

AN INTERNATIONAL MANIFESTO STATES TARIFF IS BARRIER

J. P. Morgan and Other Americans Are Said to Have Been Signers of the Manifesto.

WOLFF BUREAU CARRIES STORY

This German Agency Says Business Men Feel That Trade Barriers Are Handicapping Europe.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The semi-official Wolff Bureau today publishes what is declared to be the text of an international manifesto signed by scores of leading European financiers and half a dozen Americans including J. P. Morgan, setting forth the economic plight of Europe and the necessity of pulling down the post-war tariff and other trade barriers if prosperity is to be restored.

The manifesto, entitled "An Appeal for Removal of Restrictions to European Trade," declares that the signers as business men must expose the grave disquieting conditions hindering a return to general prosperity.

It points out how tariff barriers, special licenses and embargoes have succeeded since the war in intruding upon international trade and impeding its natural course, especially as new boundaries have been erected in numerous areas which hitherto exchanged goods frequently.

Want Tariff Barriers Removed. New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A remarkable plea for removal of the tariff barriers and other restrictions upon European trade was issued here today over signatures of scores of leading financiers of Europe, and half a dozen Americans headed by J. P. Morgan.

There can be no recovery in Europe, the manifesto declares, until the politicians realize that "in times of peace our neighbors are our customers, and that their prosperity is a condition of our own well being."

QUEEN LAYS WREATH ON UNKNOWN SOLDIER'S GRAVE

Reached America Monday. Washington, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The homage of Old World royalty was paid again at the Shrine of new world democracy when a pilgrimage today to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the United States became the first official act on American soil of Marie, queen of Rumania.

Beginning around a formal ceremony less than 24 hours after her arrival at New York, the trip of America's energetic royal visitor to place a wreath upon the tomb in Arlington national cemetery, Virginia, marked her presence in the sixth state that has felt the touch of her queenly foot, in addition to the District of Columbia within the span of a day. And in each she has received a royal welcome.

New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland echoed New York's glad greetings, groping for glimpses of royalty as the Queen's special sped past. "I've seen so many smiling faces since I landed," she said in an audience to three presidential representatives aboard the train. "They make me very happy."

"The people seem very glad that I am here. I hope they will take me to their hearts as I already have taken them to mine."

"They seem to want me here as a queen," she replied to a question as to whether she would assume an incognito to seek the touch of the privileges of a private visitor in this country. "I shall not appear in the movies except as I am snapped on the street. But I'm not saying I won't write for them."

When she reached Washington at the close of her first American day, Queen Marie met another clamorous welcome, and had her first glimpse of the nation's capital.

Two army bands sounded the Rumanian and American anthems, while the Queen stood smiling, her arms full of orchids, and her gaze on the far-off capitol. Behind her, Princess Ileana, carrying roses, and Prince Nicholas waited shyly. While diplomacy claimed the Queen who was ushered into the first car of the entourage by Secretary Kellogg, the navy in the person of Admiral E. W. Edson, claimed the Prince who had been trained in the British navy. The army, represented by General Fox Connor, acting chief of staff, escorted Princess Ileana.

At the Rumanian legation where on the extra territorial soil of her own country, the Queen spent the first night of her stay in this country, the crowds that filled the streets waited like pilgrims for a sight of a new prophetess.

Today she becomes the official guest of the nation, being received at the White House with Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas at 4 o'clock, and receiving President and Mrs. Coolidge in return at the legation half an hour later. Dinner at the white house with 50 guests will mark the end of a day full of Presidential ceremony.

Gov. McLean Advocates a Statewide Radio System

By J. C. BASKERVILL (Staff Correspondent)

Asheville, Oct. 19.—A State-wide radio broadcasting station is likely to soon become a reality in North Carolina, since it has been decided not to wait on pending legislation in Congress, but to proceed at once with plans for the erection of such a station. Governor A. W. McLean announced here today. A survey of the state is just being completed by one of the chief radio engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, who was sent here last week from New York to determine if there are any "radio pockets" in the state, and if so, where, and to select the best location for the broadcasting station. This engineer is expected to return to Raleigh today from the western part of the state, where he has been making tests in the vicinity of Asheville and Murphy. He has already made tests at Elizabeth City and Morehead City in the east and around Raleigh and Durham in the south.

He is now returning to Raleigh to conduct more detailed experiments there as it is desired to locate the sending station as near as possible to Raleigh.

For two years now Governor McLean has been advocating a State-wide radio station, to be used for State purposes only, chiefly along educational lines, to disseminate general information to the entire State, and especially to the great radio audience in the rural districts. Because of existing conditions in the radio broadcasting field which seemed to make it difficult to obtain a suitable wave length and because of pending legislation in Congress with regard to radio regulation, definite plans for this State station were held up indefinitely.

But owing to the fact that legislation failed to pass in Congress during the last session and may be held up indefinitely, officials in Washington advised the governor last week to go ahead and erect the station, assuring him that the interests of North Carolina would be amply taken care of when the legislation is finally enacted.

So, while in New York ten days ago Governor McLean conferred with General J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, and Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors, telling them of his plans and asking them to have an immediate survey of the state made so that some estimate of the type of station that would be required might be made.

Both were much interested in the plan, especially Mr. Young who has the Owen D. Young who really devised the "Daves plan" for reparations payments in Germany. A steamer was at once dispatched, and as soon as his report is made, an estimate will be submitted giving the cost of the proposed station.

So highly perfected has the art of long range radio broadcasting become at present, that by means of telephonic connections, it will be possible to broadcast programs and lectures from any point in the state through the State station, the governor said, calling attention to the fact that it would be just as simple a matter to broadcast a musical program or lecture from the University at Chapel Hill or State Women's College in Greensboro in the studio in Raleigh. In fact, when anything of interest or importance is going on, it can be caught over the radio and broadcast to all the people in the state.

"It is impossible to imagine the benefit such a station will be to the state as a whole, especially to the rural districts in the winter months, when people stay at home more. From this station they will be furnished both information and entertainment. At given hours and on certain days, lectures courses in agriculture, horticulture, home economics and other subjects can be given, thus greatly enlarging the scope of the extension work of both State College and the University. In fact, there is no end to the uses to which it can be put, being a veritable clearing house for information and entertainment for all the people in the state. Eventually it is hoped to place receiving sets in all the schools, so that every school in the state may be linked into one big state-wide school room through this central radio station, to hear noted speakers or good music, and to receive regular instruction in various topics," the governor said.

Asked if it would not be necessary to secure a special appropriation for the construction of the station, the governor replied that it would not if the costs were not too great, since funds now exist for purposes of publicity and like activities, part of which could be used toward the radio station.

No estimate has been made as yet as to the cost of the station, but, according to Mr. Young, a much more powerful station than was at first contemplated must be erected, owing to the extreme length of the state, and its peculiar geographical and topographical aspects as well as the difficulties in atmospheric conditions, carrying from the coast to the high dry air of the mountains in the west.

It will also take more power to get across and into the mountains, the engineers say.

"The more powerful station will also be an advantage in that it will enable North Carolina to get much beneficial publicity outside the state as well as in it," the governor said, pointing out that it is just as necessary to let people in other states know about what North Carolina is doing as to keep the people in the state informed as to its activities.

The governor spoke of having visited the experimental laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America, and of seeing the wonderful developments which have been made, one of them the apparatus whereby it is possible to hear the voice of a speaker and see him at the same time. This has not been perfected from a commercial standpoint, but will be eventually, the governor believes.

It would probably require a number of months for the installation of the State station, after the estimate and contracts had been approved, the governor stated, saying that it would be several weeks before the results of the present survey will be known.

GOV. McLEAN AT HICKORY

Reached With That Under Republican Control.

BY J. C. BASKERVILL, Staff Correspondent.

Hickory, Oct. 19.—Declaring that there are some in the State who would destroy the State by desiring it to make too rapid strides toward the accomplishment of its goal, especially with regard to highway building, Governor A. W. McLean declared here this afternoon that the only progress worth while was the progress which was in keeping with the ability of the taxpayers to pay, and that the bonded indebtedness of the State should not be increased beyond the ability of the nation's credit structure to carry it.

There are two definite schools of thought at present with regard to the advancement which the State should make," the Governor said. "One school represents the 'progress at any price' group which urges the immediate completion of all state projects, which would involve an expenditure of nearly $100,000,000. They have no thought of the ability of the taxpayers to carry this burden or of the bond market to absorb the bonds. They are nothing more than opportunists, who think only of the present without regard for the future."

"Then there is the other school comprising what I believe to be the larger portion of the thinking people of the State, who while in favor of making progress along all lines, feel that this progress should be more or less conservative and in keeping with the ability of the people of the State to pay for this progress. These people believe that any program of expenditures should take the future into consideration as well as the present, and that the future should be amply safeguarded. While it may take a little bit longer, the same ends will eventually be achieved without having to take any dangerous risks, and this is the program of progress which I advocate," the Governor declared.

The record of the Democratic party in the State in the last 25 years was briefly outlined by Governor McLean and contrasted with the accomplishments and progress under Republican control, previous to that time. He pointed to the fact that in the 25 years under Democratic administration, more than $200,000,000 of public money had been handled without a suspicion of graft.

Again an intimation was given that a determined fight would be put up for the eventual establishment of an eight months term for all the schools of the State when the governor declared that while the progress made in public education in the state in the last 25 years had been phenomenal, the Democratic party was far from satisfied and would not rest in its fight for better education until every child in North Carolina was assured of as good an education as the children of any state in the Union.

The increasing tendency of the rank and file of Republicans to see the wisdom of maintaining a Democratic state government was stressed, the Governor asserting that an increasing number of Republicans were voting the Democratic ticket in State elections each year.

Though the notice had been short, a large audience, for an afternoon audience, and here, as in Hickory last night, an enthusiastic welcome was given to the Governor.

Reports of increased activity and interest in the election were given by the governor from all the sections visited since he left Raleigh last Saturday, and while it is generally conceded that the Democrats will poll a good vote, the principal thing the party faces at present is getting the vote on November 2. The importance of getting every vote, to the polls on election day is constantly being stressed, and if this can be done, the democrats feel sure of a record vote at this election.

Immediately following his address, the governor was to leave here for Asheville, where he will be the speaker of the evening at the banquet to be given by the Morris Plan Bankers Association, in session there is address tonight will be along banking lines, rather than political. Tomorrow night he will speak in Lenoir, and Thursday afternoon in Lincolnton, probably speaking either in Concord or Marion Thursday night. He will speak in Albemarle on Friday night.

UNITED LUTHERAN CHURCH IN AMERICA MEETS IN RICHMOND

Opens Its Fifth Biennial Convention in Richmond Tonight.—Some Figures of Progress.

MEMBERSHIP NOW TOTALS 942,920

This is the Largest Lutheran Body in the United States and Canada—Has 34 District Synods.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Richmond the old capital of the Confederate States of America, today welcomed delegates from the reunited Lutheran churches in the North and in the South, assembled here for the fifth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church of the United States and Canada.

Three times in the last eight years Lutheran delegates from the South have gone forth into northern cities to confer on ecclesiastical methods and plan the work of the church. Once, in 1920, the convention met at Washington. This year for the first time delegates from the northern cities are meeting their southern brethren on southern soil.

At the time of the war between the states schisms appeared in the ranks of the great churches, and Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Lutheran denominations divided into northern and southern groups, the separation of three of these denominations continuing to the present day. In three of these groups efforts have been made to reunite the divided churches, but without success up to the present time.

After overtures toward merger on one side or the other had been made during a period of four decades, the first approach being made in 1870, delegates of three outstanding Lutheran bodies met in New York City in 1918 to organize the present United Lutheran Church in America.

The northern bodies, the General Synod and the General Council, and one southern body, the United Synod of the South, had previously taken definite action favoring the merger and sent representatives to the convention instructed to vote in favor of a union that would at once submerge the animosities and differences of half a century before, and pave the way for effective co-operation.

The present convention of the reunited church, which will continue in session for an entire week, is attended by delegates representing approximately 1,380,000 members grouped together in 34 district synods.

The convention will hear reports on the increasing effectiveness of home missionary works in hundreds of communities and will discuss plans for a consolidation of such work. The reports will tell of the development of American Lutheran work in the foreign fields in India, Africa, Japan, South America and the West Indies, and the purchase and occupation of a new field in China. The educational, social service, publication and other activities of the church will be considered in detail. Particular attention will be given to the efforts that are being made to lighten the burden of Lutheran immigrants to the United States and Canada from foreign lands.

Some Statistics. New York, Oct. 19.—The United Lutheran Church in America, which opens its fifth biennial convention in Richmond, Va., tonight, has gained 38,167 in baptized membership during the past year bringing its total membership up to 1,417,900, according to latest statistics compiled by Rev. G. L. Kieffer, statistical secretary. Confirmed membership likewise shows an increase of 30,000 over last year's figures, bringing the new total to 1,042,920.

The United Lutheran Church, which is the largest Lutheran general body in the United States and Canada, is divided into 34 district synods, each of which sends clerical and lay delegates to the conventions. During the past year the 5,418 congregations comprising the church contributed $923,116 to education, $218,881 to foreign missions, $110,706 to home missions, $403,638 to inner missions, their total benevolences amounting to $3,722,895. During the year valuation of church property increased from $103,878,226 to $114,306,118 and congregational expenses outside of benevolence reached a total of $15,793,304.

A supplementary report made to Secretary Kieffer by inner mission institutions connected with the United Lutheran Church shows a total property valuation of $11,982,682; and 43 theological seminaries, colleges and junior colleges and academies reported a total valuation of $12,170,130. Six hundred and four professors were employed teaching in the educational institutions where a total of 9,005 men and women are students.

GOV. McLEAN AT HICKORY

Is Getting to Be an Excellent Campaigner.—Is in Fine Fettle.

By J. C. BASKERVILL, Staff Correspondent.

Hickory, Oct. 19.—Governor A. W. McLean reached here Monday afternoon in fine fettle, after spending four days in enemy territory, during which an enthusiastic reception has been given him at every stop. The governor is growing enthusiastic for the outlook of the Democratic party in the approaching election on November 2nd, and he is more and more convinced that the rank and file of thinking Republicans are seeing the wisdom of maintaining Democratic control in the State government, with the result that more and more of them are going to vote the Democratic ticket this fall.

And this by no means is the view of Governor McLean alone, but is the opinion of those who are politically sagacious through all the sections of the state which so far have been visited—Greensboro, Lexington, Winston-Salem, Concord, Statesville and Hickory. At every place, those "in the know" concerning matters political, have told The Tribune correspondent that there is real satisfaction on almost every hand with the manner in which state affairs are being administered and that an ever-growing number are turning toward the Democratic party because they realize that it stands for fair government by the majority of the people for the majority of the people.

This was very evident in Lexington Saturday night, both during and after the address by Governor McLean. During the speaking one man remarked to The Tribune correspondent that he did not know that he was talking to a newspaper man—that there were at least 200 Republicans in the audience of at least 1,000 persons who listened attentively for nearly two hours as Governor McLean recited the accomplishments of Democratic administrations in North Carolina. And his hearers, including the 200 or more Republicans, gave approval with frequent and spontaneous applause. The governor was not singing his own praises, either—far from it. In fact, he scarcely referred to any of the accomplishments of his own administration, dwelling entirely upon the record of the Democratic party as a whole.

Hence it is believed that Davidson county may be pretty well depended upon to give a Democratic majority in the coming election, since it gave a majority of nearly 400 votes to Governor McLean in 1924, the first time in 25 years it had given a Democratic majority to a candidate for governor. And judging from all appearances, the popularity of the Democratic party has increased greatly in the county in the last two years.

The governor is getting to be an expert campaigner and is heartily enjoying himself. It was almost midnight before he went to his room Saturday night, having remained in the lobby of the hotel until late chatting with friends and meeting new ones. He was up early Sunday morning, however, and insisted on calling on several friends before leaving for Winston-Salem.

One of the calls he enjoyed most was that upon Frank C. Robbins, 94 years old, one of the most prominent men in Davidson county and a man who has had a large share in its development and progress. Captain Robbins, while not as active as formerly, is still keenly interested in political matters, state, national and international and conversed interestingly with the governor on various matters, both of which he thought the present campaign had not been begun early enough, and that the people should take more interest in politics than they do.

Governor McLean reached Winston-Salem Sunday morning about 10:30 and attended church services at Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of which Dr. Charles C. Weaver was pastor, with B. C. Wamble, who will be State senator from Forsyth county in the next general assembly and who was a member of the house during the last session.

Sunday afternoon the governor visited the teachers' training school for colored teachers and made a brief talk, after which he left with his party for Statesville, spending Sunday night there.

Monday morning the governor proceeded to Concord, where he visited Stonewall Jackson Training School, State reform school, and made a short talk to the boys, calling upon them to make the best possible use of their opportunities in order to become useful citizens. "He was much impressed with the work being done at the school. From Concord he came on to Hickory, arriving early in the afternoon.
