All Factional Disputes Ignored in County Con-ventions Held Saturday Throughout State.

GOVERNOR McLEAN WARMLY ENDORSED

Morrison Has No Idea of Bringing Up His Ports Measure on the Floor of the Convention.

Tribune Bureau

Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, April 27.—The dove of peace hovers over the Democratic party in North Carolina, if the proceedings at county Democratic conventions the state over, held last Saturday, may be taken as criterions, and a state convention harmonious in the nth degree is freely predicted here by political lenders.

Entering the convention halls in all of North Carolina's 100 counties, delegates ignored all factional disputes which might have caused disension and disposed of the business at hand with a unnumity of ideas and opinion such as has not been exhibited in a number of years. Since the delegates came directly from the great mass of voters, the harmony that existed may safely be taken as indicative of the attitude of that great portion of the public which is affiliated with the Democratic party, the political lenders here point out.

It has been freely predicted that

There are two alternatives. One is that the convention vote to make the temporary organization permanent. This would put Mr. Felmster in the chair for the duration of the convention. The other is that a committee on organization be named to recommend a permanent chairman and secretary.

It would surprise no one to see the form course adopted. Mr. Felmster, who hails from Newton, is not only an able orator and student of the principles of his party, but a skilled parliamentarian and a man with a bost of friends over the state. It is generally conceded that his accession to the permanent chairmanship would be acceptable to all wings of the state party and unless there should be unexpected political developments.

Again Try to Raise S-51.

New London, April 27.—(P)—With a feet of boats carrying expert awail men and salvaging material arriving in the party has to give at convention time.

The state chairmanship is, of course, an entirely different matter. That position is filled by the state executive committee.

If there are any plans for stampeding the convention for any one resand with such matters design the convention for any one resand with such matters deep alknowledge of them. The convention, they predict, will adhere to a strict policy of hands-off in all preprimary scraps. It is possible, of course, that some militant supporter of one or more of the various candidates will hash upon offering a resolution laudatory to his man, but it seems likely that such tactics will be frokned upon by the convention as whole. That was the policy followed in 1924, when, with the convention ninety per cent, for McLean, no sides were taken.

Reports placed in circulation Monday that former Governor Cameron Morrison planned to revive his ports.

As the Force Which Has Made Possible the Magic Development of North Carolina.

Raleigh Bureau of The Tribune
Pinehurst, April 27.—High tribute to electricity as the force which has made possible the magic development of North Carolina, and all of America, for that matter, within the past twenty-five years, was paid by Governor A. W. McLean today in his of North Carolina, and all of America, for that matter, within the past twenty-five years, was paid by Governor A, W. McLean today in his address before the fourteenth annual convention of the southeastern division of the National Electric Light Association here today.

"Twenty-five years ago," the governor declared in the course of his address, "there was not in the whole state of North Carolina a single central electric plant, in the modern sense. The first, on the Catawba River near Charlotte, was a frank experiment. Not an industry, tecept a few mills using water-wisels, knew any source of power except its individual steam plant. Only a few of our cities were lighted and they with infrequent and uncertain are tights, while in the home the incandescent was still too expensive a luxury except for the well-to-do.

"Today there is a conservatively flected in what North Carolina industry has been achieving. Over 500 textile mills give employment to 90. 1000 people and manufacture products of a yearly value of $400,000,000. Great tobacco factories, the largest in the world, make North Carolina the oremier state in the manufacture of the solacing weed and product products having a value of upwards of $300,000,000 annually. Several of our towns, notably the city of High Point, are centers of a furniture industry important in the nation, the value of whose products is in excess of $50 000,000 annuall. In 1923, according to official figures of the United States department of commerce, the total value of our manufactured products was $951,911,000.

"The marvel of these figures, the lesson of which has not been lost on the nation, is that the industry they reflect should be powered to the extent of 75 per cent. by the electric utilities that so lately as twenty years ago were, practically speaking, nonexistant."

Calling the convention to order,

President Robert L. Lindsey, who is vice president of the Durham Public vice president of the Durham Public Service Company, delivered the animal-presidential address—an appeal at for a more compact and business-like southeastern division organization. It was largely through Mr. Lindsey's efforts that a full-time secretary of the division was engaged and headquarters located in Atlanta. It is the whope of the president, as expressed in his address, to weld the organization into a more effective agency for the electric light and power industry.

has been accomplished right here in North Carolina. The matter of placing electric power in usable form in the hands of our agricultural industry is one of the greatest problems the power and light business has been accomplished. called upon to solve. If agriculture is to keep pace with the other industries of America it must be enabled to utilize power instead of man-pow-er just as do the other industries."

The sessions of the convention will continue through Thursday after-
