

ILLINOIS STUDENTS EXPELLED AND DRY MEN MAKE INQUIRY

Students Were Charged With Drinking, Gambling and Using Automobiles.

CHARGES LIQUOR SOLD AT SCHOOLS

It is Also Said the Dry Agents Are Making an Inquiry at the Wisconsin University.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—(AP)—On the heels of an announcement that twelve University of Illinois students had been expelled for drinking, gambling and using automobiles, a story was published today by the Herald & Examiner that federal prohibition agents were investigating the sale of liquor to students at a number of colleges in Chicago territory.

Prohibition officials declined to discuss the subject, but the newspaper said women dry agents were reported working under cover at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, that a prohibition agent had departed to investigate drinking at an unnamed Indiana college, and that under cover workers also were in Urbana and Champaign, home of the University of Illinois.

At the time of the first action, Dean Shomas Arkie Clark, secretary of the council of administration, said the council intends to curb drinking, gambling and the use of automobiles by students, and intends to deal seriously with all violators of University rules.

Dean Clark said it was his custom to turn over to federal authorities any information he obtains in regard to the sale of liquor. "There is no question about drinking among college students, both men and women," he was quoted by the Herald Examiner as saying, "but I don't think there is as much as was before prohibition."

Other educators questioned by the paper also expressed the opinion that student drinking was falling off.

THE COTTON MARKET

Continued Steady at 13,224-13,225 to 2 1/2 Points, Private Report Estimates Crop at 13,224,000 Bales.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The cotton market opened barely steady today at a decline of 2 to 3 points, but under renewed Southern bidding combined with local and commission house selling inspired by easier late cables from Liverpool and a private report placing the indicated crop at 13,224,000 bales, and gainings to November 1 at 10,900,000 bales.

January eased off to 12.27, a net decline of 8 points, but initial offerings seemed to be readily absorbed by trade buying or covering and there were rallies of 5 or 6 points from the lowest before the end of the first hour. Private cables reported London and Manchester buying in the Liverpool market, owing to increased optimism over the British coal situation which may have helped steady the market here after the initial decline.

Cotton futures opened fairly steady, Dec. 12.18; Jan. 12.27; March 12.55; May 12.80; July 13.08.

SEEK CONSPIRATORS IN FRENCH VILLAGES

Men Sought to Set Up the "State of Catalan" in Spain, Is Charged Against Them.

Perpignan, France, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The police in this region continue to search remote villages for possible further contingents of conspirators who had intended to make an expedition into Spain to set up the "state of Catalan."

When the 125 men now under arrest here saw the organizer of the movement, Col. Francisco Macias, who surrendered yesterday, they gave their word of honor they would not seek to escape.

FIGHT OF STUDENTS RESULTS IN COURT ACTION IN BOSTON

Students Charged With Malicious Destruction of Property During Freshman-Sophomore Battle.

FRESHMEN SOUGHT SEATS AT BANQUET

Were Denied Admittance by Sophomores and the Battle Followed.—Five Students Taken to Court

Boston, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Five students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology had to appear in court today on charges of malicious destruction of property during a sensational riot in Cambridge and Boston.

During a battle with police reserves, several thousand dollars worth of property was destroyed. The trouble started when 400 freshmen attempted to break up the annual sophomore banquet with tear gas bombs.

The banquet was being held at the expansion of the institute in Cambridge when the freshmen demanded admittance and were refused. Bombs were then hurled through broken windows and upper classesmen evacuated and went to the freshmen.

After a few minutes of fighting during which six sophomores became unconscious an armistice was declared, and the students, 600 strong, started for Harvard Square. Automobiles were wrecked and trolley cars were stopped and the windows broken and wires cut.

Students then "crashed the gate" of the subway, and took possession of a two-car train, riding into Boston free of charge.

One woman passenger fainted during the riot, car windows were pulled out, electric lights broken and fire extinguishers emptied.

In Boston the rioters blocked traffic at Tremont and Boylston streets by stopping automobiles, tearing off their number plates and doing other damage. Chased from this section by police reserves, they went to a public ball room near Boylston Street, where they wrecked its furniture to the extent of $2,000, according to the management.

WAS OUR ADVERTISER

Take Clive's cold caps and get rid of that cold.

Suits from $19.75 and overcoats from $18.50 up at W. A. Overcash's. The Shopped Shoe Hospital puts only good leather in their repair work. Efrid's Thanksgiving Sale now going on. Winter clothing for all the family at Efrid prices.

Use the telephone for your grocery orders. The J. & H. Cash Store's number is 587.

Reliable Hardware at Low Prices is the slogan of the Ritchie Hardware Co.

You will find dependable goods at the lowest prices at the Charles Store, 345 S. Union street. Big values in toys, from 5 cents to $2.98. In The Tribune today you will find a large ad. giving you some of the Special November offerings at this store.

Scalp and hair ailments treated at Parks-Bell Company's Beauty Shoppe, Phone 802.

Costs of Superior style and quality at the J. C. Penney Company's.

The Seth Thomas clocks are guarantees of accuracy. See ad. of S. W. Prentiss.

You will find some excellent bargains in wool blankets at the Parks-Bell Co's. See list and low prices in their ad. today.

The new series of stock in the Citizens B. & L. Association will open Saturday, November 6th. Don't fail to take some shares in this new series.

Lady Stonehaven, wife of the Governor-General of Australia, has completed a journey of 8,000 miles with her husband, in which 3,500 miles were covered by aeroplanes.

Governor McLean Calls Cotton Conference To Meet on Monday

Tribune Raleigh Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—Acting at the earnest request of the Cotton Finance Committee, and the Cotton Warehouse Committee, Governor A. W. McLean has called a conference for the purpose of devising ways and means to put into effect a definite plan for cotton acreage reduction and further crop diversification, has called a conference to meet in Raleigh, in the House of Representatives, on November 8th at 11 o'clock. As many farmers as possible from all the cotton counties in the state, as well as representatives of other organizations are urged to be present to help work out a "well-adjusted program of farming and the need of a possible reduction in cotton acreage."

A committee was named by the two committees to aid in bringing about this next conference on crop diversification and cotton acreage reduction, as follows: W. A. Graham, commissioner of agriculture, J. B. Blalock, chairman of the committee on agriculture, North Carolina Bankers' association, N. C. Bartlett, secretary Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce and President E. C. Brooks, of State College.

This was the unanimous opinion of members of the statewide cotton finance committee and warehouse committee, appointed by Governor A. W. McLean to study the cotton situation, and who met in joint session here yesterday to go further into the situation. And they went into it exhaustively, with the result that immediate steps are to be taken toward organizing a statewide, uniform plan for reduction of cotton acreage next year.

At first, there was some discussion as to whether the question of a acreage reduction should be taken up now, or let go over for a while yet, to permit the effort being made to remove excess cotton from the market to get under way. In opening the session, Governor McLean called attention to the fact that the thing of primary importance was to get the machinery in motion to finance and store cotton already produced, and that this had been virtually completed with the formation of the North Carolina Cotton Finance Corporation, whose organization was completed in Greensboro on Wednesday. With its capitalization of $1,000,000 and with $1,000,000 now available through the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, and with the warehouses, bankers and merchants of the state co-operating to the last man, the facilities for taking care of the present crop surplus are excellent. The Governor then asked the committee if it deemed it wise now to go forward immediately with formulations plans for crop reduction.

And after brief discussion, it was decided that the Governor be urged to call a conference as soon as possible of all those interested in cotton from any angle whatever, and that at this conference, some definite and uniform plan be adopted for acreage production, and at the conclusion of the session a resolution was adopted to this effect: A second resolution was also adopted asking that the North Carolina Bankers Association arrange to hold its ten district conferences as soon after the meeting called by the Governor as possible, in which the plans promulgated in the crop reduction conference will be explained, and the bankers, merchants and farmers urged to use all their influence to put them into effect.

A third resolution was also adopted asking the railroads to extend their "storage in transit" rates for 24 months instead of 12, as at present.

Following the session of more than three hours, during which every phase of the present cotton situation was gone into exhaustively, members of the two committees departed in an optimistic frame of mind, and of the opinion that not only had much been accomplished to relieve the immediate cotton situation, but providing adequate means of financing and warehousing, to relieve the market if the present surplus, but that effective machinery had been set in motion looking toward really substantial acreage reduction for next year.

Following the opening of the session by Governor McLean, in which he briefly stated what had been done already and asked for advice as to what course to continue, the meeting was turned over to J. B. Blalock, (Cowan), chairman of Finance committee. Mr. Simpson briefly outlined the steps incident to the formation of the million dollar Cotton Finance Corporation, through which individual farmers, banks and merchants may secure loans of from nine months to three years on cotton property stored in warehouses.

It was explained that in order to reduce the cost of doing business, and in order to enable as many as possible, especially individual farmers, to take advantage of the services of the corporation, the banks over the state are to be asked to serve merely as agents for the corporation in making loans, charging nothing for this service, and without discounting the notes. Thus farmers may arrange loans either through their own local banks, at no added cost, or they may deal directly with the Cotton Finance Corporation, through its Greensboro office, as the individual farmers prefer.

In order to facilitate the handling of these notes, the board of directors of the Federal Intermediate Bank is to be asked to amend its rules, permitting the discounting of notes direct from the small country banks, without the necessity of going through the Finance Corporation, and to assist the smoother and faster functioning of this corporation in handling its loans, inasmuch as the bulk of the capital to be used must be obtained from the Intermediate banks. That these rules can be changed at once without much trouble was almost certain, according to M. L. Corey, formerly a member of the board, and at whose suggestion it was decided to seek a revision of the rules. Mr. Corey is now one of the three receivers of the old Tobacco Co-operative association, and has a thorough knowledge of the workings of the Federal Intermediate Bank.

As outlined by Simpson, the following procedure is necessary in order to secure loans on cotton from the corporation:

First, the applicant for a loan must present his warehouse receipts, showing the amount of cotton in storage in a bonded or state supervised warehouse. The receipts must also show the grade of the cotton.

If the receipts are approved, he can borrow up to 75 per cent of the value of the cotton at current market quotations. The time the loan is negotiated. The rate is six per cent, and the time not less than nine months nor more than three years. The cotton so stored cannot be withdrawn and sold by the owner until the price has advanced to 15 cents a pound or higher. If prices fall below 15 cents, no more of the stored cotton can be sold.

Whether or not the notes will bear interest from the date of issuance until the cotton is sold, or whether they will be discounted when made, and a rebate granted if paid before maturity, has not yet been determined, and will be taken up later by the board of directors and the Intermediate Credit Bank. An effort will be made, however, to have them bear interest from date of issuance to date of sale and settlement.

Saw Sobs

Mrs. Blanche C. Rice (above) said "Mother" Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, displayed great emotion upon receiving reports that her daughter was drowned. She was a witness at the conspiracy hearing resulting from the evangelist's disappearance.

MUSSOLINI HAS NEW PLANS FOR PROTECTION

Would Create New Police System, New Court and New Death Penalty Law, Rome, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mussolini's scheme to introduce more drastic means of protecting the fascist regime was presented by the Premier personally this morning at secret sessions of the cabinet and the national fascist directorate.

The Premier also had further conferences with Secretary-General Turati of the fascist party, minister of Justice Federzoni, and minister of Justice Rocci, regarding three proposed measures, the first providing that the recently approved death penalty for attempts against the life of the Premier or members of the royal family be made retroactive; the second calling for reorganization of the police system; and the third authorizing sweeping revisions of the membership of the fascist party with the object of weeding out suspected members.

It is understood that the retroactive death penalty law to be drafted by Signor Rocci will create a special branch court of cassation for the judgment of such cases instead of leaving them to the ordinary jury courts.

Negro Gets Reprieve

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—James Jeffrey, Wake county negro under sentence to die this morning for criminal assault, was saved by a last minute reprieve from Governor McLean. The governor's action stalls the negro's execution until December 3rd and was granted for the purpose of further investigation into his mental status. The negro has stoutly maintained his innocence. He was convicted on identification of his victim, an aged white woman.

DRIVE TO PREVENT SEATING OF VARE HAS BEEN STARTED

Senator Norris Says He Will Fight the New Senator When the Senate Is Convened.

CHARGES CORRUPT ELECTION IS SEEN

In Some Precincts Wilson Not Credited With Single Vote—Many Charges Are Lodged.

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The drive against seating William S. Vare, Republican, as the junior senator from Pennsylvania in the seventieth Congress has opened.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who spoke in Pennsylvania on behalf of William B. Wilson, the Democratic senatorial candidate, because of alleged excessive campaign expenditures by the Republicans, declared here that Senator Vare, although technically elected, has been repudiated by the "honest patriotic people of the state" and that the Philadelphia "machine" had functioned as usual, the results in some precincts having been announced before any votes were cast.

Meanwhile the committee of seventy, an unofficial body in Philadelphia, was preparing to make an investigation in a number of Philadelphia precincts where Mr. Wilson was not credited with having a single vote. Members of the committee attached much importance to official returns which credit Wilson with no votes in forty-four divisions in that city, and with only one vote in each of a number of other divisions.

Discussion of the Pennsylvania situation is expected to be renewed here Wednesday when the Senate reconvenes as a court of impeachment of the eastern district of Illinois, on charges of usurpation of power and other high misdemeanors. In view of Judge English's resignation yesterday and the decision of the House manager to recommend that the proceedings be dropped it is believed that the Senate session will be only perfunctory.

Related and scattered returns over might failed to change the party lineup in the seventh House, which recedes: Republicans, 230; Democrats, 195; Farmer-Labor, 2; Socialist, 15.

It is understood that the retroactive death penalty law to be drafted by Signor Rocci will create a special branch court of cassation for the judgment of such cases instead of leaving them to the ordinary jury courts.

Negro Gets Reprieve

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—James Jeffrey, Wake county negro under sentence to die this morning for criminal assault, was saved by a last minute reprieve from Governor McLean. The governor's action stalls the negro's execution until December 3rd and was granted for the purpose of further investigation into his mental status. The negro has stoutly maintained his innocence. He was convicted on identification of his victim, an aged white woman.

Senator Norris, declaring that the "country should be told the truth about Pennsylvania," asserted that it is apparent that no honest election was held and that the results were an impossibility except through "fraudulent manipulation."

Mr. Vare, Senator Norris added, "ran several hundred thousand votes behind the Republican ticket, and outside the city of Philadelphia where the Vare machine is supreme, Mr. Vare was defeated by 50,000 majority."

Illustrating what he designated the "methods followed by this machine," he said "in 76 voting precincts in Philadelphia casting in round numbers 17,000 votes Mr. Wilson is given a total of 32 votes. Does any sane patriotic citizen of the United States think for a moment that these figures are the actual result of a fair and honest election?"

Senator Overman Denies He Is Ill, Salisbury, Nov. 5.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Overman reports that he never felt better and there is no ground for the report that he is ill and not allowed to see callers. The Senator attended an oyster roast last evening and feels well today.

It doesn't take much strength to shake an old man to his foundations. A very light wind has often done it.

FOOTBALL HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Having dropped out of the championship competition, the local high school football team will play a drive for the grid championship of Cabarrus county.

The first game in this series will be played this afternoon when the Cadets from M. P. C. I. will furnish the opposition at Webb Field. The game will begin at 3:30.

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN THE STATE OVER 80,000

Democrats Delighted With Outcome of the Election Tuesday.

Tribune Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Nov. 5.—With a majority ranging from 85,000 upwards, and a larger proportionate majority than ever before recorded in an off-year election, Democratic leaders are delighted with the outcome of the election and are unstinted in their praise of the manner in which the campaign has been conducted by John G. Dawson, chairman of the State Democratic committee, and his able assistants.

All agree that the campaign was ably planned and conducted on a high plane, and that credit for much of the work in connection with it must go to John Dawson, although he characteristically gives all the credit to his corps of able helpers.

"One of the most potent factors in the campaign was not the work of any one person or group of persons, but the able assistance given by the newspapers of the state," Mr. Dawson declared, in discussing the campaign. "And I do not mean to the Democratic party alone, but to both parties. Never before has the press of the state as a whole been more liberal in giving its valuable news space to clear and unbiased reports of the campaign and the principles involved than in this one. By means of this excellent service by means of which the views of both sides were presented and discussed, the people were better enabled to judge what the real issues were and make up their minds accordingly. And the outcome of the election shows that they did just this thing. Without the splendid cooperation of the newspapers of the state, we would not have been able to accomplish nearly as much as we did."

So far Democratic headquarters concede that twelve counties wholly to the Republicans, declining to either concede or claim Catawba county, where the fight was so close as to make it still in doubt. These twelve counties are: Avery, Clay, Davie, Graham, Madison, Macon, Mitchell, Jackson, Stokes, Wilkes, Yadkin and Henderson.

It was pointed out that the loss of Macon and Jackson counties to the Republicans was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

These losses are more than offset by the bringing of Watauga, Johnston, Sampson, Randolph and several other supposedly Republican counties back into the Democratic fold. Watauga county had not returned a Democratic majority for 24 years, and Sampson county was not so serious as might be thought, inasmuch as these two counties have been considered as virtually Republican, although they have for the most part gone Democratic since 1918 but by very small margins. Stokes county went Republican by a majority of little more than fifty votes, and Wilkes county, the home county of Johnston J. Hayes, was able to roll up a Republican majority of only about 1,000 votes.

WITNESS FOR STATE IN MURDER TRIAL IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Jane Gibson Said to Be Dangerously Ill and Progress of Her Case Is Keenly Watched.

DR. SCHUTZE IS HEARD IN CASE

Says He Thinks Mrs. Mill's Tongue Was Pulled Out by Roots by Person Who Committed Crime.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The precarious health of the state's star witness and the opinion of a doctor based on autopsies that the murderer of Mrs. Eleanor Mills had torn her tongue out by the roots gave her the center of the stage today in the unfolding drama of the Hall-Mills murder mystery.

Mrs. Jane Gibson, raiser of pigs and former circus rider, who claims to have viewed the double slaying, was dangerously ill in the Somerville hospital. The prosecution's hope of building the strongest possible case fluctuated inversely to her high temperature.

Dr. Otto Schutze, who performed autopsies on the bodies of Mrs. Mills and the Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall, revealed the gist of what his testimony on the stand today would be.

He found, he said, that the choir singer's tongue and the larynx containing the vocal cords had been torn out by a hand thrust far down into the throat either at the time she was killed or shortly thereafter.

Court refused yesterday to adjourn to the hospital to get Mrs. Gibson's testimony that she saw the three defendants, Mrs. Hall, the rector's wife, Henry and Willie Stevens at the scene of the murder.

One of the fifteen witnesses examined in the first two days of the trial was testifying in regard to the alleged finger prints of Willie Stevens found on a card at the feet of the slain rector. When Mr. Simpson received a note as to Mrs. Gibson's condition.

The prosecutor told the court that Mrs. Gibson, when he said he saw the three defendants, Mrs. Hall, the rector's wife, Henry and Willie Stevens at the scene of the murder.

He said that Mrs. Gibson's testimony was vital to the prosecution, especially as four other witnesses had died since the murder. Defense attorneys objected, on the grounds that her condition would prevent the severe cross examination they considered necessary.

SAYS HUNGARY AND ROMANIA TO UNITE

Everything Ready for an Early Union of Two Countries Under Common Sovereign.

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Former minister of justice Emil Nagy stated in parliament today that everything had been prepared for an early union of Hungary with Romania under a common sovereign, Great Britain, he added, did not oppose the plan.