Senate Committee Asks the Witnesses About Million Dollar Fund Used by the Republican Candidates.

ASKED $1,000 FOR
THE PEPPER FUND

Man Who Served as Head of Committee Said He Selected Men and Asked
Them to Give Money.

Washington, June 12.—(AP)—Told that the Pepper-Fisher-Smith-Woodward campaign chest in the recent republican primary in Pennsylvania amounted to at least $1,046,000, the senate campaign fund committee today continued its efforts to learn how the money was raised and how it was spent.

The first witness of the day, Col. Robert Glendinning, a Philadelphia banker, explained that at the start he was the chairman of Senator Pepper's campaign finance committee "informally organized" last September.

"Everybody I thought was good for $1,000 I put on the committee," he said. "How many did you get?" asked the chairman, Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri. "I don't recall exactly, but between thirty and forty," Edward W. Bok declined to serve on the committee, the witness said, but gave $1,000.

Using the list of donors previously presented by Senator Pepper, Glendinning called off the names of the committee men he selected. They were the contributors of $1,000 or more.

F. E. Newbold, son-in-law of Senator Pepper, was the committee's treasurer and kept the books. "I had no account myself," the witness said. Asked how much was collected before he left Philadelphia and gave up his chairmanship on December 27, Glendinning replied, "I can't recollect exactly, but I think it was between $40,000 and $50,000."

Had Regular Pay Day.
Washington, June 12.—(AP)—"Pay Day" at political headquarters in Pittsburgh was like a regular pay day today as it began to go into details in its inquiry into the Pennsylvania expensive republican primary.

Frederick R. Bentele, a supporter of Governor Pinchot in his unsuccessful campaign for the senatorial nomination, testified that both at the Pepper-Fisher and Vane headquarters in Pittsburgh there always was great commotion when campaign watchers and workers were drawing their wages.

At the Pepper-Fisher headquarters in the hotel Henry, he said "the men were paid in cash and there was much activity on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday." He watched the paying off, he said, and estimated that between 200 and 300 men were paid each hour.

"I saw one man come out with a roll apparently of $10 bills, which was three inches in diameter," he said. "It was all he could hold in his hand."

He added he thought the paying off was being done by S. J. Topley, treasurer of the Pepper-Fisher organization in Pittsburgh.

One Wednesday morning, the witness continued, there was "a great clamoring at Vane headquarters, caused by people clamoring for money."

ALVIN MANSEL, NEGRO,
REPRIEVED TO JULY 9

Governor McLean Gives Respite to Allow "Further Investigation" of Case.
Raleigh, June 11.—Alvin Mansel, negro, under sentence of death for an attack upon a white woman in Buncombe county, was today reprieved by Gov. McLean from June 13 to July 9, the reprieve was granted "for the purpose of further investigation," the governor said.

Mansel was convicted in Buncombe Superior court in November 1925. The respite granted today follows receipt by Governor McLean and Pardon Commissioner Sink of hundreds of letters asking that the case be most thoroughly investigated before the negro is allowed to die. Many of these letters came "from some of the best people in Asheville," Mr. Sink said.

Formal hearing on the case will be held June 28.

Mansel was convicted almost solely upon the testimony of the woman attacked. Her identification was the basis of the jury's verdict of guilty. Numbers of people in Asheville and Buncombe county have written expressing the belief that there is a possibility, if not probability, of mistaken identity.

The negro's counsel took an appeal to the supreme court, hoping to secure a new trial, but that tribunal sometime ago handed down an opinion saying there was no error in the trial given the negro.

Pardon Commissioner Sink has already made some investigation in the case.

DR. RANKIN IS BADLY INJURED IN CAR WRECK

Head of Duke Hospitalization Work
Has Chest Bones Broken, Scalp Cut.

Hamlet, June 11.—Dr. W. S. Rankin, former secretary of the North Carolina board of health, now director of the hospitalization work of the Duke foundation, was badly injured near the Morrison bridge over the Pee Dee river, 14 miles from here, about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon when his automobile was wrecked, turning over.

Dr. Rankin was pinned under the machine, after having been thrown out of the door of the car. Bones in his chest were crushed in and he suffered a cut in the scalp six inches long, cut to the skull, with the scalp peeled back from the skull for about two inches on each side of the head. He also suffered lacerated cuts and bruises.

He was picked up by a passing automobile driver and hurried to a hospital here, where his injuries were attended. He was conscious but was put to sleep so that said could be removed from the scalp wound. Physicians stated that because of his strong constitution he would recover, in their opinion. He suffers somewhat in breathing, because of the injury to his chest, and also suffers from a slight concussion of the brain. The shock was a severe one, as the wreck was such that it hardly seemed possible for one to come out of it alive.

His wife and young son, who were with him, were also injured, their hurts are minor ones, some small lacerations and bruises.

Dr. Rankin had set out in his Buick coupe to drive, with his wife and son, from his home in Charlotte to Wigginsville, N. C., to attend a meeting of the North Carolina Hospital association. He was booked to speak there Saturday afternoon. He was traveling on state highway No. 20. Near the Morrison bridge over the Pee Dee, which bridge is completed, there is a short detour. The bridge is open but a detour being done on the road. The car struck some sand in the road and began to skid. It skidded and turned over completely, rolling to one side, landing on its wheels after the turnover, and headed toward Charlotte. Dr. Rankin was hurled through a door of the car and the wreckage crushed under it. The two front wheels were torn off the car and part of the top of the car was also torn off.

Dr. W. D. James, Dr. H. F. Kinsman and Dr. A. W. Jones attended to his injuries. Dr. James stated that Dr. Rankin would recover, he thought.

Granted Pardon Only to Be Again
Arrested.

(By International News Service)
Pickens, S. C., June 12.—When "Uncle Asa" Patterson, faced with serving a life term in prison for a murder nearly a half century old, was granted a pardon by Governor Walker, of Georgia, the aged farmer went to Pickens county to spend his last years on earth at his boyhood home aimed the Piedmont overhills.

But "Uncle Asa" apparently was "born for trouble."

As soon as he reached Pickens county he was placed on the chain gang to serve a nine months' sentence for a petty crime.

"Uncle Asa," who was once a prosperous Georgia farmer, 45 years ago was involved in a fatal brawl and sentenced to life imprisonment for murder. He escaped jail and fled the state. Settling in South Carolina, he established new ties, remarried and reared a second brood.

Last Christmas the call of his old Georgia home became too strong. Uncle Asa drove back to his old home in Georgia, where he was arrested for possession of liquor. It was then that authorities learned his real identity.

TARIFF IS AID
SPEAKER SAYS

Also Declares That the South Should Produce
Commodities Now Being Imported.

Canton, O., June 12.—(AP)—Extension of immigration quota restrictions to all countries now exempt under the law operating on the semi-tropical soils of the South to production of commodities now imported, and furtherance of the policy of tariff protection were described as aids to American labor today by Secretary of Labor Davis.

One of the principal speakers on the convention program of the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery, Mr. Davis said in his prepared address that by failing to impose quota restrictions on immigration from British North America, Mexico, Central and South America, the United States had made the mistake of "leaving the back door of our country open after closing the front door."

The "fruit of this mistaken policy is already visible," he asserted. "Evictions and violations of the law are frequent. The alien smuggler, like the bootlegger of liquor, has become an institution. Not only does he smuggle in aliens who have no legal right to be here, but he engages in those other illicit traffics, alcohol and narcotics."

"The only way to get rid of him, and with him the alien who makes use of our back door to effect entry into the United States is to extend our immigration policy to all countries which are now exempt from it."

THE COTTON MARKET

NEW TOASTING GRILL
AT GIBSON DRUG CO.

Better-Kistwick Machine Will Toast
Any Kind of Sandwich Almost Instantly.

Hungry? That is the pert and to-the-point question asked by the attractive, electrically-lighted little man on the top of the glass case surmounting the new Better-Kistwick Machine installed yesterday by the Gibson Drug Company.

This new machine is for the toasting of all kinds of sandwiches. Its base is a small grill upon which the sandwiches are placed for the process of toasting. The electric heat that arises quickly toasts the bread a golden brown and, if the filling of the sandwich is cheese, it draws said cheese up into the pores of the bread.

Above the grill is a glass container, rising perhaps two feet. This container is for the display of the sandwiches. The toasting process is a matter of only a few seconds.

This is only the third machine of its kind that has been installed in the State. The Cabarrus Drug Company will have one within a few days.

Better Stay Out When Told.

Asheville, June 12.—When the fairer sex says "Stay out," it is usually best to agree.

That was the lesson learned in court by Herman Schindler, Asheville merchant, when he started out to collect a bill and ended up by owing one to the city.

Schindler went to the home of an Asheville woman to collect payment for an overcoat her son had bought. The son had joined the navy after purchasing the garment, and Schindler apparently thought the boy's mother would be more apt to pay the bill than Uncle Sam.

He rapped on the door. He received no reply.

"Stay out, I'm dressing," came a voice from inside.

He went in anyway, it was charged, and was fined $100 in court.

MANDY ROSS SENT TO JAIL BY JUDGE PALMER

Negro Woman Charged With Arson
Committed to Jail Without Privilege of Bond.

Many Ross, negro woman, is beginning to learn something of the seriousness of arson.

When her case was called in recorder's court Friday as a result of the firing of the home of Frank P. B. Palmer told the defendant her case was not bailable. Arson is a very serious offense and the woman was committed to the county jail to await the next term of Cabarrus Superior Court.

The Ross woman is said to have told police officers she fired the Phifer house because Phifer had drawn a gun on her in Salisbury on May 30th. She was arrested several hours after the fire had destroyed the house and has been in jail here since.

Under the law of North Carolina the death penalty can be given a defendant convicted of arson. Phifer and members of his family were asleep in the house at the time it was fired, it is said.

Two Yale Students and Women Companions Are Victims of Accident in Connecticut.

ACCIDENT CAUSE IS NOT KNOWN

The Two Students and One Woman Instantly Killed.
The Party Had Been Attending a Dance.

Guilford, Conn., June 12.—(AP)—A speeding automobile which crashed into a big elm tree here early today brought death to four persons, two Yale students and their women companions. The dead are: George M. Kopperl, Guilford, Conn., a Yale freshman, driver of the car; Wm. H. Cushing, Brooklyn, Mass., Yale junior and baseball letter man; Mrs. Edwin R. Reeser, New Haven; Miss Dorothy Kernan, of New Haven.

Mrs. Reeser and the two men were killed when the roadster, loaned to Kopperl for the night, was virtually demolished against the tree. Miss Kernan was breathing when persons living nearby, awakened by the crash, rushed to aid the injured. She died a few minutes after being taken to a Guilford hospital and before she could give an account of the accident.

The automobile belonged to C. F. Sheldon, of New York City, a freshman at Yale, who said he had led Kopperl, his roommate, take the car last night and that Kopperl, Cushing and the women had gone to a dance in Wadsworth, a nearby town.

The party was hurrying home about 2 o'clock when they crashed into the tree.

Cushing was the son of Dr. Harvey D. Cushing, famous brain specialist of the Harvard medical school. The youth made his major letter last year in a Blue Outfitter.

Kopperl played on the freshman football team. His mother, who is in New York City, was notified of the accident.

SEVERAL POWER PERMITS
GRANTED IN THE STATE

Federal Power Commission Grants
Permits For Development in the State.

Washington, June 12.—(AP)—The federal power commission has granted the town of Highlands, N. C., a license for fifty years for a proposed power project on the Cullasage River in Macon county, North Carolina, to include a small concrete arch dam, a water conduit tank and a power house.

The estimated head of the plant is 200 feet and the present proposed installation 250 horsepower. Provision is to be made for an ultimate installation of 800 horsepower. The power generated will be used for municipal purposes.

A. A. Shuford and F. M. Laxton have applied for a preliminary permit for a power development on Wilcox Creek, near Lenoir, Caldwell county, North Carolina, within the Boone national forest, proposing to build an arch dam approximately 80 feet high to create a reservoir about half a mile in length. A steel penstock will extend from the dam to the power house located on the creek. The power capacity of the project is estimated at 2,640 horsepower. The developed power will be used in manufacturing for public utility purposes.

The Federal Power Commission of Tennessee has applied for a preliminary permit for projected power developments in the McLeichukypoo River near Spruce Pine, N. C., and Greenville, Tenn., applying in the Unaka National Forest in Unicoi, Washington and Greene counties, Tenn., and Mitchell and Yancey counties, North Carolina. Seven developments are proposed and it is estimated that 27,800 horsepower will be developed.

THE DROUGHT

State Farms Suffer.—Two-Thirds of Cabbage Crop Killed.

Tribune Raleigh Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 12.—The State seems to be in a fair way to suffer from the drought, according to reports received from the State Prison farm at Caledonia and the farm at Carey, due to its injury to the cotton crop. There are some 2,600 acres in all planted in cotton at the two farms, about 500 acres at Carey and 2,100 acres at Caledonia. At both places the stand is very poor, not more than 25 per cent, normal, and at Carey in many places there is no stand at all, according to George R. Fou, State Superintendent of Prisons.

"Although after the one rain we had—the first in 50 days, according to the weather bureau record—the seed had not yet germinated sprouted, it has since been so dry that these sprouts are drying up and the plants dying. It seems likely that we may have to plow up the cotton and put in some other crop," Mr. Fou said.

Two-thirds of the cabbage crop has also been killed by the drought and all other crops have been hurt to a certain extent, though none as badly as the cotton.

The volume of American freight traffic amounted to 450,264,967,000 net ton miles in 1925.

THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT FLAGS

Monday is Flag Day Throughout the United States and Its Possessions.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Monday will be observed throughout the United States and its territorial and insular possessions as "Flag Day," in commemoration of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the national flag on June 14, 1777. The custom of setting apart a day each year for such observance originated with Professor George Balch of New York City. Professor Balch conducted a private school and on every 14th of June he held special exercises of a patriotic character and every pupil carried a flag.

The man who claims to know all about flags will have to look to his laurels, for of late, mainly on account of the provisions of various peace treaties, there have been numerous additions to such emblems.

Some of the new flags of the various nations are interesting innovations, inasmuch as they depart from established usage. In general, the designers of flags use only red, white, blue, yellow and black, and strictly observe the law of heraldry. If, for instance, it is desired to have yellow in a flag, it is necessary, to be in order, to have black also. The correct combination appears in the Belgian flag. But the new Belgian Royal Standard sets tradition and usage at naught. It is purple, with a gold shield in the middle, surmounted by a crown.

Some of the new national flags, moreover, are distinctive without being indicative. They have been created in nearly as haphazard a manner as the flags of the great steamship companies.

Well-known national flags were not created in this casual manner. When Napoleon made Italy a kingdom, he decided to have a flag which distinctive, should indicate by its close resemblance to that of France, the source to which it owed existence. The result was the tricolor of green, white, and red. This flag, though suppressed on the downfall of Napoleon, was revived by the Italian Nationalists in 1848, and, with the addition of the arms of Savoy, accepted by the King of Sardinia as the ensign of New Italy. Perhaps the most elaborate, and therefore most perplexing, national flag is that of Tibet, because, apart from the main design, which is curiously complex, the spaces in it are filled up with alternate triangles of red and blue.

It is a fact not generally known that the United States, the youngest of the great nations, has one of the oldest national flags of them all. Among the European nations Denmark is the only one whose national flag antedates the Stars and Stripes. The British flag, popularly known as the Union Jack, was officially adopted by act of Parliament in 1707, but since that date it has undergone some changes before reaching its present form. The Spanish flag in its present form was adopted in 1857, the French in 1794, the Italian in 1848, the German in 1871, and the Chinese in 1878. Previous to the World War the newest flag was the Australasian, which shows the five stars of the Southern Cross, and resembles a blend of the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes.

The Danish flag, oldest of all the national ensigns, has an interesting history. The design of a white cross on a red ground was suggested to King Waldemar of Denmark by a cross which he is believed to have seen in the heavens at a critical point in his fortunes. That was more than seven hundred years ago, and the Danish flag has remained unaltered ever since.

Series of Accidents Kept
Captain Wilkins and Associates From Flying to

MAY RETURN IN SEVERAL MONTHS

Fog Over Ocean Would Make Further Exploration Flights This Summer Fruitless for Party.

Fairbanks, Alaska, June 12.—(AP)—Their effort to be the first to explore the polar regions by airplane frustrated by a series of accidents, Captain George Hubert Wilkins, and four members of the Detroit Arctic expedition are on the way back to the United States today.

They may return next August with new parts for their airplane, Wilkins said. Major Thomas G. Lanthier and Sergeant Charles M. Wisley, on leave from the United States army, A. Malcolm Smith, head of the expedition supply party, and Frederick Lewis Earp, pilot of the expedition, will remain here a week to store the planes and equipment.

Fog over the ocean would make further exploration flights this summer fruitless, Wilkins indicated when he and his companions returned recently in their airplane, Detroit from Point Barrow.

Two planes of the expedition were wrecked, the snow motor supply expedition which set out from Cape Point Barrow failed, and its members almost starved to death. Palmer Hutchinson, a Detroit newspaper man, was killed when a propeller of one of the planes struck him as the engines were being tuned up for one of the first flights to Point Barrow.

Wilkins has indicated that if he returns next fall, it will be to explore a region not covered by the flight of the dirigible Norge.

PRINCE IS "ALL RIGHT," IS GOVERNOR SMITH'S IDEA

Crown Prince of Sweden and Governor of New York Met in New York City.

New York, June 12.—(AP)—"He's all right, that fellow," was Governor Smith's characterization of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden after they met today at the City Hall. Surrounded by his military staff, the Governor awaited the arrival of the Crown Prince in the Governor's room. Down Broadway rushed the royal party in automobiles headed by a military guard. A bugler sounded "colors" as the Crown Prince stepped from his limousine.

Into the Governor's room strolled the Crown Prince. Governor Smith grinned. They clasped hands, military pomp was discounted.

"How are you?" the Governor asked. "I'm fine. I've had a splendid time here," said the Crown Prince. "This is a wonderful city."

He could be elected President of Sweden if it were a republic," said the Governor after the Prince had gone. "He's all right, that fellow."
