IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

SOUTHERN MILLS MAKE MORE THAN NORTHERN

Mills of South Make More Profit Than Those in North, New York Bank Finds After Survey.

Earnings of cotton mills in the South have been up better than those in the North, the business conditions bulletin for July of the National City Bank, New York, which reached Greenville manufacturers last week, asserts.

The bank compares the industry in the two sections and draws interesting conclusions.

"Under stress of competition for a limited volume of business," the bulletin states, "the southern mills have had a considerable advantage over the northern mills by reason of lower production costs."

"For a great many years the industry in the South has been growing rapidly until at the present time nearly 50 per cent. of the total spindleage is located in that section, chiefly in Alabama, the Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia. A number of factors have contributed to its growth, including lower wages (made possible by the climate which reduces the outlay per worker for fuel, clothing and shelter), newer and more modern plant and equipment, more favorable labor laws and the comparative absence of unions. In the beginning the presence of raw cotton was also of some advantage but at the present time, when so large a part of the cotton crop comes from across the Mississippi and can be carried from Texas by water to New England more cheaply than by rail to the Carolinas, this advantage has largely disappeared."

The bank says that too much perhaps has been made of the difference in wages paid here and in the North.

"While the actual wage paid is considerably lower in the South," it reports, "many of the mills, having sprung up so to speak in the open country, have had to expend large sums for housing facilities for employees and for general welfare work which does not fully pay for itself and is, therefore, really a part of wage expense."

"A more fundamental reason for lower southern production cost," the statement continues, "lies in longer working hours and in the fact that the industry in that section is newer and therefore, generally speaking, its equipment is more up-to-date."

Both northern and southern mills, the bank says, have a common interest in the problems confronting the industry today.

"High and fluctuating prices for raw cotton, fashion, and the rise of silk in popularity have spelled difficult times for the industry. Under these circumstances, temporary mill curtailments, while it may doubtless effect improvement for a time, can hardly be expected to work a permanent cure. This, it seems more probable, will come in due time through increased stability of cotton prices and discovery within the industry of the means of broadening the market for cotton goods through production of fabrics and styles carrying greater popular appeal, and perfection of methods of distribution to conform more closely to modern conditions of small lot orders and rapidly changing styles."

Explaining causes of decreased consumption of cotton goods, the bulletin points to the fewer and shorter garments worn by women and the greatly increased popularity of silks, including rayon.

STANLEY COUNTY MEN KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Four Concord men, returning from Albemarle about 11:30, extricated the dead men from the wreckage of their car and carried the injured Tucker to the Albemarle Hospital. The Concord men were Wesley Walker, Archie and Raymond Snyder and Eugene Isenhour.

When their car ran off a 20-foot embankment about two miles on this side of Albemarle Monday night, Jake Kimmer and Claude Tucker, Stanley men, were fatally hurt, another man named Tucker suffered a broken shoulder and a fourth man, whose name could not be learned here, was badly bruised and cut.

Four Concord men, returning from Albemarle about 11:30, extricated the dead men from the wreckage of their car and carried the injured Tucker to the Albemarle Hospital. The Concord men were Wesley Walker, Archie and Raymond Snyder and Eugene Isenhour.

According to these men they saw a man sitting on the side of the road, waving an arm, when they reached a point about two miles on this side of Albemarle. They did not stop, not knowing what he wanted, but later decided to go back since the man seemed to be hurt.

When they reached the man, who proved to be Tucker, he told them he had two buddies at the bottom of the fill and he expected they were dead. Tucker could not move one arm, the Concord men said, and he was bleeding from numerous cuts.

Crawling down the side of the fill the four Concord men felt among the wreckage of the car until they located the bodies of Kimmer and Claude Tucker. Both were dead and the bodies were almost cold, it was said. The party had no light and had to feel about in the ruins of the car to locate the bodies.

Two of the Concord men placed Tucker in Mr. Walker's car and carried him to the Albemarle hospital. They also notified police officers and the coroner of Stanley county. Two of the party remained with the dead bodies.

When the officers reached the scene of the tragedy and removed the bodies, the Concord party returned home.

Reports from Albemarle this morning stated that a fourth man was in the wreck and was undergoing treatment in the Albemarle hospital. This man was not seen by the Concord men and must have either walked in to Albemarle or have been hidden somewhere in the ruins of the car. His name could not be learned.

Tucker, the Concord men stated, asked that he be taken to his home instead of the hospital but the request was not granted. Apparently he wanted to get home without any one knowing he had been in the accident.

A large broken jug was found near the car, it was reported, and odors of alcohol were much in evidence.

An inquest into the tragedy is to be held in Albemarle sometime this afternoon, it was reported here.

STABLE AT FAIR GROUNDS TO BE REBUILT AT ONCE

Contractors Asked to Submit Bids to Fair Officials Sometime During the Week.

The fire which destroyed 73 stalls in the stable at the Cabarrus County Fair grounds Sunday night will in no way interfere with plans for the 1926 fair, it became definitely known today when officials of the association discussed plans for the rebuilding of the stable.

Dr. T. N. Spencer, secretary of the association, states that local contractors have been asked to submit bids for the erection of the stable, and the contract probably will be awarded early next week.

The contractors, it was explained, have been asked to submit their bids this week, and after the contract has been awarded work will be begun without delay.

The stalls can be completed easily within six weeks, it was said, and were it necessary they could be built in two weeks. However, as the fair is not to be held until October, there will be an effort to complete the work under a month or six weeks.

It is probable, Dr. Spencer said, that the new stalls will be a little larger than the old ones. The ones burned were 10x10 and the new ones will be 10x12 if present plans are carried out.

It is also probable, it was explained, that the new gate will be larger than the old one. The space for cars will be wider and in addition there will be a walkway. These changes will necessitate the building of fewer stalls so the total number will probably be 82 instead of 85 as before.

"We are not going to let a little thing like this fire halt our plans for the biggest fair in the history of the county," Dr. Spencer said in discussing plans for the rebuilding of the stable. "We have plenty of time to get a new stable and when October comes the public will find the grounds in perfect condition again."

Carpenters Monday completed repairs to the office building which was slightly damaged during the fire.
