TODAY'S EVENTS

Tuesday, December 1, 1925.

Festival of St. Eloy, the patron saint of all metal workers.

One hundred years ago today died Alexander I, Czar of Russia.

If the Queen Mother Alexandra had lived until today she would have been 81 years old.

The fifth annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Canada is to be held today at Toronto.

Oklahoma City is to be the meeting place today of the annual conference of the south central division of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The foreign office in London is to be the scene of a history-making event today, when representatives of the European nations meet to sign the Locarno treaties.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover is to receive an honorary membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at a public ceremony in New York this evening.

Plans for a study of church relationship to war and a nationwide campaign of education through the churches, are to be discussed at a national study conference on the churches and world peace, to be opened in Washington today.

The opening gun of the 1926 national campaign will be fired today at Pierre, S. Dak., when the political parties of that state assemble to designate their candidates for the United States Senate and House and for state offices.

Mail Your Christmas Presents Early, Says Postmaster General.

Washington, Nov. 29.—The annual Christmas appeal to mail "early" was issued today by Postmaster General New, along with announcement of plans to expedite the service.

"The people of the United States," he said, "have it within their power to adjust the enormous holiday burden on clerks and carriers so that these, too, may enjoy the season."

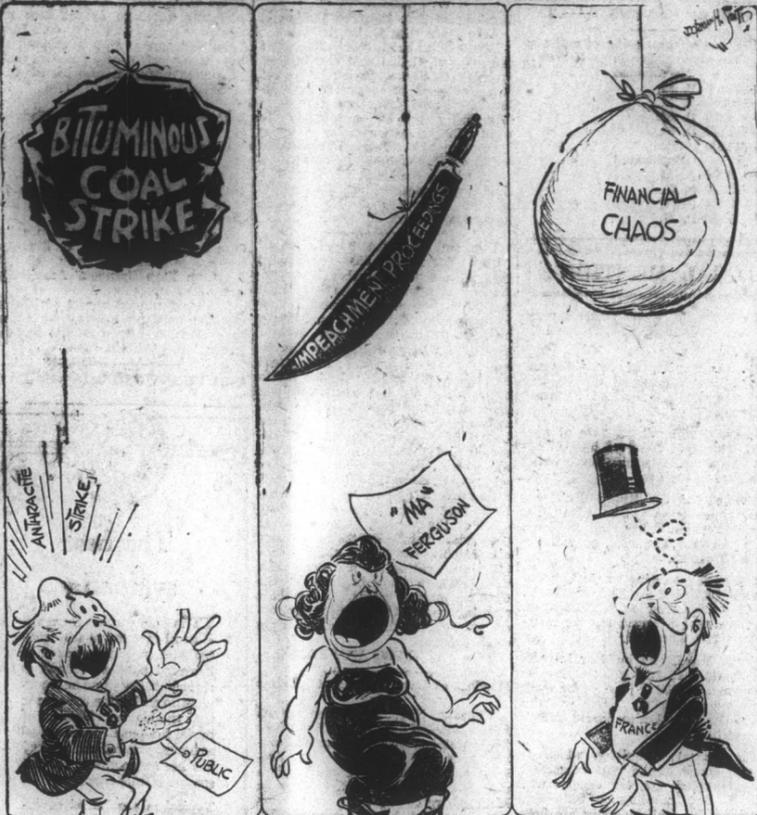

"A merry Christmas is in store for each one of us if we will only stop to consider for a few moments how the facilities of the postoffice will be taxed from now until after the holiday season," he asserted.

"The American public will do well to remember that many a hard-worked letter-carrier or postal clerk may be deprived of enjoying the Christmas day at his own fireside if the Christmas shopping and mailing is postponed until the last moment. Do not wait until tomorrow, start today."

With the annual meetings of the two major leagues close at hand, the baseball fans have their ears to the ground awaiting some news of interest. It is regarded as not improbable that some important trades may be put through at the convalesces of the club magnates, as it is known that several star players are anxious to change their club affiliations and it is possible the magnates may find some way of accommodating them.

Judging by the auspicious manner in which Winter racing has been inaugurated at New Orleans and Tinian, the sport seems booked up for a prosperous season.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer

Washington, Nov. 30.—How many Americans can tell who represents "Omaha" in Congress? Very few," answers A. D. Fairbairn, and he tells a story which sounds as if he knows what he's talking about.

Fairbairn is a Washingtonian who recently had occasion to take a trip through 15 of the 48 states, and in the course of this journey accident turned him on an investigation into the extent of the average man's familiarity with political personalities.

"Amazing ignorance" is what he found, "in all walks of life," he reports.

The accident which started him? Well, while he was in Omaha it chanced that he needed to learn the name of the congressman from the state.

"Asking it for granted that almost any local voter could tell him, he asked one. To his surprise, the voter didn't know. He asked another. Neither did the second one know."

Curious by this time, Fairbairn kept on asking until he reached the 26th of a hotel clerk, "who," he says, "scratched his head, gave the matter about three minutes' thought and then found, to his keen delight, that he actually could name Judge W. G. Sears—and Sears, by the way, is a congressman of more than average distinction. Not to know who he is in Omaha, is something like not knowing who Calvin Coolidge is in Washington."

At that, the hotel clerk was acquainted with Sears' politics.

His Omaha experience made such an impression on Fairbairn that he continued his questioning throughout the rest of his trip. It led to his discovery of the fact that "the Omaha incident" was not unusual but typical.

It was the same way about senators.

As for cabinet members, Fairbairn says he found hardly anybody who could name all of them correctly.

PROHIBITION AGENTS WARNED BY MEEKINS

Tells Them They Must Stop Shooting at Supposed Liquor Law Violators.

Raleigh, Nov. 30.—Judge Isaac M. Meekins this morning told federal officers that they must stop shooting at persons supposed to be prohibition violators.

The judge declared it a violation of the law to shoot at them when they flee and it is, he said, a dangerous thing to shoot into the air to frighten them. The judge cautioned the officers against assuming that violation of the prohibition act is a capital felony. It is against the law, he said, but it is not the worst crime.

He told the officers who had testified that they shot to stop Peyton Edwards in Halifax, that if a man is treated that way he has reason to think that he is being attacked and he can fight back. The judge was not right sure that a legal and moral defense could not be made.

Judge Meekins discountenances the practice of federal officers in persuading others to violate the law in order to make a case. He declared that when he is convinced of such methods used in getting evidence he will discharge the defendant. Mrs. Fannie Brown, a widow with nine children, testified that one Ben Faulkner, who has been getting up such evidence, pretended to be sick and going fishing. He asked her for a pint and she gave the fellow the liquor that her husband had before he died. Faulkner, from her testimony, must have needed the liquor. "She said he drank nearly all of it."

Beware of Medical Fakers.

Dr. Register, in Progressive Farmer. You have some chronic ailment that has not been benefited by your family doctor. What are you to do? You see page advertisements of doctors or medical institutes in your favorite daily newspaper, and in first class magazines. What must you do about these highly advertised specialists? You are making a sad mistake if you let these advertising sharks take your time and money. Time is quite an item in the cure of diseases. With a great many diseases, there is a time when they are curable. This time is often of short duration. This is the time when you need a real doctor, not an advertising faker.

This is the way some of the advertisers work. They advertise to cure a certain disease—probably the victim sees this ad, and thinks he has this disease. He writes to the faker and they send him a long list of symptoms. There are certain symptoms that you have with most all diseases. They give such a long list of symptoms that a few strike your case exactly. The symptoms you have, after reading and re-reading these advertisements, stand out more and more prominently until the other symptoms that you do not have pale into insignificance, and you become morally sure that this is your trouble. Then begins a lively correspondence with loads of testimonials, the most of them fakes.

Many modern business girls in London will have cause to remember with gratitude the vestry of the Church of St. George the Martyr, Southwark, which is famous for its associations with Dickens' "Little Dorcy." The rector of the church has invited all business girls working in the vicinity to use the vestry as a club room, where they can eat their lunch and rest.

The Georgia-Florida Golf League, made up of Moultrie, Valicosta, Bainbridge, Quitman and Thomasville in Georgia, and Tallahassee, Florida, has the distinction of being the oldest regularly organized "golf league" in the United States.

In three cities of the United States women now fill the important federal position of collector of customs.
