RE-UNITED LUTHERANS WILL MEET IN SOUTH

Convention Takes Place in Richmond, Capital of Confederacy, October 19-25.
Richmond, Va., Sept. 28.—In Richmond, the old capital of the Confederacy, delegates from the reunited Lutheran churches in the north and in the south will meet from October 19th to 25th at the fifth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America. Three times in the past eight years Lutheran delegates from the north have gone forth into northern cities to confer on ecclesiastical methods and plans the work of the church. Once, in 1920, the convention met at Washington. This year for the first time delegates from the northern cities will meet their southern brethren on southern soil.

At the time of the Civil War schisms appeared in the ranks of the great churches, and the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Lutheran denominations divided into northern and southern groups, the separation of three of these denominations continuing to the present day. In three of these groups almost heroic efforts have been exerted to reunite the divided churches but without success up to the present time. In the Lutheran Church in America the Lutheran people of these two sections of the country have worked together for the common good.

After overtures toward merger on one side or the other had been made during a period of four decades, the first approach being made in 1870, delegates of three outstanding Lutheran bodies met in New York City in 1918 to organize the present United Lutheran Church in America. Two northern bodies, the General Synod and the General Council, and one southern body, the United Synod of the South, had previously taken definite action favoring the merger and sent representatives to the convention instructed to vote in favor of a union that would at once submerge the animosities and differences of half a century before and pave the way for effective co-operation of all groups in planning the future great work of the church. Their unity in the faith outweighed all sectional and political issues, and inner unity found its triumphal expression in union for service. Outside the Lutheran Church eager eyes have watched the progress of the United Lutheran Church in America for eight years in the hope of finding therein the solution of their own problems of merger.

When delegates, representing 1,370,742 members grouped together in 24 district synods, arrive next month for the fifth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America at Richmond, they will learn of the great gains that have been made in number of pastors, number of members, totals of money raised for benevolences and congregational expenses and in property valuation. They will hear reports on the increasing effectiveness of home missionary work in hundreds of communities throughout the land and the plans for a consolidation of such work under one leadership. They will note the development of American Lutheran work in the foreign fields in India, Africa, Japan, South America and the West Indies, and the purchase and occupation of a new field in China. They will receive summaries of vast educational and social service activities of the church, and of the efforts made to lighten the burdens of Lutheran immigrants to the United States and Canada from foreign lands. And having passed approval on the accomplishments of past years, they will plan the most effective methods of extending the work into vast new fields as yet almost untouched.

COUNTY AGENTS ASSIST FARMERS TO SELL HOGS

All of the Hogs Were Fed According to Methods Advocated by Swine Extension Department.
Raleigh, Sept. 28.—During the last few weeks ten county agents have assisted 139 farmers of North Carolina to sell 2,220 head of hogs for $54,709.11. All of these hogs were fed according to methods advocated by the office of swine extension at State College and complete records kept on the animals from the time they were put on feed until they were sold to the packing plants of central markets.

These 2,220 hogs filled 32 cars and made an average of 16 hogs worth $333.33 for each of the 139 farmers who co-operated," says W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist at State College and leader of this special feeding work in North Carolina. "The hogs which were sold are the results of work for six months. A large number of the farmers are simply repeating what they did last spring when these same shipments were duplicated. In this climate, it is possible for us to grow out two litters of pigs each year and ship them during April and September."

Mr. Shay makes it clear that the point of this hog shipping project is that all of these 2,220 hogs originated in only ten counties. He believes that there are more than ten counties which can muster 139 farmers who can each produce 16 surplus hogs twice each year and thus increase their own income from $600 to $800 per year and that of the county by $100,000 per year. Systematized feeding and marketing are lacking in most of the counties which explains why more farmers are not taking advantage of this source of farm income, states Mr. Shay. It is true, he explains, that some other men are growing and feeding hogs but they are not commanding the highest market prices because of improper rations given and lack of systematized effort on the part of the owners.

SHARPE WILL DEVOTE EFFORTS TO BIG MEN

Little Bootlegger Will Get Severe Attention From Carolinas Administrator.
Charlotte, Sept. 27.—Prohibition forces in the eighth district will be particularly directed in the future against the violator of the Volstead who operates on a large scale, Ben C. Sharpe, prohibition director, indicated today.

The minor offender will receive scant attention, it is believed, unless he is a constant violator.

"The only way to make the prohibition laws successful," Mr. Sharpe declared, "is to increase respect for the act by building up a sentiment favoring it."

"It has always been my policy to try to increase respect for the law by making an effort to catch the large liquor dealer and not wasting time on the little man."

General Lincoln C. Andrew, prohibition czar, has placed his stamp of approval on this method, Mr. Sharpe said, in the recent Washington conference. The subject of prohibition policy came up when Mr. Sharpe was asked about a recent case in the Charlotte police court in which a white man was given a suspended sentence for having hard cider in his possession.

Mr. Sharpe said that any man who had in his possession a beverage with half of one per cent alcohol in it was technically guilty of liquor law violation.

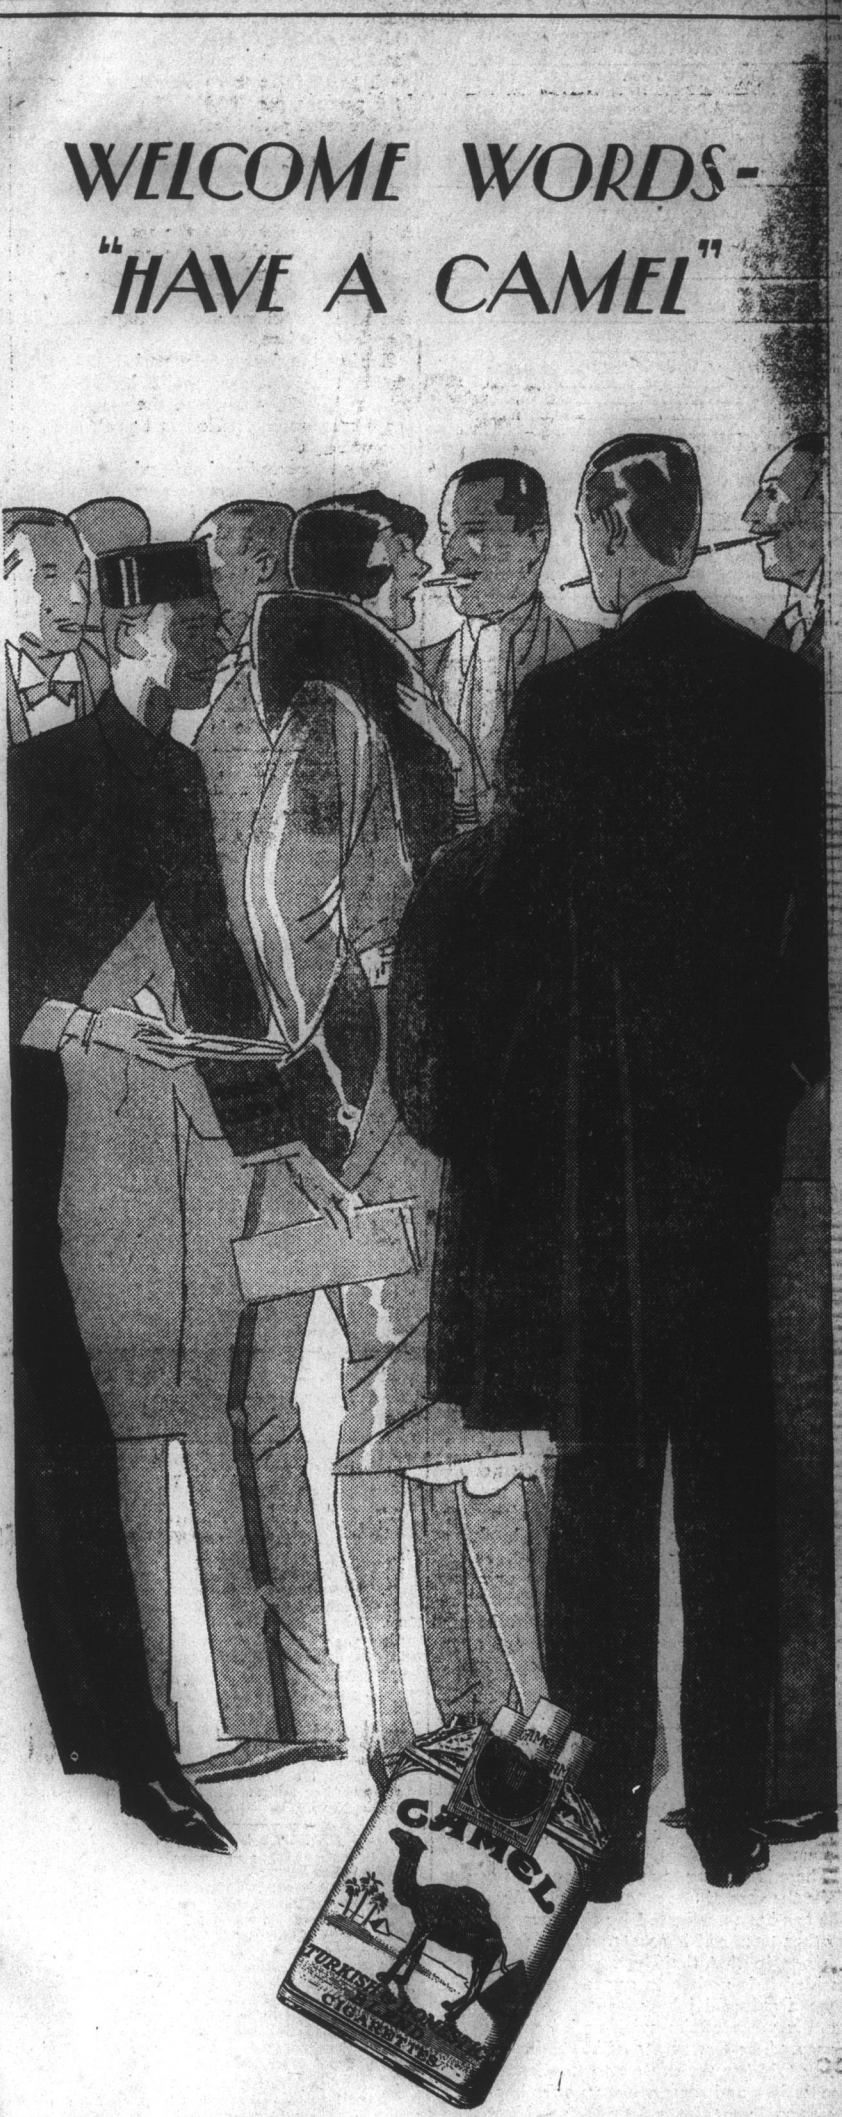

It had not been and would not be, he added, the policy of his agents to harass the small man while letting the man who deals in large amounts go free.
