VENUS II—OF KANNAPOLIS. (With Apologies to Venus of Faith) Kannapolis, Dec. 2.—We have been gadding about quite a bit lately. Last Tuesday we spent about an hour in the office of John S. Carpenter, the general secretary of Cabarrus Y. M. C. A. He told us some of the funniest stories we ever heard. Mr. Carpenter has three personalities: When he is plain "John Carpenter" he is just a common ordinary cuss; when he is "John S. Carpenter" he is quite a jovial fellow, but when he is "J. Sampson Carpenter" my! my! he is a polished gentleman of high degree.
From there we went over to the Cannon Y. M. C. A. and visited Mr. Edward Sharpe, the secretary of that institution. We found him in a very friendly mood and said he was highly honored in having Venus call on him. He told us about making a business trip to Landis last week. He had a fine time in spite of the fact that he had two punctures and a blowout. He is planning on taking a trip to Cook's Crossing the first part of next week. He is very fond of traveling. We like Mr. Sharpe because our cousin Zeb has red hair and he is one of the finest fellows in the world and we all love him.
Then we visited Bert Durham's meat market and had a fine visit with Bert. Bert is now making a specialty of raising potatoes on his farm. He showed us a potato weighing 9 lbs. 4 ounces. If you can beat that for potatoes trot out your potatoes.
Just as we were coming out we met our old friend, Hank Barton, who asked us to take a ride with him to Concord in his new Ford. Hank used to be in our Sunday School class. In Concord we spent most of our time in the five and ten cent store, buying Christmas presents for our friends. We always like to buy things at the 5 and 10 cent store, for then we know what we are getting.
Tom Widenhouse raised seven and a half acres of corn this year and he invited about thirty of his friends to a husking spree last Friday. The day was spent in undressing and pulling the hair out of the ears. There was fun galore but the funniest incident was when Walter Yost started to toss the barn with a load of corn. The old gray horse got scared because some of the ears were bigger than his own and ran away. No damage was done except the strewing of the corn for about a mile.
A fine dinner was served including hard cider. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lady, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Yost, Dr. and Mrs. Troutman, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Halstead, Dr. and Mrs. Parks, Dr. and Mrs. Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sampson Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Jolley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Burley Beaver, Dr. Bernard, Jazzy Moore, Mrs. Lois Earnhardt, and Venus.

Officers Advise Relatives of Arrests and Await Information From Them. Harry Johnson, Harry Hager and Frank Willauer, youths from Chester, Pa., who were arrested several days ago in Spartanburg, S. C., with an automobile stolen from this city, will be sentenced next Wednesday. They were taken into police court here yesterday and asked the court to notify their relatives of their predicament before passing sentence on them.
Hager, who first told the officers that his name was Starkey, admitted yesterday that he gave the wrong name because he was ashamed to give his right name. His father is a police officer in Chester, Pa., he added.
The three youths, the oldest being 16, talked rather freely with officers yesterday. They were in high school at Chester, they said, but owing to the fact that their families are large ones, decided to go to Florida to make some money. They were careful not to damage the car they stole here, they told the officers, adding that they were going to use it only so long as its supply of gasoline held out.
Hager said he knew what his father would do to him when he heard of his case, but added that he was not going to tell him. "I am going to write my mother," he said, "for I know she will help me."
Judge Caldwell advised Chief Talbirt to communicate with relatives of the boys and to secure birth certificates and other data by next Wednesday when he will make disposition of the cases.

KANNAPOLIS VOLLEYBALL VETERANS BEAT CHARLOTTE Cabarrus Team Wins Three Out of Four Games With Mecklenburg Sextet Wednesday Night. The Kannapolis prize winning volleyball sextet was victorious Wednesday night over Charlotte in three out of four games played, the contest being one of the hardest fought affairs ever played on the Charlotte floor.
From the start it was apparent that the game would be a close one, but the more experienced team of last year's champ showed its metal and was able to down the flashy Charlotte team.
After Kannapolis had taken the first two games by scores of 15-9, 15-10, Charlotte made a heroic stand and for a period of almost fifteen minutes the game stood at naught, with neither side able to take the winning point. Several brilliant stabs from the net gave the Mecklenburg boys the game, however, after so long a time.
The final game saw the Charlotte team working desperately to stem the tide but they were unable to hold the veterans and lost by a score of 15-11.
Every man on the Kannapolis team starred, brilliant teamwork featuring were Allison, Brown, Alford, Lockman, Lindsay, Wlowe and Gilliam.

WRITES ABOUT PENSIONS FOR CERTAIN VETERANS Spanish-American War Veterans Entitled to Certain Pensions, It is Said. According to a letter recently received by Mayor C. H. Barrier, Spanish-American War Veterans are entitled to certain pensions from the federal government. The law covering the pensions was passed June 5, 1920, and two provisions should be of interest to veterans of the war with Spain. These provisions provide pensions for all ex-soldiers, ex-sailors and ex-marines who served in the Spanish-American War and who were honorably discharged and are now over sixty-two years of age; and to those who are at present materially disabled from earning their living by hard labor from disease, if the disability be not the result of their own misconduct. It is said that the soldier does not have to be sixty-two years of age to get a pension under the disability clause.
Veterans of the county and city who are interested in the law should correspond with their representative in Congress if they feel that they have legal claim under this law.

MYERS PARK METHODIST NAME GIVEN TO CHURCH New Congregation Officially Designated at Dinner of Members. Charlotte Observer. The Myers Park Methodist church, south, was the name officially given to the newly organized congregation in the Charlotte suburb at the initial get-together meeting of about 100 church members and their guests at Efird's dining room Tuesday night. The name finally selected was chosen over several other names submitted. Myers Park won over St. James by the vote of 57 to 38. Providence Place and Duke Memorial were among other names suggested.
Organization of the church was authorized at the recent session of the western North Carolina conference. The former Myers Park community store at Queens road and Providence road has been purchased and is being arranged for worship. Seats and a heating plant are being installed and the place will be ready in about two weeks. The second floor will be used for the Sunday school. The membership is approximately 75 persons with a like number enrolled in the Sunday school.

DISCUSS HOSPITAL AT CAUCUS HERE YESTERDAY Committee Members Informally Discuss Ways For Securing City Hospital. Several members of the committee which has in charge plans for a county hospital for Cabarrus, met yesterday and discussed informally ways for securing funds for the hospital.
It was suggested by one member of the committee that stock in a hospital might be sold, while another committee member suggested a county-wide bond issue.
Nothing definite was decided by the committee members, who agreed to discuss the matter with persons in various parts of the county so as to get opinions as to the proper manner to proceed.
A formal meeting of the committee probably will be held in the near future.

DR. R. B. RANKIN IS HEARD BY ROTARIANS Discusses the Eye at Weekly Meeting of Club at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday. Local Rotarians heard a very able discourse on the eye at their weekly meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, the discourse being made by Dr. R. B. Rankin, eye, ear and nose specialist.
Dr. Rankin and C. F. Ritchie were in charge of the program and after the business session Dr. Rankin was heard in the only talk of the meeting.
In his talk Dr. Rankin discussed various characteristics of the eye, told some reasons for cross-eyes. Muscles of the eye are not always perfectly formed, he explained, and that accounts for most cross-eyes.

Mrs. Nettie Whittington Davis Dead at China Grove. In a message received here this morning it was learned that Mrs. Nettie Whittington Davis, wife of George Davis, of China Grove, had died about 4 o'clock. She is survived by her husband and six children, the youngest an infant only a few hours old.
Mrs. Davis was well known in Concord, having made her home here since she was married to George Davis, who died in 1910. She was a very small child.
No funeral arrangements had been made this morning.

PRETTY WOMAN LURES PREACHER!

He Accompanies Her on Fast Ride and Now is in Hospital With Broken Leg. Winston-Salem, Dec. 2.—A preacher's "heart-breaking" story of how he was duped into taking an automobile ride with a strange woman, of how she wrecked the machine and now is lying in a hospital with a broken leg, with his resignation to his various churches accepted and waiting to be sued by the woman's "sweetheart" in whose machine they took their ill-fated ride, was told last night in a local high school by Rev. J. H. Broom, pastor of the Bonie Baptist Church, and several other churches in that section, says an article in the Winston-Salem Journal.
Propped up on two pillows and with a heavy growth of beard, the minister related graphically his tragic story, touching lightly on the slender brunette beauty who lured him into his present predicament.
In the afternoon he was in a hotel in Greensboro and heard her playing a piano. She played splendidly, it seemed to him. Some of the pieces were melodies he had heard in boyhood, some were impetuous marches and others were rhapsodies which set his pulse leaping and his heart quivering. One selection she finished in a wave of passion.
"Play that over again!" he pleaded whimsically.
She smiled and obligingly complied.
Before he knew it he found himself in conversation. She talked easily and without effort. After they had become fairly friendly he observed that it was about time for him to go.
"Where are you going?"
To Winston-Salem, he told her.
"Oh, that's good. . . . So am I. Come along and we'll go together. I have a heavy stock roadster, and will be glad to have you."
Before he knew exactly what he was doing, the preacher, on the spur of the moment, accepted the invitation. Last night he admitted he was convinced he had made a mistake and that if he had it to do over again he certainly would not.
Heading toward Winston-Salem they found a street closed.
"Why didn't you tell me we couldn't get out this way?"
"Because I didn't know," he replied. She appeared annoyed at the loss of time in finding the right route.
"I have a date with a man in Winston-Salem at 2 o'clock and I must get there by that time."
The minister told newspapermen that then he realized everything was not quite all right, but there was nothing left for him to do but to go through with it. It was 1 o'clock and they had only an hour to get to Winston-Salem.
"Oh, I'll drive some for you if you want me to," he offered. "I used to have a car of this make. I know it thoroughly."
She had an injured arm, said the minister, having just come out of the hospital, and he felt under obligation to assist.
After traversing a number of miles she stopped the machine and asked him if he would mind taking the wheel.
"Rev. Mr. Broom got out of the car and walked around, getting in on the driver's side. Everything went smoothly until he drove up behind a bus.
"I never could stand to ride behind a bus or a Ford," she objected, with slight irritation.
"Wait, if that's so," he consented, "we'll try to pass. But I can't pass now. There's another car coming."
Immediately after the oncoming machine dived by the bus and the machine in which Rev. Mr. Broom and the strange woman who had become so friendly with him were riding, he drove obliquely across the road as he hung on the hub of the bus, stepped on the gas and was passing when he felt the rear wheels skid and the screeching impact of their machine against the curb. Realizing the danger, he instinctively turned the steering wheel to the left to pull it away from the enormous monster of destruction roaring deafeningly alongside their car.
"The wheel had too much play in it," he told the reporters, running his hands reflectively through his dark shock of hair, and lifting his head higher from the pillow. "She had told me it didn't, but it did. . . . Anyway, they said afterwards, the car hit a telephone pole. I don't remember anything about it. I understand the woman pulled on the emergency brake and jumped out. Of course, if she did, that left me helpless, I couldn't do a thing. She was only slightly injured."
Again with much perplexity and apparent worry he ran his fingers through his hair.
"As for the woman—well, she came up here last Sunday, walked in, and after inquiring how I was getting along, announced boldly, 'business is very good! . . . I knew then what she was up to.'
Rev. Mr. Broom stated that he was merely the victim of circumstances and his deacons would clear up the incident for the satisfaction of himself and the public. His resignation, he said, had been contemplated for some time; that he had just returned from South Carolina, where he expected to be called. He denied that any pressure had been brought upon him to resign and maintained that the investigation of the deacons of his church would exonerate him beyond question.
City police hold a warrant for the arrest of Rev. Mr. Broom on a charge of reckless driving. The warrant was sworn out by Motorcycle Officer Jack Bryant, who arrived at the scene shortly after it occurred November 6th.
Miss Dell Baker, pretty twenty-six year old brunette and divorcée, was the preacher's companion on the tragic ride and when the catastrophe occurred. Since that time she was arrested in a local hotel on a charge of violating the hotel law and fined $25. Her address is given as the Clegg Hotel of Greensboro.
The car is owned by Carl Spoon, of Greensboro, and he is threatening to Come out of the Kitchen

You Can Cook with the Gas Turned Off!
YOU need no longer stay chained to the cook-stove. Too many precious hours are wasted in pot-watching and basting! The principle of cooking perfected by the Chambers Range, with patented Thermodome and Insulated Oven marks a new level of achievement in kitchen management. The gas is only burned within a Chambers Range until the cooking processes are started.
It is then turned off! Your cooking is done with the heat you now waste. Rich juices and flavor are retained. Loss of food value through shrinkage is reduced to a minimum. You save for other things than cooking, 1000 extra hours a year. Gas bills are cut in half. No other range can duplicate the performance of the special Chambers Features. There is a beautiful white porcelain, or black and white enameled model that exactly meets your requirements. You can pay for it while you enjoy its advantages.
A Demonstration Will Show You How.
