THE STATE HAS 2800 MILES IMPROVED HIGHWAYS

And Is Yet Building More Highways Than Ever Before. Raleigh, July 13.—North Carolina has already 2,800 miles of improved highways completed and in service...

The treatment is called the "catch-lite" treatment, whereby a graded or topsoil road is given a binding coat of mixture of tar and asphalt...

A coroner's jury this morning started an investigation. Officers today said that Mrs. Reinhart was killed when she attempted to call a beach policeman at Wrightsville beach.

Reports, officers said, had come to them to the effect that the Reinharts had had domestic difficulties for some time.

Reports, officers said, had come to them to the effect that the Reinharts had had domestic difficulties for some time. Financial matters were said to have aggravated the harmony of the family...

Of the entire 6,400 miles of highways in the State system, less than 1,200 miles remain to be built...

The Highway Commission now has a system whereby an accurate check is kept of the amount of travel over every road in the State...

Thus, for medium traffic conditions, a sand-and-gravel road is adequate, and this type of road can be built for about $3,000 a mile...

Young Reinhart, released from custody, shortly before the coroner's hearing began, was informed for the first time of his wife's death.

Several witnesses this morning were awaiting a call before the coroner's jury. That body's decision, however, is not expected to be made public before Thursday.
