IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

DR. TURRENTINE HEARD AT CENTRAL CHURCH

President of Greensboro College Makes Plea For Christian Education in United States.

Dr. S. B. Turrentine, president of Greensboro College, the official Methodist College for women in North Carolina, preached at Central Methodist Church yesterday morning, using the sermon as a means of stressing the importance of continuing Christian education in North Carolina and in other States.

Dr. Turrentine took as his text the 34th verse of the 14th Chapter of Proverbs, "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." No nation is greater than its righteousness, he said, and humanity is a brotherhood having its basis in the Fatherhood of God. The nation that prospers is the nation in which people base their actions on the Golden Rule.

The strength of the nation, says Dr. Turrentine, lies in the home, which he said should be the citadel of any nation. "We must have religion, patriotism and education," Dr. Turrentine said, "if we have a successful nation. Religion should be the general foundation of a people's life. There is no conflict between religion and patriotism. Rather they go hand in hand. It is the same with religion and education. If we take the Bible from education we take that which has made the nation great and abiding."

Dr. Turrentine warned against the teaching of those persons who think the Bible has no place in the educational system of a nation. The first teachers, he pointed out, were religious leaders, and if we separate religion from teaching we will destroy one of the cornerstones of the foundation upon which America was founded.

"Education is necessary to national prosperity," the speaker said, "and we need the more liberal type which develops the mind and the hand. We need the kind that gives practical training, which leads to the making of a livelihood, and at the same time gives character."

The smaller colleges, Dr. Turrentine said, are giving to the world many of its greatest leaders, and in most instances these smaller colleges are supported by Churches and stress religious teaching.

We should strive to keep the Golden Rule, Dr. Turrentine said, and in closing quoted a famous woman who once said: "Only the Golden Rule of Christ can bring the Golden Age to Man." The Golden Rule can best be taught, said the speaker, in schools which teach the Bible.

TWO MEN AND STILL CAPTURED BY OFFICERS

Raid Made in No. 1 Township by Agent Widenhouse and Special Officer Medlin.

Sometime ago a man long suspected by officers in charge of No. 1 township, invited A. B. Medlin, officer of the Hartwell Mill, to visit his farm "if you think I make liquor." The invitation also included Federal Agent Dan F. Widenhouse, who, it is said, has tried several times to catch this particular man with liquor.

The officers accepted the invitation Saturday night, although they kept the matter a secret. Going to a point on Rocky River, in No. 1 township, they laid in hiding most of Saturday night, after locating a still.

Early Sunday morning two men approached and were immediately arrested. One was the man who had invited the officers to make the search. He and his companion were brought to Concord and the still destroyed.

In reporting the capture of the still one of the officers stated that there were evidences enough that the plant had been operated Saturday, although no liquor or beer could be found.

One of the men at the still, the one who had boasted to Mr. Medlin, threw a double-barreled gun on the officers when they approached him at the still. The officers did not stop, however, and the gun was taken from him without any serious trouble.

The officers did not give the names of the men.

"Madam Behave" Breaks Record

One big picture a year—an outstanding production—that is the record of most producing companies. But Al Christia, producer of high grade comedies, has broken this record. For with the release of "Madam Behave," a comedy featuring Julian Eltinge and Ann Pennington, which will have its premier showing at the Concord Theatre today and tomorrow, he has given to the motion picture public three superb comedies, namely, "Charley's Aunt," "Seven Days" and the Americanized version of Jean Arlet's celebrated French farce, which has held the stage with great success for several years past.

"Madam Behave" is a mirth-provoker of the finest type. The story deals with the efforts of a young architect, impersonated by Mr. Eltinge, to win the affection of Gwen Townley, a delicious comedy part played by Miss Pennington. They are interfered with by a pair of old Lotharios who seek to find and marry a missing woman, "Madam Brown," and when by force of circumstances, the young architect is obliged to assume the character of the woman, and finds himself the object of the persistent wooing of the two men, many laughable situations ensue. The climax is said to be as novel as it is amusing.

"Madam Behave" is said to be a cousin of "Charley's Aunt" which enjoyed and still enjoys widespread popular favor. Every role is in the hands of a capable scene comedian, the result being film entertainment of the best grade. As a young architect who assumes the disguise of "Madam Behave" Mr. Eltinge is ideally cast and with the captivating young comedienne Ann Pennington playing opposite him, the action never lags.

None of the Gang.
"Have you," Charles Dickens in your home," asked the police book agent.
"No," she snapped.
"Or a Robert Louis Stevenson?"
"No."
"Or a Gene Field?"
"No," we ain't and, what's more, we don't run a boarding house here, either. If you're looking for them fellows, you might try the house across the street."

Choosing Up

Choosing up sides is a serious business with these youthful aspirants for baseball fame at the Corral Gables Military Academy in Florida, especially so when they are being coached by no less a personage than Stanley Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, and of the Corral Gables city diamond team. The two lads certainly look in earnest. We're betting on the little fellow with the white shirt.

ALBEMARLE OVER-ADVERTISED

Albemarle Press.

One hears it frequently remarked that Albemarle is one of the most over-rated towns to be found.

This remark is most often made to apply to the local field as a mercantile center, since it has been a large drawing card for business of that class.

The fact that other large and reputable concerns such as we now have are looking this way, and actually seek entrance is a fair indication that the town has been well advertised, and is in good way to profit by the fact.

When magnificent buildings, well-kept homes, paved streets, fine schools and churches are added to a collection of cotton mills such as we have, it is but the natural thing that it reflects prosperity, and that others will want to have a share in it.

There has been prosperity all right; there has been a slow but sure climb from the smaller to the greater, until today Albemarle has attained the proportions of a small city. And in all the development noted, there has not been a more positive note than comes from our stores. They are modern; they keep well-stocked shelves; they are thrifty and energetic, and today there are hundreds of new people coming to Albemarle for their needs because of the worthwhileness of our stores.

It is perhaps true that each store feels the sharp prick of close competition; but each is a little better, works harder, and the town is a little better advertised because of the energy that is forced into play.

But we can not calculate closely and get very far before it is apparent that our payrolls are limited; our trading radius has certain confines, and when the most to be counted upon is distributed as a fair share to each of the business concerns serving the public, the pro rata portion is not large at best.

This spells congestion until relief is found. The patient is sick. Before he can get well he must have fresh

Star Cager

Ornallus "Connie" Dunn is a star opponent center on the Marquette University basketball team. A crack hot and fast foot, he's also strong in defense. He's a brother of Marquette's famous "Red" Dunn and he "rads" shines on the football field, too.

BURGLARS GET $400 FROM JAKE NEWELL'S HOME

After Taking Money, the Visitors Enjoy Frisk Which Is Also Found.

Charlotte Observer.

Entering his residence at 732 Sunnyside avenue through a side window, burglars crept into Jake F. Newell's bedroom some time Saturday night and, taking his trousers down to the first floor, stole $400 from his pockets, according to a report given police yesterday.

With the exception of a bowl of fruit, which was carried to the back porch, nothing else in the house was touched as far as could be discovered yesterday.

Mr. Newell told officers that he heard nothing during the night and until he missed his pants yesterday morning did not know that he had been robbed.

Police were unable to find any clue yesterday which might lead to the arrest of the guilty party or parties.
