COLLECTION OF TRASH CAUSES TROUBLE IN CITY

People Lax About Manner of Throwing It in Street, According to Q. E. Smith.

The City Engineering Department is now having trouble about its trash collecting system which was recently installed.

According to Capt. Q. E. Smith, city engineer, people are too lax about observing the regulations and as a result other people in the community have to suffer.

When announcement was made that regular collections of trash and garbage would be begun, a schedule was published which gave the day and time this trash would be taken up by a wagon on its rounds. It was decided to give the business section of the city a collection every day, thus keeping it from accumulating on the city's front porch, as it were.

It was thought that this schedule would be sufficient to keep the place spotless. However, the citizens most benefitted, have been the slowest to co-operate, declares Mr. Smith.

An example of this lack of co-operation occurred recently, said Mr. Smith. A man with offices in the business section of the city undertook to clean them, finishing the work early in the afternoon. Instead of placing the trash in cans or else holding it until the next morning when it would have been hauled away, this gentleman dumped it down in the street soon after midday, in the midst of the retail business district.

The mere fact that the trash was there was bad enough, but to make matters worse, one of the high winds which have been so prevalent recently came that afternoon and scattered the trash, far and wide so that by the time the wagon came round the next morning, there was little left to be hauled away.

Other people have also been guilty of the same offense. In the residential districts of the city, there has been little effort on the part of the citizens to place their garbage in cans as requested.

Mr. Smith is making a request that the residents in the community be more careful in the time of putting the trash out and also in the manner of putting it out. This will give better service and will assist in keeping the city clean, he says.

FIFTY MILE RELAY RACE TO BE RUN IN CONCORD

Day Before Thanksgiving Set For Contest Between Salisbury and Concord Boys.

As a sequel to the recent Inter-City Bicycle race between Salisbury and Concord, a similar race will be held the day before Thanksgiving in Concord at the Fair Grounds between representatives of the two cities.

Boys of the same ages as the ones which were eligible last Saturday will be admitted in this race and will compete for a large silver loving cup which has been presented for this purpose by the local Y. M. C. A.

The contest is to be in charge of J. W. Denny, local physical director, who will conduct it as part of the Y work with the boys.

According to the plans which have been made, the total distance of the race is to be 50 miles. It will be run in relay with part of the boys doing half-mile stages, part mile stages and a third group in two mile stages.

At the last week's race, run on the Statesville-Salisbury Highway, Salisbury boys nosed out their Concord opponents and won the silver loving cup. The local boys are confident that they will defeat the visitors this time.

Woman's Right to Kiss Upheld. Cologne, Nov. 3.—A woman's right to kiss during hours of employment has been established by the Cologne courts.

The proprietor of a local cafe dismissed a girl employe on the spot without giving any reason for his action. The girl brought a suit for damages.

During the hearing of the case her employer stated he had always held a high opinion of her, but a guest had seen her kissing one of the waiters and had reported the matter to him. He contended that he had every right to dismiss her for this, but the court decided otherwise, and awarded the girl damages for wrongful dismissal.

CAROLINA HOPES TO WIN ON SATURDAY

With Full Squad Available Victory Over V. M. I. Seems Possible.

Chapel Hill, Nov. 4.—The Tar Heels came out of the Maryland game in Baltimore last Saturday without any injuries to take away the services of more of the Carolina players, and this week the Fetzers are pointing the Tar Heels for the game with V. M. I. in Richmond.

The Flying Cadets seem to have found themselves last after a rather mediocre start this season, and in their last few games they have shown a powerful aggregation.

While the Tar Heels were in Baltimore winning from Maryland the Cadets were entertaining the Lynchburg College eleven at Lexington. The Flying Squadron opened a bag of tricks that contained every known method of advancing the ball, running the overwhelming score of 33 to 0 over the Lynchburgers.

Two scores by line backing, two by forward passes, and one by a long one that were the high lights of the game. The versatile offensive that was featured by the playing of Windy White, V. M. I. fullback.

The chances of the Tar Heels against V. M. I. depend in a large way on the ability of the Carolina defense to stop White. It is hoped that several of the Tar Heel backs who have been on the hospital list will be in shape to start against the Cadets.

The reserves showed up mighty well last Saturday when they turned the dope pot over and downed the Old Liners, and if Bonner, Devin and Ferrell are able to play in Richmond it will add much to the Tar Heel offensive.

The game next Saturday begins to assume the importance that was attached to the V. M. I. game in 1924. That year the game seemed certain to settle the claims of the Tar Heels to S. I. C. honors.

This year a victory will materially strengthen their chances of finishing the season with a clean sheet against conference teams.

The Tar Heels will not be without backers in the stands when they go out on the field, for the victory over Maryland has raised the hopes of the Carolina student body and the special train that goes to the Virginia capital will be loaded with Carolina rooters.

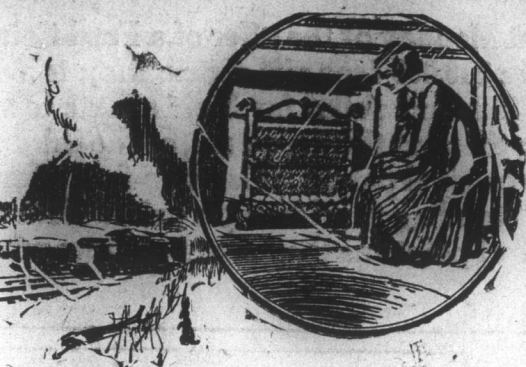

Led by Cheerleader Bob Hardee and Rauness JV, Tar Heel mascot, the Carolina cheering section will vie with the V. M. I. cadet corps in producing noise.
