This Navy Coat Frock Is Ideal for Summer Street Wear

By Marie Belzant

The coat frock is a favored model, for it is becoming to all ages. The one shown in the sketch above would be smart for eighteen or forty.

Navy blue crepe is chosen for the material. The dress is made with a straight back which extends into a narrow belt that buttons across the front. The cleverly inserted pleats give ample width for walking. Narrow red crepe bands mark the collar and cuffs.

White crepe would also be smart in this model, with perhaps bright blue bands for the color touch.

44,000 Thunderstorms a Day. A British scientist, C. P. Brooks, who has just published a book on electrical storms, says about 44,000 thunderstorms take place every day in the world. Lightning flashes 100 times every second on the average. The number of thunderstorms in a year is estimated at 15,000,000. Java, he declares, is probably the most "thunder region" on earth. In the arctic regions thunder rarely occurs.

MONEY FROM POPPY SALE TO DISABLED SERVICE MEN

Where Do the Poppies Come From?—The Millions Made Last Year Under Auxiliary.

Saturday has been designated as "Poppy Day" and every citizen will be given the opportunity to buy one of the poppies made by disabled service men. There is many a disabled service man today with a family to support and no compensation coming to him. His wife and children have to eat.

Not a few of these men can feel peace of mind today because they are working for a living—the living that means so much when there are many mouths to feed. They are working for the American Legion auxiliary, making poppies for sale on Memorial Day.

"There's a special joy in wearing a poppy made by a disabled American veteran, when you know the money is brought him filled a desperate need.

"In hospitals—and in one work-room in Minneapolis—these poppies are made. And the good that the money does their makers is often less than the good that busy fingers bring to their disturbed minds and bodies, as any psychiatrist will tell you.

"There was one patient, a brilliant physician who had lost the power to concentrate. His mind would jump from this to that against his will—which meant real disability for him. He entered a hospital where poppies are made, and went to work with joy in his chance to keep busy and earn for his family.

"It's a trick to make poppies. You build them petal by petal and part by part. The doctor learned to keep his mind on making poppies, and soon found he could keep his mind on any problem that came his way.

"So they sent him back once more to his practice, cured by the poppies he had made. And his family was kept from absolute want while he was in the hospital by the funds he had earned with his nimble fingers.

"The 3,000,000 poppies made last year under the Auxiliary National Poppy committee meant that over $40,000 was paid direct to disabled men as wages for their work. This year, if no more orders reach the poppy committee than we already have, over $65,000 will be earned by the disabled. Every cent that he public gives for those poppies goes to help the needy and disabled service men.

The Auxiliary members give their services free, of course. So do the hospital employees who supervise the work in Minnesota, at Meudota, and every place where poppies are being made.

"The earnings of the men are limited to two dollars a day in hospitals; to four dollars a day in the work-room in Minneapolis. This is for medical reasons; sick men cannot be allowed to overwork at the time when their strength must be conserved. But two dollars in wages a day earned in hospital helps at home, and four dollars a day is a godsend."

STONE OBSERVATION TOWER ON MT. MITCHELL

To Be Donated by Charles J. Harris.—Gift Accepted for People of State.

Charles J. Harris, business man and capitalist, and former Republican candidate for Governor, has donated a stone observation tower to be erected on the peak of Mount Mitchell.

The gift has been accepted for the use of the people of the State, under the management of the Department of Conservation and Development. It was announced by the department today.

In the tourist season, the tower will be used as a point from which to gain an unobstructed view of the unexampled scenery which Mount Mitchell, the highest point east of the Rockies, affords.

In the spring and fall fire seasons, it will be put to more practical use as a home for the warden of the State-owned Mount Mitchell Park. The warden will make headquarters there for the purpose of detecting and giving warning of forest fires which may be visible in the broad vistas he will command. For this purpose, the tower will be equipped with the scientific instruments necessary for this kind of work.

The tower is to be 20 feet square and of a height of about 32 feet, according to plans now in possession of State Forester J. S. Holmes, and approved by Mr. Harris. The observation floor will be 30 feet and will be surrounded by a low battlement. Underneath the observation floor will be the room for the occupancy by the park warden during the two fire seasons. It is planned to construct the tower of native stones, to be taken from Mount Mitchell itself, care being exercised to quarry it without injury to the scenery or any point of interest on the park. The tower will be finished this month, the Department of Conservation and Development announces.

By October, weather conditions on Mount Mitchell become such that work cannot longer be prosecuted. Sand and other building material will have to be brought from many miles, probably from Black Mountain. While precise cost of the tower has not been estimated, it is expected to run to several thousand dollars.

The stairway from the ground to the top of the tower will be an interior one.

The new tower, the Department of Conservation and Development says, will supplant an old makeshift affair. An attempt was made some time ago to supplant this old tower with a steel one, but the latter fell. As a result, the state forest service was in somewhat of a quandary as to what steps to take toward fire-prevention observation from the top of the peak. Mr. Harris' offer has solved the problem, officials said today.

The new tower will be just east of the site of the old towers, and just east, also, of the grave of Dr. Elisha Mitchell, whose measurements fixed Mount Mitchell as the highest of the Appalachian peaks.
