

HOLLYWOOD REPORT SHOWS 37 DEAD IN LATE STORM THERE

300 Others Were Hurt and 7 Are Missing.—Property Damage Estimated at $5,000,000.

3,029 BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED

Joseph W. Young Co., Developers of City, Estimate Loss to the Concern Will Reach $1,000,000.

Hollywood, Fla., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Hollywood, together with its two suburbs, Dania and Hollandale, today announced an official tabulation of property losses and fatalities, following a comprehensive survey of that area since the hurricane.

This city and its environs reported 37 dead, 300 injured, and 7 persons missing, the latter of whom were believed to have departed in the brief exodus following the storm.

Property damage was placed conservatively at $5,000,000, the bulk of this representing loss of 3,029 houses, hotels, business buildings and various other structures.

Losses to the Joseph W. Young Company, developers of Hollywood and the largest single business unit of the community, were estimated at $1,000,000. Several city buildings suffered to the extent of $55,000.

Salvaging activities have progressed rapidly and many families have returned to reside in their partially wrecked homes, with repairs being completed in the meantime.

Official tabulation listed the departure of about 2,000 persons immediately after the hurricane, the majority being women and children, who are said to be fleeing.

Many Dead Aid.—Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Florida hurricane has placed on the shoulders of the American Red Cross the greatest relief and rehabilitation task since the San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1905.

Chief of the Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. C. H. S. Miller, said today after analyzing reports of the needs of the situation.

Vice Chairman Feiser at Miami reported to headquarters that a careful check showed a total of 15,700 families, or 45,000 to 47,000 persons who will need Red Cross aid.

HOME ECONOMICS CLASSES IN THE EVENING

Reaching Large Numbers of Women With Essential Instruction. Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Sept. 29.—Miss Rebecca Cushing, state supervisor of home economics education, returned today from a ten days trip in western North Carolina, where she has been making final arrangements for starting the evening home economics classes.

For this year the instruction will be given by Mrs. Anna L. Grimes, of Ayrden, N. C., who spent the summer at Vassar studying, who will be the itinerant teacher. The following towns have signed up for courses to be given by Mrs. Grimes: Burlington, Fayetteville, Greenville, Rocky Mount and Goldsboro.

Places definitely signed up for the courses to be given by local teachers are: Marion, with Miss Priest as teacher; Asheville, with Miss Whitaker as teacher; Gastonia, with Misses Luelie and Lillian Tatum as teachers; Charlotte, with Misses Eave and Stanton as teachers; Leaksville-Spray, with Miss Helen Paschal as teacher, and Winston-Salem, with Miss Katharine Mather as teacher.

THE COTTON MARKET

Opened at Advance of 20 to 22 Points But Soon Eased Off Several Points. New York, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The cotton market opened today at an advance of 20 to 22 points as it followed by reports of a steeper tone in Liverpool, unsettled weather in South and apprehensions that the tropical storm reported north of Porto Rico might move in the direction of the belt.

There was active covering with some trade and Liverpool buying at the start, but as soon as initial buying orders had been supplied, prices eased off Southern and commission house selling. December contracts which had sold up to 14.55 at the start, reacted to 14.42, the general market showing net advances of about 10 to 14 points at the end of the first hour.

Five more October notices were reported, but October held within 20 points of December in the early trading, compared with a difference of 24 points at the close yesterday.

Cotton futures opened firm: Oct. 14.30; Dec. 14.32; Jan. 14.02; March 14.83; May 15.03.

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS STILL AT ORAL WARFARE

With Eyes Set on November Election Leaders of Major Parties Continue With Their Arguments.

PROSPERITY IS DISCUSSED MUCH

G. O. P. Leaders Say This Is "Republican Year" and Democrats Are Just as Sure It Is Not.

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The argument over the state of the Union and particularly as to whether prosperity now exists in the United States continues unabated between official spokesmen of the Democratic and Republican parties.

With their eyes set upon the November elections which are to decide the complexion of the 70th Congress, Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, Colorado, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, declared "This is a Republican year," while Senator Thomas F. Bayard, Delaware, treasurer of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, characterized his Colorado colleague as an "unconscious humorist."

The people, Senator Phipps asserted, after a white house conference with President Coolidge, have undiminished confidence in President Coolidge and believe he should be supported by a majority in Congress which will help him maintain the most abundant prosperity the country has ever had, under a Republican tariff, but Senator Bayard said that the statement would "bring tongues in their cheeks."

In the latest wave in the sea of campaign propaganda, Senator Bayard asked whether Senator Phipps "is the only person in America unaware of the fact that the 15,000 employees of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company of New England declined only last week to accept a cut in wages which the company dangled before their eyes for the alleged purpose of getting contracts."

Senator Phipps countered with the statement that "the situation looks bad in Massachusetts," where Senator Wm. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee and personal friend of the President, is opposed by former Senator David L. Walsh. It is difficult, he continued, "to imagine how it could be otherwise inasmuch as Massachusetts is an industrial State, strong for both the tariff and the President."

TREES TO BE PLANTED ON NORTH CAROLINA DAY

Thirteen to Be Planted. One for Each of the Original Colonies. Raleigh, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Governor McLean has been invited to act with President and Mrs. Coolidge and other governors of the thirteen original colonies in emulating the example set by Washington, Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton by planting thirteen memorial trees to the colonies forming the republic.

The date for the ceremony has been set as October 11th, which is also "North Carolina Day" at the Sesqui-Centennial. The planting is scheduled to take place in Independence Square at noon, and to be followed by a luncheon to the visiting dignitaries given by the women's committee of the exposition.

The plan calls for each governor to turn a spadeful of native soil from the roots of a tree representing his state as a part of the Sesqui-Centennial exercises.

An especially large crowd is expected to be on hand for the occasion as the day also marks the opening of the National American Legion convention. Governor McLean stated that while he would like very much to accept the invitation and would do so if it did not conflict with the "North Carolina Day" exercises at the Sesqui-Centennial grounds, he was afraid that it would be impossible for the North Carolina delegation to participate on account of the State flag presentation ceremonies which are set to begin at 11 o'clock at the exposition grounds, five miles out of the city.

DAMAGE RESULTS FROM HURRICANE

Vera Cruz, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A hurricane has caused much damage in the city of Vera Cruz and adjacent territory. Houses here were unroofed, several tugs in the harbor were sunk and a steamer was wrecked and heavy seas invaded the city and drove out persons living near the waterfront. No fatalities were reported in the city. At one time the wind reached a velocity of 125 miles an hour.

OPENING GUN OF THE DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN

To Be Fired at Madison Next Saturday, When Max Gardner Will Speak. Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Sept. 29.—The opening gun of the Democratic campaign will be fired in Madison, Rockingham county, when Max Gardner, of Shelby, will discuss things political in an address here, it was announced by John G. Dawson, chairman of the State Democratic committee, here today.

From then on speakers of statewide and even national note will continue to tell the people of the state the advantages of keeping the Democratic party in power in the state and in Congress. Mr. Dawson is now busy putting the finishing touches to the schedule of speakers, when and where they will speak, which will be announced within a few days, he announced.

No comment was forthcoming here from Democratic headquarters regarding the report that emanated from Raleigh some days ago that there was serious disagreement between Johnson J. Hayes, Republican candidate for the Senate opposing Senator Lee S. Overman and his campaign manager, Brownlow Jackson, other than the statement that the report did not emanate from Democratic headquarters and that the first that had been heard of such a disagreement—if any really existed—was when it was published in a Greensboro morning newspaper.

The first report was to the effect that Hayes and Jackson were at odds over the manner in which the Republican campaign was being conducted and that Hayes was becoming somewhat disgruntled over the manner in which he was being chided over the state, speaking to him audiences in sections where there was no hope of getting any Republican support.

However, this report was vehemently denied by both Hayes and Jackson in no uncertain words in which they reiterated their complete confidence in each other and expressed the determination to conduct the campaign along the lines it has been going. Hayes expressed complete and full confidence in Jackson and the manner in which he had been carrying on the fight, and Jackson disclaimed any intention whatever of resigning his post as manager of the campaign.

However, despite these positive statements from both Hayes and Jackson the opinion prevails in Raleigh among those who should be familiar with the situation that, Hayes, despite his outward attitude of assurance, is not so optimistic as he would have people believe, and that he is inclined to regard at least at his extensive tour of the states something of a wild goose chase, especially in those sections which are admittedly in the past, now and hereafter Democratic territory.

But no matter what the true facts in the case may be, it is no secret that the Democratic campaign headquarters would rather hear tales of Republican success, radiating optimism and confidence than otherwise, for it is difficult to build up enthusiasm, especially in an off-year, where there is little or no opposition, and while John Dawson refused absolutely to comment in any way on the reported state of affairs, there was little doubt but that as far as he was concerned, he wished the whole thing might not have happened.

This thing is certain, however, and that is that the Democratic committee is not going to take any heed of any reported raptures in the ranks of the Republicans, and that it is going ahead with its campaign on the assumption that the Republicans are now and will continue to put up a stiff fight, conceding nothing.

So plans for a vigorous Democratic campaign are going forward without a let up. Bertram Mills, England's John Ringling, says the circus business is in a stronger position in Europe today than it has ever been for 30 years.

Queen Marie To Leave Home Saturday. Bucharest, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Queen Marie will leave Bucharest next Saturday on a special train bound for Paris on the first stage of her journey to the United States. It was stated on the authority of a high court official today that the Queen had not decided to postpone her voyage to the United States.

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty-five Asheville business men traveling on the "Land of the Sky Special" arrived in Washington today on a "good will" trip. They will leave here tonight for the north, and their journey will take them into Canada.

Figures in McPherson Case

Miss Emma Schaffer, Joe Watts, Miss Beatrice Morris, and Mrs. Elizabeth Frame were questioned by Los Angeles authorities in their investigation which resulted in warrants for Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother.

Gov. and Mrs. McLean Invited to the Special Women's Committee. Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Sept. 29.—In addition to the regular ceremonies attendant to the celebration of North Carolina Day at the Sesqui-Centennial on October 11th, Governor and Mrs. A. W. McLean have been invited by the special women's committee of the Sesqui-Centennial to be guests at a luncheon planned in connection with the special tree-planting exercises, at which it is hoped President and Mrs. Coolidge as well as the governors of the thirteen original colonies will be present.

Arrangements have been made to have the various news reel photographers make photographic history of the tree planting, at which the governor of each of the thirteen states is to turn a spadeful of earth as the tree named for each particular state is planted. These thirteen trees are to be planted in Independence Square, Philadelphia, and the luncheon is to be in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

The invitation to participate in these ceremonies has just been received by Governor McLean in a letter from Mrs. Margaret D. E. Patton, chairman of the special women's committee in charge of the tree planting, which she explains follows closely the example of Washington, Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, each of whom planted thirteen trees as living memorials to the colonies forming the republic.

The following organizations are cooperating with Mayor Kendrick and the special committee of Mrs. J. Willis Martin, in the observance of the tree-planting ceremonies: Daughters of the American Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Colonial Dames of America and the committee on Sulgrave Manor, Garden Club of America, Federation of Women's Clubs and others.

Methodist Pastors Now Serve Church Longer. Chicago, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Moving days in the Methodist Episcopal ministry from the annual shake-up of pastors are growing fewer and the length of service for pastors at the same church is increasing, the new Methodist Year Book shows. Now there are 123 pastors who have served the same church continuously for 10 to 30 years.

The Rev. E. J. Helms, Morgan Memorial Church, Boston, has the record in the Methodist church for continuous service, 31 years. The Ministers in the eastern conferences lead in longevity of pastorate, the New York East area having fifteen with service records of more than ten years. Philadelphia conference has ten, New York six, Chicago seven, Washington five and New England four.

Next in length of service to Dr. Helms are two with thirty years at the same church—the Rev. G. H. Loral, Green Street, Philadelphia, and the Rev. A. L. Allais, French Church, Chicago. Fear Asa Candler May Not Recover. Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 28.—Fears for the recovery of Asa G. Candler, "the Coca Cola king" were expressed today by relatives at Wesley Memorial hospital, to which he has been confined for two months following a slight stroke of paralysis.

THE PRINTED WORD.

Every reporter at one time or another makes each of his friends mad. It is the penalty of the newspaper game. It is the price of the printed word. You are going to take it as it comes. STATE-WIDE GAME LAW NOW SEEMS PROBABLE

Inasmuch as the Supreme Court Has Made Portions of County Laws Invalid. Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Sept. 29.—The adoption of a state-wide hunting and game law by the next legislature is looked upon as altogether probable, now that the State Supreme Court has cleared the way by making portions of the public local hunting and game laws for 58 individual counties invalid by its recent decision that the counties were not inasmuch as the game belong to the State and not to the counties in which it happens to be, counties cannot impose higher license fees on residents of other counties than those imposed on its own residents.

In this case, Barkley, a resident of Mecklenburg county, refused to pay the $3 fee for hunting in Cabarrus county on the grounds that the law was discriminatory and hence unconstitutional. The Supreme Court concurred in the contention, but held that the other sections of the law were constitutional, and that instead of paying a license fee of $3 which was discriminatory, Barkley must pay the license fee of $1, which was required of all Cabarrus county residents.

By means of this decision, the portion of county hunting and game laws which fixed higher fees for non-residents of the county, but residents of the State, are all knocked out—and 58 counties have such laws. The decision of the Supreme Court, however, does not affect the higher license fees fixed for non-residents of the State. But at present a resident of any county of the state may hunt in any other county in the state by paying the same license fee required of residents of the county.

Thus hunters from counties where there is little or no game can swarm into counties where it is plentiful and virtually exterminate it, without having to pay any more for the privilege than if they were in their own county.

This will undoubtedly cause considerable feeling on the part of residents of counties where efforts have been made to preserve game and regulate hunting, and is bound to bring the matter of a state-wide hunting and game law before the legislature. The matter of "county rights" is all very good as long as the practice of that theory protects an individual county from outside exploitation, and at the same time reserves some advantages for the residents of that county.

But if the county is unable to make regulations protecting it from outside exploitation, and outsiders are allowed the same rights as residents, then these residents will not be so opposed to the State enacting regulatory legislation.

Hence it is that since many of the counties will be without power to regulate hunters from other sections of the state coming in and destroying game which it had hoped to reserve for its own resident hunters and which previously vigorously fought any effort on the part of the State to control the hunting and game privileges, these counties will not be so opposed to State regulation now since it is the only method by which preference in hunting may be given to county residents over outsiders.

It is true that the eighteen Audubon counties are not affected by the recent court decision, largely because these counties have very few regulations, designed almost entirely for non-residents of the state. In the Audubon counties, a license obtained in any one is good in any of the others, and no license is required of a non-resident child or parent of a resident landowner for hunting on the land of such a resident. In all these eighteen counties a fee of $10.25 is required of all hunters from without the state.

The majority of the counties of the state recognize the need for protecting game through legislation. And now, since it has been found that one county cannot protect its game from depredations by residents of other counties, it is believed that much of the opposition to a State law regulating game and hunting will disappear, and that the chances for adopting a state-wide game and hunting law are better now than in many years.

Zoological Mystery Solved. (By International News Service) Mobile, Ala., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Mobile's greatest zoological mystery of the century has been solved. A Texas horned toad was discovered after the severe tropical hurricane here a few days ago in the front yard of Mrs. J. H. Anderson. Neighbors were called in. The strange reptile was placed in a tin bucket for inspection. Citizens here theorized that the animal had been blown in by the wind and probably belonged to some ocean tribe. But Herman Sutton, who recently returned here from Texas after a visit, heard of the find and immediately set forth to claim his pet. Sutton brought the animal here from Texas and it wandered away from home during the storm.

FATE OF ENTOMBED MEN MAY BE KNOWN LATER IN THE DAY

Rescue Workers Hope to Reach 43 Men by Climbing From the 20th Level to the 8th.

STILL DIGGING FROM THE TOP

Diamond Drill May Reach Level Today So Men Can Communicate Through the Bore.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 29.—(AP)—The fate of 43 men entombed since last Friday in the depths of the Pabst mine here may become known today. Possibility that one of the efforts to pierce the barrier of rock and earth in the shaft of the eighth level when the men are imprisoned 800 feet underground may be crowned with success today, did not however deter men engaged in three other rescue attempts.

Today's hope was from the bottom of the shaft, clogged midway by the cave-in. Admittance to lower levels of the mine is gained by connections from the shaft of an adjoining mine. Working upward, the rescuers had penetrated the twentieth level after several days of hazardous efforts. Completion of timbering will permit easy egress by ladders of the shaft, which were intact as far as rescuers could see upward today, giving hope that they might climb up to or nearly to the eighth level.

It is 1200 feet from the twentieth level, where forty men are believed to be. The shaft is clogged from the second level, 327 feet below the surface, to a point somewhere below the eighth and above the twentieth levels. On the eighteenth level, 257 feet above the twentieth level, a min inspector is believed imprisoned. He faces the possibility of rescue first. Above him on the thirteenth level two other inspectors are believed to be waiting.

The other succor efforts are: A diamond drill starting from the second level, 327 feet below the surface, early today was calculated to be 375 feet from the goal. This 2 1/2-inch bore is being made to obtain communication and furnish food and clothing. A lateral tunnel from an adjoining mine 54 feet dug, 226 feet to go.

Removal of the debris from the shaft at the top, workers of this expedition have 300 feet to go. They cleared 100 feet yesterday. Relatives, anxious, tired but still hopeful and patient, displayed the restraint of mingling blood as they crowded about the rescue workers. No one will give up. Everyone is sure the miners live. Meanwhile ambulances, physicians and nurses waited to care for the men when they are reached.

CHARLOTTE OFFICERS STILL LIVING TODAY Two Most Seriously Hurt in Accident Remain in Critical Condition. Salisbury, N. C., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Detective J. M. Byers, of the Charlotte police force, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident near Salisbury Tuesday afternoon while making a "test run" from Charlotte to High Point, is still unconscious and remains in a precarious condition at the Salisbury hospital. He is suffering from a fracture of the skull and his condition is reported as unchanged. Chief of Detectives Oer is conscious but suffering much pain from a laceration in the head.
