Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer

Washington, Nov. 18.—Going home pretty late, some nights ago, I happened to glance upward, toward about the seventh floor of a certain Washington skyscraper, and immediately my eye was caught by the peculiar twinkling of a lone light in an upper-story window. They were rapid winks, at slightly irregular intervals. While no wire or wireless operator, due to past business activities I do know a little about the telegraph code—not enough to read it, but enough so that I recognized, in this wink-wink-wink-wink-wink, something extraordinarily like Morse.

That, probably, is all I had thought about it if, passing the same way a night or two later, I hadn't witnessed the phenomenon again. Moved by an undignified curiosity, I got a telegrapher friend to take a look.

'Twas even as I'd suspected. Some thirty party was "S. O. S." furiously for liquor, and it must have been quite a large party, considering the amount and variety of refreshments it was ordering from off in the darkness, toward Arlington.

The Agriculture Department has been at great pains to tell the world that it has no objection to kissing. Why, you ask, should the department suppose anybody did suspect it of objecting? Because it received a whole stack of letters, accusing it of just that thing.

What happened was this: The department issued a bulletin declaring war on mistletoes. With Christmas so close at hand, the country evidently jumped largely to the conclusion that Secretary Jardine was launching an anti-osculation campaign. In reality, it appears, the bulletin was inspired by the forest service, which dislikes mistletoe solely on the ground that it kills trees.

So He Never Called on Her Again

Jack Long, 26, of Los Angeles, left the home of his sweetheart one night and was waylaid by two rival suitors. They put him in a barrel, rolled it up and put it on a railroad track. Long managed to roll himself off the track and went down a 20-foot embankment, where he was found hours later. He is recovering in a hospital.
