REWARD OF THE RIGHTEOUS
Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace.—Psalm 37:37.

FATE OF MUSCLE SHOALS IS STILL UNCERTAIN.

Despite the fact that President Coolidge appointed a commission to study Muscle Shoals and make recommendations as to what should be done with the plant, the fate of the property is still very uncertain due to the fact that the commission is unable to agree on a report.

The members of the commission visited the plant, studied its possibilities and its present output, but they were unable to see the same things. They could not look at the plant through the same eyes and as a result they are as much up in the air as to what should be done with the property as Congress was.

President Coolidge states that he is still hopeful and he thinks the commission may come to some agreement after all. That seems unlikely now, for even though a compromise report could be agreed upon, the very nature of the report would make Congress hesitate before accepting it.

If the commission members could have reached an agreement Congress would very likely have accepted their recommendations for the recommendations would have carried to Congress the approval of the President. However, under present conditions it seems likely that the whole question will be presented to Congress again.

Chairman McKenzie of the commission, let it be known that he, former Senator Dial and Russell F. Bower, of the American Farm Bureau, favored operation of the property for the production of fertilizer in time of peace and ammunition in time of war, and the sale of surplus power, preferably by a private lessee but if a satisfactory lease could not be obtained they favored government operation even if the production of fertilizer has to be subsidized by the profits from the sale of power.

The other members of the commission, Harry A. Curtis, a chemical engineer of Yale University, and William McClellan, an electrical engineer of New York, are reported as opposed to subsidizing fertilizer manufacture under any conditions and Mr. Curtis is said to be opposed to the government operating Muscle Shoals except in time of war.

Senator Norris, who has led the fight for government operation in the last two sessions of Congress, announces that he will continue the fight when Congress meets in December. Congress may have to decide the matter after all.

NUMBER OF FARMS DECREASING

The Census Bureau has just completed a survey of farm conditions, paying special attention to the increase and decrease in the number of farms per State. The Census was completed for 1925 and shows conditions that may prove startling to many.

The survey showed that whereas there were 6,448 farms being operated in the United States in 1920, there were only 6,372,600 being operated this year, a decrease for practically every State in the Union.

Experts making the survey for the Census Bureau gave the following reasons for the decrease: (1) Ravages of the boll weevil; (2) migration northward of Southern negroes; (3) a series of dry seasons in part of the northwest; (4) the consolidation of farms into larger units; (5) abandonment of farms because of adverse price conditions.

Three States showed an increase in farms, however, and North Carolina was one of them. This State from 1920 to 1925 showed an increase of 12,732 farms, ranking third in this respect. Texas was first with an increase of 18,743.

These are the States showing the chief decreases: Georgia 61,634; South Carolina 19,931; Alabama 18,520; Mississippi 14,868; Kentucky 12,115; Ohio 11,988; Illinois 11,530; Montana 10,625.

The increases, it is suggested in the Census Bureau reports, came about principally from the opening of new farms in the west, sub-division of ranches and large farms into smaller farms or poultry and truck farms or orchards near cities.

North Carolina had no ranches to be converted into farms but it is undoubtedly true that the peach orchards in the Sandhills as well as other sections of the State, and the big increase in poultry and truck farms accounts for the most part for the increase in North Carolina. Hundreds of orchards have been planted in this State during the past five years, and even more truck farms and poultry farms have come into existence.

Women Are Extravagant.
Editor New York Mirror: In your issue of October 28th, Eitel Barlowe asks who are best savers in the home. Why everybody knows it is the man. The majority of wives spend recklessly the money for which their husbands toil all day. Men take care of their clothes, and not rush at every instance to keep pace with the ever-changing fashions like their wives. I think men should only permit their wives to have a certain amount weekly for household expenses, and after a little time they would have something to show for their years of toil. All women are extravagant.

Man Prefers Jail to Family Life.
New York Mirror.
William E. DeNike's choice of remaining in jail rather than return to his wife and two children has resulted in recommendation of a divorce decree for Mrs. Ida Lifer DeNike, of Paterson.

Before Special Master McKee, Mrs. DeNike charged her husband deserted her, and was sentenced to serve a year and a day in the Hudson county penitentiary at Laurel Hill. Later he was offered his release to go back to his family. He said he'd rather "take his medicine."

CIRCUS FOLLOWER SAVED BY YOUNG MEN

Bridgeport, Conn., Man Was Lying Unconscious on Railroad Track.
Lexington, Nov. 3.—Two young men of the Dacotah section of the city, whose names are not learned, are said by the police to have saved the life of a man giving his name as John Langley, of Bridgeport, Conn., early one morning last week when they pulled him off the tracks of the Southern Railway just before the passing of a train that probably would have ground him to pieces.

The stranger was found lying on or near the rails, with a gash in his head and with blood all over his face, the two young men pulled him to one side. The police were notified and officers went to the scene and took the injured man to the Davidson hospital. There his wound was dressed and after he became thoroughly sober a few hours later he left the hospital.

A short while later the police were again notified that some man with his head taped up was sitting beside the Raleigh road in an apparent stupor. He proved to be the same man who had been taken to the hospital. He told the police that he had belonged to the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling circuses, which disbanded after showing at Salisbury, that he had been drinking there and remembered going to the depot and that some one hit him in the head and robbed him. He had no money and said he had started home to Bridgeport, Conn. Police believe he fell or was knocked off a circus train at the point where found, as such a train is reported to have passed a short while before. No charge was preferred against him here.

The first woman to appear in practice before the Supreme Court of the United States was the late Marilla M. Ricker, the famous woman lawyer of Dover, N. H., of whom Robert Ingersoll said that had she been a man she would have become chief justice of the United States.

DINNER STORIES

Judge—You are charged with running down a policeman. What have you to say for yourself?
Motorist—I didn't know he was an officer, Your Honor. I thought he was just a pedestrian.

It was a dear old lady's first ride in a taxi, and she watched with growing alarm the driver continually putting his hand outside the car as a signal to the following traffic. At last she became angry.
"Young man," she said, "you look after that car of yours, and watch where you're going. I'll tell you when it starts raining."

A Chinese applicant for a job wrote as follows: "Sir—I am Wong I can drive a typewriter with good noise and my English is great. My last job has left itself from me, for the good reason that the large man is dead. It was an account of no fault of mine. So, honorable sir, what about it? If I can be of use to you I will arrive on some date that you should guess."

"Miriam," said he, "I have seen the doctor. He tells me I must give up all smoking at once. It's imperative he says: one lung is nearly gone."
She flinched; a look of agony came over her pale face.
"Oh, Honey, can't you hold out a little longer until we've coupons enough for a new rug?"

A son of Erin had the misfortune to get mixed up in an accident and was immediately conveyed to a hospital, where it was found that his only injury was a slight wound. The house surgeon carefully examined him, after which he thus stated the case to the nurse:

"A subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I think there is little reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound. What do you think yourself?" he asked Pat.
"Sure, doctor," replied Pat, "you are a wonderful thought reader. You took the words out of my mouth."

THE SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH
Who will provide the new capital?
The ability of any business to obtain new capital depends upon its credit.
Do its stocks and bonds offer safe investment?
Is the property conservatively capitalized?
Has it maintained a steady earning power?
Is its business likely to expand?
Has the management a proper appreciation of its threefold responsibility:
[1] to give good service to customers
[2] to deal fairly with employees
[3] to safeguard the capital investment of the owners?
The management of the Southern cordially invites an examination of the System's record measured by these standards.
It invites this knowledge of its strong financial standing, particularly among the people of the South—its customers and its employees—because their cooperation has done much to make the Southern what it is today, a transportation organization in which the whole South has a right to take pride.
Greater participation in Southern Railway financing in the future by its own customers and employees will make the Southern still more an institution of the South.
