WOMAN SOUGHT TO GET RID OF BABY GIRL

Bloodhounds Tracked Her, However, and She Finally Confessed Guilt. A Cabarrus county woman, living on the old Salisbury road, has confessed, it is said, that she tried to get rid of a baby girl born to her out of wedlock. Faced with evidence that could not be refuted she is said to have confessed her guilt and promised to provide adequately for the child in the future.

Local officers have been reticent to discuss the case and due to the turn of affairs they are withholding the name of the woman against whom no charges will be made, it is said. The case was first reported to the officers several days ago and while rumors concerning the neglected babe have been heard here full particulars, including the name of the woman, have been lacking.

Several days ago, it is said, a baby girl, about two days old, was found in an old shed near the home of a couple living just over the Rowan line from Cabarrus. Officers were notified, bloodhounds were put on the trail and they went without hesitation to the home of the woman, who has been a widow for several years. When the officers arrived it is said, the woman was working in her garden. Taken into the house and faced with the charges she denied them. Later when it was suggested that she submit to a physical examination she is said to have broken down and confessed. She told this story, it is said:

The baby had been born 36 hours before. In the darkness of the night, while other children in her home were asleep, she gave birth to the child without services of a helping hand. She bathed and dressed the babe, then bathed and dressed herself. With the coming of dawn she wrapped the babe in a bed and went to work in her garden, fearing to take that rest so necessary to motherhood lest it should arouse suspicion. All day she worked in the garden and did her other usual duties.

At 10:30 that night she started from home with the foundling, ready to leave it in the old shed near the home of a couple who had often expressed a desire for a baby girl. Two and a half miles she tramped to the shed, leaving the babe there, and then two and a half miles back home again. She was in bed about 1:30 and up with the sun again the next morning, still unwilling to do anything out of the ordinary for fear such action would lead to investigation that would disclose her guilt. The babe was found the next morning but the couple it was intended to have her were unwilling to drop the matter. The investigation led to the discovery of the babe's mother, who has promised her a good home in the future.

CLASSIC OF REFORMED CHURCH MEETS MAY 11TH

Sessions Will Be Held in Hedricks Grove Church, Six Miles South of Lexington.

The ninety-sixth sessions of the Classic of North Carolina, Reformed Church in the United States, will convene in Hedricks Grove Reformed Church, six miles south of Lexington, on May 11th at 8 p. m.

The Classic is the official body for the Reformed churches in North Carolina, numbering a communicant membership of near 8,000, and a Sunday school enrollment exceeding 10,000. The body is composed of the roll of ministers and elders (laymen) from each of the 27 pastoral charges. In addition there are others in attendance, members of the trustees of Catawba College, board of managers of Nazareth Orphans' Home, representatives of the boards of home missions, foreign missions, and ministerial relief, all of the general synod of the Reformed Church.

The church at Hedricks Grove was organized in 1801. The first pastor was Rev. J. P. Holshouser. The Classic met in this church in 1802, when Rev. J. C. Clapp, D. D., was president of the Classic. This church is a rural church and all members are farmers. During the pastorate of Rev. John C. Peeler these people erected a new and modern church building. They made their own brick, cut their own timber, and did much of the work. The auditorium is large and to the side, cut off by rolling partitions, are the Sunday school classrooms. It is one of the best rural churches in Davidson county.

Catawba College at Salisbury is the institution of the Reformed Church in North Carolina. The report of Dr. E. R. Hoke, including that of the board of trustees and the treasurer, will be one of the most interesting reports to engage the attention of the Classic. The Classic will hear for the first time the good work that has been done in the college at Salisbury. The Classic will elect six trustees to take place of six whose terms expire. The Classic will also direct the general policy of the college.

Nazareth Orphans' Home at Crescent, Rowan county, will give an account of its work through the board of managers. This board holds its annual meeting in the First Reformed Church of Lexington Tuesday, May 11th, at 1:30 o'clock. This institution has been equipped with a new girls' dormitory, including dining hall and all needful rooms for the work of the home. The members of the board of managers are elected by the Classic.

The Classic will have the presence of two of her own members who served in the foreign fields. Rev. Frank L. Fesperman has served six years in Japan as a missionary. He has been in the homeland for almost a year. After finishing a special course in Teachers' College in New York City he will spend the summer in North Carolina, and return to Sterling W. Whitener, of Hickory. He has been six years in China, in the Yochow district, Hunan Province. He has been in America almost a year and returns to China in September. This will be the first Classic these missionaries have attended since their ordination in Corinth Reformed Church, Hickory, at the Classic of 1919.

The opening sermon will be preached by the retiring president, Rev. H. A. Welker, of Burlington, Tuesday, May 11th, at 8 p. m. The classical communion will follow. After the election of the president the Classic will adjourn until Wednesday morning, at which time the business sessions will begin. Rev. A. S. Peeler is the pastor of the Hedricks Grove congregation. There are four churches in this pastoral charge, all rural.

Concord Highs Defeat Monro Easily. The Monroe highs offered little real opposition to the Concord highs in the ball game played here Friday afternoon.

The locals fit the ball at opportune moments, winning 10 to 2. The longest drive of the game was a home run driven out by Williams, Concord's catcher.

McInnis did the twirling for Concord and was master of things throughout the game. With the beginning of May the baseball fans in many cities have been able for the first time this season to enjoy the games without wearing a raccoon skin coat. From now on the turnstiles may be expected to click at a livelier clip and the interest in the pennant races will begin to steam up.
