IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

OUKRAINSKY'S LOYALTY TO HIS ART AND PUBLIC

Great Dancer Gives Performance in Mexico City Despite Fact That He Was Badly Injured.

The long arm of coincidence performs many strange tricks, as witness the experience of Serge Oukrainsky, of the Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet, appearing at the High School auditorium next Tuesday.

Mr. Oukrainsky's career as a ballet dancer came near being ended in Mexico City last spring.

When the Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet was engaged for a five weeks season in the Mexican capital the advance demand for seats was so great that it was decided to give the performances in the large arena which is ordinarily used for the great Spanish sport of bull fighting. A stage was built in the arena facing what would be called the "grandstand seats" in this country, and this stage was not entirely completed when the ballet arrived.

On the morning preceding the first performance, Mr. Oukrainsky called a rehearsal, and the workmen who were putting the finishing touches on the improvised stage withdrew, leaving the structure to the ballet. Mr. Oukrainsky was standing in front of the ensemble of ballet girls giving the scene of this is that the ballet from far above in the flies a heavy piece of timber came hurtling down. Mr. Oukrainsky jumped back, but not quite far enough, for the timber in its descent caught him a glancing blow on the head, rendering him unconscious. He was removed to the hospital, ordinarily used for injured bull fighters, and a physician discovered that he had a gash seven inches long across the head.

It was believed it would be impossible for him to take part in the performance that night, but when the local manager, who had booked the ballet in Mexico City expressed regret at a change of program, Mr. Oukrainsky, despite the fact that he was suffering agony, resolved to go on. He did so, but collapsed immediately after the performance. The coincidence of this is that the ballet in which he was to appear was "Samson and Delilah" in which, as part of the performance, the blind Samson, his strength returned, pushes over the pillars of the temple which in falling crush him beneath them.

More Big Things For Stanly.
Stanly News-Herald.

There seems to be little doubt but that work is to start within the next few weeks or months on another big power dam on Stanly's eastern border. For several years it has been recognized that the Carolina Power & Light Company has had its eye on the power possibilities of the Great Pee Dee at two points where it winds its way along the eastern border of this county. One of these sites was at Swift Island and the other several miles lower down near Norwood. It is understood that the company at one time contemplated two dams, one at each point, but if current reports, which seem to be well founded, be true, the company will build only one dam—a big one—and it is to be built near the town of Norwood, and to be high enough to back the water up to the lower Badin dam, above Swift Island. That will mean that every foot of the Yadkin and Pee Dee along the eastern border of Stanly will have been utilized and developed. It will mean greater commercial and industrial opportunities for this town and county, and brings the prediction of Mr. Bion Butler that "this generation will see Stanly County the home of upwards of a million," a step nearer. There is no telling what may be in store for this entire section of the State in a very short time. It is too much to predict that many of those old yet old men here may live to see Albemarle with a population of several hundred thousand.

The Passing of Senator Foil.
Charlotte Observer.

Concord has lost one of its most active promoters and Cabarrus county one of its most enthusiastic champions in the death of Major-Senator W. A. Foil, for he was conspicuous in both military and civic service. In recent years he was brought more prominently before the people of the state as a senator from the twentieth district, composed of Cabarrus and Mecklenburg, and in the State capital he proved anything but a dummy. He was particularly devoted to the cause of amending a condition of inequality that exists in the pension law. He took leadership in all progressive directions and had gained a position of respect and influence among his fellow senators. Major Foil was active in all movements for the welfare of town and county and in this later years proved a citizen of invaluable service. He was a man of attractive personality and had about as many friends and admirers in Mecklenburg as surrounded him in his native county. He will be missed from the activities of the community from which he has dropped and he will be missed in political and constructive circles at Raleigh.

SLEEPING QUARTERS IN CITY HALL BEING USED

Almost Every Night New Some Stranger Asks Police Officers for Place to Sleep.

Sleeping quarters maintained by the city on the third floor of the city hall, are being used with regularity now. In most instances persons using the quarters are headed home from Florida, being unable to pay for lodging in a hotel or private home.

The city keeps several beds in the quarters and no charge is made for their use. Persons wanting a place to sleep and able to show they are not professional beggars are taken care of there by the city.

Five strangers were quartered by the city last night, police officers reported this morning. These strangers, all men, were headed north and east from Florida where they spent all their money after being unable to secure rooms in Tampa. They stated they had autos in Florida but had to store them until they can get money enough to run them back home.

One of the men who spent the night here was a carpenter. He said he had been in Florida for several months but lack of building materials made it impossible for him to make a living. He could get plenty of work, he said, when there was anything to work on.

Two of the strangers said they drove autos for a Florida concern but when pay-day came their manager could not be found. They were in a party that drove 2,500 cars from one city to another but they could not find the man with the money when they reached their destination. These men talked intelligently not only of conditions in Florida but of national and international affairs, showing the effects of a training they said they received in a big eastern college.

Stubborn Blaze in Basement of Jail.

Dense Smoke Handicapped Work of Firemen Who Had Trouble Reaching Jail.

The basement of the county jail was slightly damaged this morning when papers and boards used to fire the furnace which heats the jail and court house became ignited. Dense smoke handicapped the work of the firemen.

The blaze was discovered about 9:15 this morning when smoke began pouring from windows and doors of the jail basement. At first no blaze could be seen through the smoke but after the firemen used chemicals for some time they cleared the basement sufficient to locate the fire.

Firemen could not get into the basement when they first reached the jail on account of the smoke. Water and chemicals soon extinguished the blaze with little damage to the building.

It was necessary to cut a hole through one of the basement walls on the stream of water could be piped on the pile of papers and kindling in which the fire started.

Prisoners in the jail were not removed as the blaze never assumed serious proportions.

Reward For Slayer of "Dad" Watkins.
Stanly News-Herald.

Last week The News-Herald noted that the board of county commissioners had offered a reward of $300 to the person furnishing evidence sufficient to convict the person or persons who murdered "Dad" Watkins and threw his body in a burning barn on the night of October 31st. To this $300, Governor McLean has added $200, making the total amount to $500. That amount is worth going after, and that some slick sleuth will soon be on the trail of the murderer, there is little doubt, and although it may require some time to secure sufficient evidence upon which a prosecution can be based, yet it is pretty certain that the time is not so far ahead when the country may have its eyes on the party who committed that awful crime. It is known that several are at work on the job but ready and certain parties are under the closest surveillance almost constantly, without knowing it.

"ACHED & ACHED"

Lady Says Her Back "Hurt Night and Day"—Least Noise Upset Her. Better After Taking Cardui.

Winfield, Texas.—"My back hurt night and day," says Mrs. C. L. Eason, of R. F. D. 1, this place. "I ached and ached until I could hardly go. I felt weak and did not feel like doing anything. My work was a great burden to me. I just hated to do up the dishes, even. I was no-account and extremely nervous."

"My mother had taken Cardui and she thought it would do me good, so she told me to take it. My husband got me a bottle and I began on it. I began to improve at once. It was such a help that I continued it until after the baby's birth."

"I took eight bottles and I can certainly say that it helped me. It is a fine tonic. It built me up and seemed to strengthen me. I grew less nervous and began to sleep better."

"I can certainly recommend Cardui to expectant mothers, for to me it was a wonderful help. In every way I felt better after taking it and I think it is a splendid medicine."

Cardui is purely vegetable, and contains no harmful drugs. For sale everywhere. NC-143

CHAS. C. MOORE WRITES OF 'COL. HARRIS' EARLY WORK

His Friend of a Half Century Tells Tales Over Course of Long Career.

Now that Col. Wade Harris editor of The Charlotte Observer, is entering upon his second half century of North Carolina journalism and his readers and fellows of the fourth estate are preparing to celebrate the occasion, comes C. C. Moore, former Mecklenburg county clerk of superior court, with interesting reminiscences on the colonel's early work as a scribe and a reporter.

Mr. Moore is spending a while in Asheville and writes from there. His letter was addressed to the managing editor of The Observer. Colonel Harris will have first knowledge of the resurrection of his yarn as to the wonderful Cabarrus county pumpkins at breakfast table this morning along with the other readers.

"One time a youth at school in the Poplar Tent community of Cabarrus county," Mr. Moore writes, "was inspired to write to the Concord Sun. His subject was 'Pumpkins and Corn'—on the farm of Col. J. Shakespeare Harris. He described the growth of the pumpkin vines as being so fast that the little pumpkins could not keep up with the vines. He said that the corn was so tall and dense that it was dark at noontime and the lightning bugs were flashing, as if it were night."

"The communication was signed 'Wade H. Harris.'"

"My next reading after the youthful contributor was his reporting a great event of much interest in our section—commencement at Davidson College. I wish I could reproduce that write-up of the oratorical achievements of Frank I. Osborne, W. C. Maxwell, Thos. H. Brem, Alex. Sprunt, Lash Gaither and others. All of these soared fluently over the heads of the audience, but their efforts were completely overshadowed in the report to papers from the brain and pen of that same youth, Wade H. Harris. Cock Fight Story."

"Along about 1875, our centennial year, young Harris came to Charlotte and began reporting for The Observer. What he wrote for the papers in those days would now be questioned as to the truth. It was true however. His report of the cock fight in the rear of 'Our House' was accurately reported to the finish, when Col. Tom Black's 'Flirty Eye' cock was the victor."

"His description of the fight in the rear of Elias and Cohn's store at the time Cap Orr whipped four white men and a negro. Cap finally submitting to arrest to his one-armed brother Joe Orr, was far more thrilling than is anything on the sport page of today."

"Young Harris did not devote all his time to cock fights back lot fights or to notable affairs on the 'warpath' round about."

"His vision went far ahead to what Charlotte would be some day. He made suggestions. He told what was needed. He pleaded for the right, he condemned the wrong, he was fair and impartial in all his reporting. Always a Booster."
