problems, just then pretty numerous and acute.

Concluding, he looked expectantly at his auditors, awaiting their verdict evidently in full confidence that it would be favorable.

It was. Presidential plans seldom are looked very closely in the south. President Roosevelt's was greeted, almost unanimously, with Winfield, Texas—My back hurt night and day," says Mrs. C. L. Eason, of R. F. D. 1, this place. "I ached and ached until I could hardly go. I felt weak and did not feel like doing anything. My work was a great burden to me. I just hated to do up the dishes, even. I was no account and extremely nervous. "My mother had taken Cardui and she thought it would do me good, so she told me to take it. My husband got me a bottle and I began on it. I began to improve at once. It was such a help that I continued it until after the baby's birth. "I took eight bottles and I can certainly say that it helped me. It is a fine tonic. It built me up and seemed to strengthen me. I grew less nervous and began to sleep better. "I can certainly recommend Cardui to expectant mothers, for to me it was a wonderful help. In every way I felt better after taking it and I think it is a splendid medicine. Cardui is purely vegetable, and contains no harmful drugs. For sale everywhere. NC-162
