IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

CHARLOTTE YOUNGSTERS ARE FOUND IN CONCORD.

Left Homes Tuesday and Were Pleased at Prospects of Getting Back Again. Mark Ward and James Green, 13 and 11 years old, respectively, were carried back to their Charlotte homes this morning by Concord police officers who found them in the Southern passenger station here last night. The boys told the officers they ran away from their homes on Tuesday and since then had been in Salisbury and Concord.

Young Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ward, of Brevard street, he told the officers, and young Green is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Green, of Tenth street. The boys left Charlotte, they said, because Mark's father was going to whip him, James having agreed to go along as his companion.

The youths told the police officers they walked part of the way to Salisbury and back to Concord, but rode most of the way with persons who picked them up.

Mark told the officers that he ran away from home once before, going into the country where he stayed a short time. James talked as though he had never been away from home before.

Both youngsters were delighted when Chief Tabirt told them they would see that they got home. They were anxious to see their mothers, especially, they said.

When found here last night the boys had ten cents between them. They were given coats in the city hall and were fed this morning by the city.

HEAR JAMES BYERS IS PRISONER IN HICKORY

Negro Wanted Here For Murder Is Also Wanted There For the Same Charge. It Is Reported. Local officers have been advised that James Byers, negro wanted here in connection with the death of Celf Stafford, another negro, has been arrested in Hickory, his former home.

He will not be turned over to local officers, it is said, because he is also wanted in Hickory in connection with the death of a negro there. Stafford was fatally shot by Byers several weeks ago while the men were at work at the Franklin Mill. A quarrel, which started when Stafford is said to have pushed a hand truck against Byers, by accident, resulted in Byers going to his home during the dinner hour and returning with his pistol with which Stafford was shot.

Details of the charge against Byers in Hickory are not known here. The game of draughts, commonly called checkers, was played in Egypt as long ago as 1300 B. C.

ARTISTS DELIGHT WITH PROGRAM OF RARE BEAUTY

Edwin M. Steckel and Charles Tittmann Headed at Odell Memorial Organ Concert. Concord music lovers crowded the Forest Hill Methodist Church Wednesday evening when the annual concert on the Odell memorial organ was given by Edwin M. Steckel, of Gausonia, and Charles Trowbridge Tittmann, of Washington.

Both men were consummate artists. Mr. Steckel performed on the organ with remarkable ease and facility, bringing out the tones of the instrument in delightful contrasts and never failing to keep the audience enthralled at his music.

Mr. Tittmann was a singer of rare qualities. He too had ease and poise and his tones, from the softest pianissimo to the deepest fortissimo, were always of beautiful quality. Mr. Tittmann was accompanied by Mr. Steckel.

The high point on the program was reached when Mr. Tittmann sang "The Two Grenadiers" by Shumann, interpreting this dramatic number with unusual feeling. When the climax was reached in the "Marsellaise," the singer seemed to put himself entirely in the grip of this most beautiful of national anthems, giving the audience a thrill which was only comparable to the feeling at singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" during times.

Mr. Tittmann's other high point came earlier in the evening when, as an encore to his first group of songs, and in particular to the old favorite, "The Little Irish Girl," he sang "Litte Baptiste," a French-Canadian dialect number. The humor of the piece which Mr. Tittmann cleverly brought out together with the excellent rendition of the accompaniment with its delicate tracery of notes, by Mr. Steckel, made it a general favorite.

Most spectacular of Mr. Steckel's organ numbers was his rendition of the "Triumphal March" from "Aida" by Verdi, his first piece on the program. The number, though spectacularly beautiful, did not bring out the soloist's ability as did his next selection, the Fantasia on "My Old Kentucky Home." After the presentation of the melody in this piece, when the right hand trill started, one was of the opinion that it was another of "those variation things" similar to the ancient "Nearer My God to Thee with variations." It was different, however, and delightfully different. An echo interpretation of the theme, followed by crashing full organ with heavy bass runs, made it one of the most enjoyed numbers on the entire program. "The Post and Paganant Overture," Mr. Steckel's last number, was hardly suitable for organ interpretation.

Among the other of Mr. Tittmann's songs, "The Sundown Sea," one of Mr. Steckel's own compositions, proved one of the most beautiful on the entire program. In the same brace of songs, "On the Road to Mandalay" was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Since the installation of the Odell memorial organ at Forest Hill three years ago, it has been the custom of the donor, W. R. Odell, to provide yearly concerts. These concerts have become a feature in the musical life of the city. Both the artists in Wednesday evening's concert were high in their praise of the excellence of the organ. Mr. Tittmann declaring that a similar organ would cost over $15,000 at the present time. Mr. Steckel was enthusiastic over the beauty of its tones.

MERCHANTS SAY TRADE IS GOOD AT PRESENT

Some Report That They Are Doing More Business Now Than They Did Last Year. Christmas trade in Concord is increasing daily, according to several merchants who were seen this morning by a representative of The Times and Tribune, and from now until after the holiday season is over they expect trade to be unusually fine.

Two merchants declared business this year was much better than it was at the same time last year, although the mills have been standing part of the time for several months and cotton is selling for less than 20 cents a pound.

To meet the increase in trade many local stores are remaining open at night now, and it is planned by several business concerns to add more clerks the first of the week.

With only 12 shopping days remaining, heads of stores which feature Christmas goods are urgent in their advice to shoppers to buy now. Daily the stocks of goods are being picked over and while thousands of useful and attractive gifts are left in the stores, shoppers cannot expect to find these goods if they wait too long.

NAMING DIRECTORS FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Members of Chamber Voting by Letter For Men Who Are To Serve the Next Year. Members of the Concord Chamber of Commerce are now voting by letter for the directors who are to serve the organization during 1926.

Dr. T. N. Spencer, president of the Chamber, has sent to each member a list of the personnel of the chamber, asking that 15 names on the list be checked as directors. The ballots are to be returned to Dr. Spencer at once as no ballots will be counted after December 15th.

The directors thus chosen will meet in the near future to elect other officers to serve next year.

The letters containing the lists were mailed in Concord last night, it being explained that this method of election has been selected in order that each member may have a vote and not leave this important matter to a few who would attend a general meeting.

SECURES WARRANT FOR MAN; IS FINED HIMSELF

Henry Fuell Sentenced to Chain Gang When Court Disapproves of His Action. Arthur West was tried in recorder's court yesterday for assault with a deadly weapon on a warrant sworn out by Henry Fuell. He not only was acquitted but Judge Caldwell held Fuell for malicious prosecution.

Testimony presented at the court, it is reported, not only showed that West made no assault on Fuell, but also showed that he had no weapon. Fuell was fined by the court and when he was unable to raise the money he was sentenced to serve 30 days on the chain gang.

Mrs. George R. Davis.

Mrs. Clara Annette Whittington Davis, wife of George R. Davis, of China Grove, died at her home December 3rd at the age of 39 years, eleven months and twenty-three days.

Mrs. Davis was baptized in infancy and united with Central Methodist Church, Concord, in early life and remained a member of the Methodist Church until she with her husband on June 29th, 1912, transferred their membership to Lutheran Chapel at L. Church, of which she remained a consistent member until death. She loved her church and always attended the services whenever she was at all able. She was active in the work of the Sunday school and the Women's Missionary Society of the congregation.

On December 24, 1908, she was married to George R. Davis, to which union were born seven children, all of whom survive her, viz: Robert, Henry, Mabel, George, Whittington, Margaret, Carl, Bascom, and infant son only a few hours old. She loved her family devotedly and gave her life in untiring services for their comfort and happiness. The husband has lost a true friend and a devoted wife, and the children a devoted mother. She was a good neighbor and a friend to all.

She taught her children by precept and example, she was they should live, and very nobly have they observed her teaching, for there is not a blemish on the good name of any of them, and all who are old enough are actively engaged in the work of the church.

On the day following her death the funeral services were held in Lutheran Chapel Church in the presence of a very large concourse of relatives and friends. By special request of her's before she died, Rev. C. A. Brown, her former pastor, preached the funeral sermon. Revs. C. P. Fisher and E. F. K. Foot assisted with a few appropriate remarks. Interment was made in Greenlawn cemetery. The display of flowers was most beautiful and profuse. X.

"Dear Editor—Three of Monroe's adherents say they want to drink bench water." Answer—Every fellow to his taste, as the old woman said when she kissed her cow.
