IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

LETTER FROM FLORIDA
W. R. Blackwelder Writes Again of His Experiences There.
720 Fern St., West Palm Beach, Fla. November 8, 1925.

Mr. Editor:
I am sending a letter giving some idea of things as they are in Florida. I have been here only a short while, and when I came here I thought all the stories about different places and different things were all false. But after traveling over a good portion of the State I believe everybody except the real estate agent, J. F. Carline, J. L. Garver, W. D. York, J. R. Cline, F. J. Lewey and myself visited Indian Town today and learned something about their habits and living conditions. The town is 50 miles west of here and to reach it you travel through about 25 miles of swamps that are alive with fish, turtles, alligators and fowls of different kinds. The first Indian we visited was Ben Tommy and family, consisting of his wife and two children, Mary and Ignat. Their dwellings were three sheds covered with palmetto leaves. Their furniture consisted of a few boxes to sit on. The table was made of slabs laid on two poles with the flat surface up. Their beds were made likewise. Their bedding consisted of a few blankets. The baby cradle was a small cloth tied by cords each corner and tied to the roof of their house. Their livestock consisted of two pigs, about 20 dogs and a few chickens. Neither woman or child would speak till ordered by the husband or father to do so.

Ben was dressed in overalls and barefooted. His wife was clothed in garments containing every color of the rainbow and wore several strings of beads of different colors and sizes. Most of her years old, was clothed in colors and her dress reached to her feet. They never wear any shoes. The women make belts, necklaces, fobs, bracelets and other articles of beads for sale.

The second family was Ada Tiger and mother and two real old squaws. It is claimed the two old women were children during the Indian war and had two slaves captured at St. Augustine. Ada's house was about the same as the first we visited. They have a goodly number of dogs and one pig tied with a string. Some Indian ponies and some cattle. Most of the Indians of this state have moved on to what is known as the Big Saw Grass and have nothing to do with white people at all. On our way back we stopped on the Saint Lucy Canal, which is 200 feet wide, 20 feet of water, and 45 miles long. Here we took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Alvarez. The dinner consisted of cornbread, grits, butterfish right from the canal, and coffee. It was greatly enjoyed by all who were there. These good people gave us a hearty welcome and we promised to visit them again.

Now I will say a few words in regard to the building problem here. Material is very difficult to get. And plenty of men are walking around out of employment. I am still holding a crew of Concord men together, but I can't say how long I will be able to handle the situation. My contract with the company ends December 17th and I may not be able to go that long. I am starting on a 420 mile drive tomorrow for lime and cement. A number of jobs have closed down here. I have six jobs going and I sure have a hard time keeping things going.

I am mailing you a check for which please send me The Daily Tribune till I notify you to stop it. Wishing all my friends the best of luck. I remain, Respectfully yours,
W. R. BLACKWELDER.

RAIN HERE RESULT OF STORM IN THE SOUTH
Many Sections of South Covered by Storm That Carried Rain and High Winds.
The rain of Thursday was driven to Concord on the tail end of a wind storm that swept over Alabama and other Southern States this week, judging from press reports. The storm was centered in Alabama apparently, and had practically spent its force when it reached North Carolina. Rising temperatures accompanied the rain despite the fact that the rain was riding the crest of a wind. However, after the rain ceased Thursday afternoon the wind increased in force, sending the temperatures down again.

Scores of thousands of leaves were hurled from trees into yards and streets by the winds. The street cleaning force had barely cleaned the streets of Sunday's fall when the wind rose Wednesday night and Thursday it was impossible to tell that the streets had ever been cleaned.

Weather predictions for clear and colder weather, issued Thursday, seem well founded for the sun rose in magnificent glory this morning and while temperatures have not dropped sufficiently to bring real wintry weather, they have been driven to a point lower than on Wednesday and Thursday and it is predicted that they will be still lower tomorrow.

COTTON GINNED
In Cabarrus 3,993 Bales Were Ginned This Year More Than Last Prior to November 1st.
Through the bureau of the census, the department of commerce of the United States has announced the preliminary report of cotton ginned in North Carolina counties for the crops, 1924 and 1925, prior to November 1st.

Quantities, says the report just received here, are in running bales, counting round as half bales. Linters are not included.

The following are comparative figures of Cabarrus and contiguous counties:

Cabarrus	11,510	7,547
Frederick	32,272	5,404
Mecklenburg	17,022	9,783
Rowan	11,954	6,043
Stanly	7,423	4,271
Union	25,079	14,203

CHRISTMAS GOODS COME IN UNBROKEN STREAM

Merchants Are Giving Much Time and Thought as Wares For Holiday Season.
Christmas goods are coming in an unbroken stream now to Concord business houses. While the shopping season has not formally opened, it is just around the corner and local merchants are determined to be ready for the staunchest supporter of the doctrine of early shopping.

Most of the Christmas goods were purchased several months ago but their shipments were not ordered until this month, generally speaking. Local merchants did not want to store them longer than necessary, although they did most of their buying some time ago.

The Christmas shopping season begins in earnest here about the first of December, with the high tide of buying coming the last two weeks before Christmas. According to one local merchant shoppers are buying now only materials to be used in the making of gifts, the gifts proper to be brought nearer Christmas day.

While the curtailed operation program of the local cotton mill has been felt in business circles here, it is hoped by Concord merchants that the mills will be in full operation in the near future. Regardless of conditions, however, they expect a big volume of Christmas trade, for it has been their experience in the past that local persons can always manage to get the money when the time for Christmas buying comes around.

Many merchants in the city declare their stock of goods for the Yuletide season will be the best and most elaborate they have ever carried.

HE HAS GOOD REASON TO REJOICE

This Man Says Since Taking HERB JUICE He Is Enjoying Better Health Than He Has For a Long Time.

"Your HERB JUICE is certainly a wonder when it comes to giving relief from stomach trouble and constipation. It did more than I expected in such a short time," said Mr. Egar Miller, who is highly connected with the Franklin Mill, Concord, N. C., in an interview with the HERB JUICE man a few days ago.

Continuing his statement to the HERB JUICE representative, Mr. Miller had the following to say: "For a long time I had been in poor health; my chief ailments were indigestion. I was also bothered a great deal with liver and kidney trouble. Regardless of how careful I was about what I ate, I suffered terribly with gas on stomach and heartburn. I had a tired aching feeling in my back in the mornings and my sleep and rest at night were very broken. While I had taken different remedies trying to get relief it seemed that I never found a thing that just suited my case until HERB JUICE was recommended to me and I gave it a good tryout. It did not take very long after I began using the HERB JUICE to convince me that I had found the right medicine and I knew it was to give me wonderful relief, which it has already done; in fact, more than anything I have ever used. Since I have taken it regularly for several months I do not really feel like the same person. My complexion has cleared up; I have a better appetite and more energy than I have enjoyed for a long time. I am never troubled any more with constipation, as my bowels are regular and my liver is in splendid working condition. The gas pains, bloating and belching spells I had as a result of indigestion trouble have disappeared and now I eat such food as I desire and digest properly. This is something indeed to be thankful for, and it certainly gives me reason to rejoice over my improved condition. I know beyond any question of doubt that HERB JUICE is the greatest system purifier and general body builder I have ever used. It gives me great pleasure to recommend such a wonderful medicine to my friends and everyone as one remedy they can take with confidence of being benefitted."

HERB JUICE is sold in Concord by Gibson Drug Store and guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. Also F. L. Smith Drug Co., Kannapolis, N. C.

November's Shooting Stars.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—The Leonid meteors are about to pay us another visit. They give us a call every November, and usually they are most prominent about the 14th of the month. They are called Leonids because all the meteors seen at this time appear to come from one particular region of the sky. This region is occupied by the constellation Leo.

Shooting stars are lumps of metal and rock that come from outer space. Scientists have said that they are the wreckage of smashed-up worlds. Most of them are very small—about the size of a pill. They begin to shine only after they enter the atmosphere of the earth. As a matter of fact, it is the friction of the air as they rush through it that makes them glow. Being so small, most of the meteors are consumed before they reach the earth, but occasionally a meteor is big enough to survive its passage through the air. It may even be recovered and deposited in some museum.

The Leonid meteors travel in a well-defined path around the sun, and take thirty-three years to accomplish the journey. The meteors are scattered all along the path, but the majority of them are gathered together into a shoal in one particular portion of the orbit. It is only when the earth in its journey enters the zone of the meteors that we get a shower. If the earth happens to plunge into the shoal, we get an exceptional display.

Meteors are closely connected with comets, and the November meteors follow the path traced out by the comet known as Tempel's. In fact, it has been proved that a comet is nothing but a compact swarm of meteors. Comets and shooting stars are supposed to have come originally from somewhere in far-off space, but were captured by the attraction of one of the larger planets, and so become permanent members of the solar system.

The Junior Red Cross now comprises over 5,000,000 American school boys and girls who are enrolled under its motto: "I Serve." No one has expressed better the purpose and ideals of the Juniors than Woodrow Wilson. In one of his messages to the school children while he was president, he said:

"Your education will not be complete unless you learn how to be good citizens, and the Junior Red Cross teaches you simple lessons of citizenship through its organization and its activities. It will instruct you in ideal and habits of service, will show you how to be useful to your school, and how to aid the older people in your community in their efforts to promote the health and comfort of the people among whom you live. It is your generation which must carry on the work of our generation at home and abroad and you cannot begin too soon to train your minds and habits for this responsibility."

Through their international correspondence, the Juniors of America are constantly exchanging ideas and ideals with Juniors of other lands. They are weaving bonds of friendship which possibly will have its effect in the promotion of international understanding and amity.
