GIBSON AND KANNAPOLIS PLAY FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Final Two games of Series at Hixon Park.—Kannapolis Seeking Revenge.

Seeking revenge for the three straight setbacks at the hands of the Gibson team, Kannapolis will come to Concord "loaded for bear" Friday and Saturday afternoon of this week. Nothing, but overwhelmingly, top-heavy scores in their favor will give the Towel-makers solace for their inability to dent the Gibson pitchers for enough runs to win in the three games they had lost. The state has been scoured for a pitcher who can really pitch and reports from Kannapolis indicate they have found "just the man"—his identity, however, has not as yet been disclosed.

Outside of the box, the two teams attack up very evenly. Ison has had by far the best pitching so far this summer and therein has lain her advantage. The Kannapolis infield is a trifle smoother and surer than the one representing Gibson, and the two outfields are about on a par—with Hatley, of Ison, the best individual performer. Watts, behind the bat for Gibson, has a decided edge on either Hawkins or McLean, of Kannapolis, both in catching and hitting.

Simmons has yet to work a poor game this season. Once or twice he has been the victim of shoddy fielding by his mates, but they have usually redeemed themselves by lambasting the opposing pitchers for more than enough runs to make up for the ones caused by their errors of omission and commission. He seems to be in for a most successful season—in no game has he been forced to extend himself.

Regardless of their outcomes, the games played between Gibson and Kannapolis are always the most interesting of the season. Every game played by the two teams this year have been thrillers, with the final score in doubt until the very last. Both teams have sluggers who are likely to get busy at any moment and break up the game.

The two games this week should prove no exception to the general rule—particularly so, since Kannapolis is so anxious to regain her lost prestige.

The probable line-ups for the games are as follows:

Gibson: Richards rf, Hatley cf, Basinger 2b, Jarrett 1b, Ellerbe ss, Dulin 3b, Smith of, Watts c, Simmons p.

Kannapolis: Motesinger 2b, Lee of, McLean c, Kirk rf, Saunders 3b, Flowe lf, Johnson ss, Lantz 1b, ??? p.

RAIN BRINGS FURTHER RELIEF FROM DROUGHT

Nearly Every Section of the State Benefitted Yesterday and Last Night.

Raleigh News and Observer.

Further relief from the long drought came to North Carolina farmers yesterday and last night, when rain was reported from practically every section of the state.

The rains of the past week-end, which broke the backbone of the long dry period, and were described by officials of the department of agriculture as worth "millions" to the farmers, were insufficient to thoroughly moisten the dry, thirsty soil, and yesterday's and last night's rainfall, therefore, was looked upon as a vegetable godsend to the agricultural interests of the state.

In most sections the rain began falling in the afternoon. It did not reach Raleigh until early last night, but when it came a fall of more than an inch was reported by the weather bureau in a period of about an hour. Streets were flooded for a short time. The downpour was accompanied by a thunderstorm.

Asheville reported 2.0 of an inch of rain yesterday afternoon. It remained cloudy but the thermometer dropped.

In Greensboro a slight rain fell late yesterday. Winston-Salem reported a wind and rainstorm late in the day, with overcast skies and the thermometer up last night.

Showers during the afternoon were reported by Charlotte and Wilmington.

At High Point there was a heavy rain in the afternoon.

The rain struck Durham at 6 o'clock, and last night was still falling there.

ANOTHER RAIN VISITED THE COUNTY YESTERDAY

Only Light Fall Recorded But It Was Enough to Follow-up to Rains of Week-End.

The drought here has been definitely broken was indicated by another rain which fell yesterday.

The first real rain in several weeks fell last Saturday, giving new life to growing crops and depleted streams. The rain of yesterday was heavy enough as a follow-up to last week's rain.

Some thunder and lightning accompanied the rain yesterday but it was not enough to cause apprehension even to those persons who are most afraid of lightning. The rain and lightning did serve, however, to cool the atmosphere which had been charged with heat during the day.

The rain of yesterday was general throughout the county, according to reports reaching Concord this morning.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Howell

Mrs. Elizabeth Howell, aged 32, died last night at 10:15 at her home in No. 11 township. She had been ill with a kidney malady for several months.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home with interment in Union cemetery.

Mrs. Howell was born in Cabarrus county, a daughter of George and Catherine Green Plummer. She was the wife of E. T. Howell.

Surviving are her husband and three step-children.

Children Must Not Shoot on the Streets

Youngsters must not go about shooting air rifles or 22-rifles on the streets of Concord.

Chief Talbirt warns parents to see that their children do not violate the law against such practice, adding that within the past week several complaints have been made to him in regard to the matter.

"It is a dangerous practice," Chief Talbirt stated, "and one that must be stopped. Officers have been told to keep an eye open for boys who violate this law."

GOODWIN IS PRESIDENT OF BUILDING AND LOAN FOR THE NEXT YEAR

Carolina has kept singularly free from such bad practice, and the members of its associations in this state may well be proud of the splendid record of the officers who have been guiding the business through this present period of expansion.

With a wider vision of the problems, the association men were asked to show more tolerance to ideas of others which did not coincide with their own, but which are known to be sound. They were asked to study these problems in the light of careful analysis so that satisfactory conclusions can be reached. Above all, the secretaries were asked to support the present educational program, in order that the coming generation in our schools and colleges may become more familiar with the business, which in turn will make these institutions more able to serve the communities in which they are located.

Two colleges in North Carolina already are planning courses in building and loan for the next college year. These are the North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro and Duke University at Durham. As these courses have a chance to prove the teachability of the subject, Dr. Clark pointed out, others will soon take the matter up, and the time is not far distant when every college and university teaches building and loan as a regular thing.

John M. Wyman, associate editor of The American Building Association News, spoke at the banquet in the place of his chief, Henry Rosenthal, who was unable to come to Concord because of illness.

Mr. Wyman said in his travels over the country and at five state and many local meetings he has been struck by the concern of some building and loan men as to the future of their business. There is no reason for concern, he said, for less than one-half of the families in this country own their homes, the net increase in the number of families requiring new homes is almost 1,200,000 annually, there are some three or four hundred thousand homes that pass into oblivion each year, and the total of new homes required each year beyond the one-half million mark. In addition there are 14,000,000 families living in rented homes, and should they take a notion to buy it would require 100,000,000 annually for 140 years to equalize supply and demand.

The building and loan associations of the United States will have $10,000,000,000. I think this prediction is conservative when we consider that Ohio and Pennsylvania have nearly $1,000,000,000 each, that New Jersey has $80,000,000 and Massachusetts and Illinois together have over $500,000,000.

"We see that there is about $3,000,000,000 in five states. We all know that the movement is highly developed in these states; in other states it is well developed. In others it is only moderately developed. In still others the movement is just beginning. In predicting ten billion dollars by 1931, I have also taken into consideration the fact that the building and loan movement is becoming better understood by the rank and file of the public through splendid publicity of our own building and loan publications and through other financial and industrial publications which are willing and anxious to help our movement because they believe it helps them."

Venus at Wilmington

Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock Venus has just taken breakfast at Hotel Cape Fear. There we met General Boyden and a bevy of pretty girls taking breakfast. We counted 83 old soldiers on the train that arrived in Wilmington on same train with Venus. We are all having the finest time of our life. All the old soldiers are assigned to hotels and good places. We will all be taken to Fort Fisher this evening. We met Miss Helen Long and Miss Mary Elizabeth Long on the train and Mrs. Jno. T. Love, matron of honor, first brigade, and Miss Irene Taylor.

Hickory Boy Struck Match in Looking for Gasoline Outlet.

Hickory, June 23.—Lying flat on his back in bed, swathed in bandages to protect the horrible burns that cover his body, James Yoder, age 15, still lives to do penance for his misdeed.

The boy was burned about 9 o'clock on the night of June 11th. He, with two other companions, are alleged to have gone to the Mountain View school garage where three Catawba county school trucks were stored for the summer, with the intention of stealing gasoline.

While one of his companions stood on the outside to watch and another entered the garage with him, Yoder crawled under one of the trucks to find the gasoline outlet, it is alleged. Failing to find it, he struck the fatal match that seemed to end the entire building up in flames at once. Before he could escape, the flames had taken their toll, say officials today.

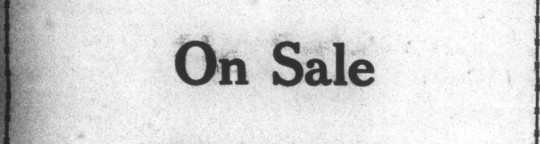

Yoder is reticent about discussing the matter. He casts furtive glances at visitors. His mother says James was the best boy she had, and it was his evil companions who brought the misery to their home.

Sheriff Geo. F. Bost placed one of the other boys, who had been hiding out since the burning, under arrest late yesterday, and he was released after giving bond.
