WILL CONTINENTAL EUROPE BAN THE SUBMARINE?

Suggestion is made in England that the submarine be banned as a weapon of war. It should be put in the same class with poison gas, say the English, because it is a beastly and inhumane weapon.

All implements of war are beastly and inhumane. The submarine can fire upon passenger boats is one argument against it, yet the same argument could be used against other craft.

Italy, France, Germany and some of the smaller nations can be counted on to vigorously protest against the proposal to outlaw the submarine, for the undersea craft is the one weapon of sea warfare these nations have against the British.

If Great Britain wants the submarine outlawed it will have to make concessions as to the size and strength of her navy. Continental Europe can blockade Great Britain and it is not likely that the nations of the world will give up their blockade weapon unless Great Britain is willing to give up the weapons with which she can blockade continental Europe.

"It is a beastly thing to sink a passenger ship on the high seas," admits the New York World, "but it is also a beastly thing to blockade and starve a nation." The World admits it has no solution for the problem, but it believes this much is plain:

"The solution will be found not so much by agreements to scrap submarines or cruisers, or by drawing up rules of etiquette for them, but by establishing international institutions and international laws with interlocking guarantees which will provide a substitute for war and for the arbitrary use of force. Disarmament at sea will follow the establishment of an international order at sea; in the meantime there will be no more disarmament than there is order."

"What the world needs is a concentration of its thought upon the problem of security at sea like that which went into the making of the covenant, the drafting of the Locarno treaties. Those are the foundations upon which ultimately land disarmament may become possible. When some thing similar has been laid as a foundation for security at sea the completed task of the Washington Conference might be carried to its conclusion."

WHAT WILL THE BAPTISTS DO?

For some time the public has been waiting with unusual interest for the State Baptist Convention with the idea that something very startling was likely to happen. It is no secret that certain ministers and laymen of the State are after the scalp of Dr. Poter at Wake Forest College and they have promised to take their fight to the convention floor.

Dr. Poter has stirred up the Baptists to be sure, but the big fight expected may not materialize. Archibald Johnson, of Charity and Children, one of the truly great men in the State and a man with an abiding faith in his church and its teachings, has issued a warning against a fight in Charlotte that may split the Church.

Other prominent members of the denomination are siding with Mr. Johnson. They do not question the Bible. They accept it as the Divine Word of God. Yet they realize that a bitter fight will bring no good and that such a fight would not change in any way the truth of the Bible.

We state here as we have done before, that Dr. Poter in our opinion, is one of the biggest men in North Carolina. He is a scholarly man and at the same time a devout man. He is the guiding spirit of Wake Forest College and its growth is due to his work and ability more than to anything else.

The State and the entire South for that matter, will watch with keen interest the outcome of the convention. It is to be hoped that if a fight on evolution comes it will leave no after-effects that will hamper the work of the denomination.

CUTEST THINGS.

New York Mirror. One night as my little son was going to bed, he asked me if I would put a spoon under his pillow.

"What do you want a spoon for?" I asked.

"Well, papa, last night I had a dream that I had some jelly and found I didn't have any spoon."

Little Willie came from school with a sad expression on his face. When asked the reason he replied, "My teacher is awful stupid, one day she tells me that 6 and 4 are 10, and today she said that 8 and 2 are 10. Now I don't know which one is right."

THE TRAFFIC TO FLORIDA

Nearly Two-Thirds of the Routings to Florida Points. Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Nearly two-thirds of the 6,024 routings issued by the touring and information bureau at headquarters and 60 branch offices of the Carolina Motor Club during the past month were to Florida points, according to Coleman W. Roberts, of Greensboro, vice-president of the club.

Tourist traffic through the state of North Carolina is increasing with amazing rapidity as cold weather approaches," he said, "while the great majority are southbound, there is a noticeable trek northward."

"Few tourists headed south definitely state their destination on entering Carolina Motor Club offices," said Mr. Roberts. "They come to secure information, and why they are indignant about their destination is a mystery. Nine times out of 10 the inquiry is: 'Can you give me the best route to Florida? East coast, west coast—it matters not to them. Florida to the majority is all-embracing,' said Mr. Roberts.

"Seven cars of tourists migrating Southward were members of the Ontario Motor League, of Canada," said Mr. Roberts. They represented six different cities in that province, but they all seemed to regard the "Sunny South" as the proverbial "Land of Promise." One individual, however, seemed eager to break all speed records to reach some "honest-to-goodness" snow. He was a member of the "Pauzants Auto Club."

WALKER DECLINES TO ANSWER ATTACK

Won't Engage in Controversy With Methodist Board of Public Morals. Miami, Fla., Nov. 17.—Refusing to comment on an attack made upon him by the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, yesterday, Mayor-elect James J. Walker, of New York, today dismissed the charge that he was in the South as the emissary of Gov. Al Smith as "just bunk."

"No politics," he said to reporters who sought to interview him. "I am going fishing as the guest of Mayor E. C. Romfh, of Miami, and all I can think of is barbaque and sailfish."

He left the Coral Gables home of Charles F. Flynn, vice president of the Bowman-Biltmore Hotel, where he was a guest this afternoon with an escort of motorcycle policemen, and boarded the Romfh yacht from which he fished until dark. He said he would not discuss his "catch" as he believed a fisherman's score should be as safe from scrutiny as a golfer's and that the people should be satisfied to know he had had a good time.

Mayor-elect Walker was not inclined to regard the attack by the Methodist body as important. He pointed out that in his speech at Atlanta Tuesday night he had said specifically he was not acting as advance agent for any candidate for president on the Democratic ticket, but was simply urging the South to stop paying attention to attacks on Tam-

DINNER STORIES

The Worm Turns. Bootlegger (to man fishing): "Have any luck?"

Man: "No." Bootlegger: "Try some of this on your bait."

Man pours something from bottle over the worm on the hook and lowers it into the war.

Soon a great splashing about is heard and the line is jerked up. The worm had a strangle-hold on a catfish and was punching him in the eye with his tail.

Counsel: "The cross-examination didn't seem to worry you. Have you had any experience in that line?"

Client: "Married three times."

"Here, here, gentlemen!" exclaimed the train conductor, finding two of his smoker passengers engaged in a brawl. "What's the trouble here?"

"My 'pocketbook's gone," replied one of the combatants when peace had been restored. "And I think he took it. He was sitting beside—"

"He's crazy!" interrupted the accused. "I never stole a penny in my life! I don't have to steal, I'm a plumber."

School Teacher: "Percival, why are you so late?"

Percival: "I went with papa to a lynching party, and we stayed until the last man was hung."

Teacher (in her severest tone): "Was hanged, Percival?"

Mary: "I wouldn't marry the best man living."

May: "Of course you wouldn't. You couldn't."

Mary: "And why couldn't I?"

May: "Because I'm going to."
