

Nearing Halfway Mark, Solons Begin Another Week With Huhg Tasks

In Sight at Beginning of Fifth Week Were Reports on Appropriations, Revenues and Roads.

JUGES' SALARIES UP IN SENATE Bill Would Increase Total to $8,000 for Salary and Expenses. - Broughton Bill Up Next Friday.

Raleigh, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Nearing the halfway mark of the session, the State legislature has its fifth week's beginning tonight after a week-end recess. Procedure began to point more directly toward final legislation.

In sight were major committee reports to both houses on appropriations, revenue roads, education and courts. The all-important question of taxes lay a little in the background, linked with the school question.

The house's last work before reconvening tonight of outstanding interest, was passage by the house of the bill of Representative Woodard, of Nash county, endorsed by the State insurance department, which would increase exemption of non-medical examination insurance from $2,000 to $5,000.

The senate had before it tonight probably its busiest session thus far, for two measures that have provoked opposition are down as special orders for consideration, and another measure that was considered as possibly provoking a fight was put on the special order at the request of the author.

First of these special order measures is the bill providing for increase in the pay of Supreme and Superior court judges to a total of $8,000 for salary and expense accounts. This would represent an increase of $4,500 over the present compensation for the judges.

The second special order was the proposal to change the automobile license year from the fiscal year running from July 1st to June 30th, the next year, to the calendar year. The measure was held up for further investigation last week when Senator Hargett, of Trenton, read an estimate from the Highway commission indicating that the change would involve an expense to the state of about $150,000.

Some of the senators thought that the accrued interest on the fees collected for the six months period in January instead of June would nearly meet this additional expense but the senator from Jones county made such an impression with his exhibit of figures that the bill had been set aside for further consideration.

The final special order in the senate for tonight was the bill requiring all drug stores and pharmacies to register at a cost of $1 annually.

The Broughton bill providing for amendments to the death penalty law was scheduled for a special order next Friday.

No arrest had been made late tonight by Monroe police.

SHOULD NORTH CAROLINA REHABILITATE HER CRIPPLES

Statewide Plan of Orthopaedic Clinics Is Described.

Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Jan. 31.—Should North Carolina rehabilitate its cripples? This question asked in a new and interesting bulletin just published by the Division of Vocational Education of the State Department of Public Instruction.

This bulletin graphically sets forth the accomplishments of vocational rehabilitation with many interesting pictures of cripples before and after rehabilitation! One illustration is that of a man who lost both legs in a wheel chair accident, and had been a railroad chair inmate of a county home for two years at a cost of $384. He was rehabilitated at an expense to the State of $86.44. Since his rehabilitation four years ago, his earnings have averaged $20 per week, making a total of $4,160. His support would have cost the county $768 during this time, but for the vocational rehabilitation service. The $86.44 of the State money invested in the rehabilitation of this man in only four years has brought a return of $4,928 in savings effected and material wealth produced. This return is small as compared with some handicapped persons whose earning capacity has been increased as much as $90 per week or three times as much as this case.

Through the vocational training, orthopaedic treatment, and other assistance provided by the rehabilitation service, more than 400 dependent cripples have been made productive and self-supporting.

The average age of these 400 rehabilitated cases is thirty years. They, therefore, have an average period of work expectancy of twenty years. An average increase in earning capacity of $10 per week due to rehabilitation would be a very conservative estimate. In round numbers this would amount to $500 per year of $10,000 for the period of work expectancy for each case. This multiplied by 400, the number rehabilitated, equals a combined earning capacity of $400,000 produced by rehabilitation. The cost of rehabilitation to the state is but 2.7 per cent of the increased earning capacity. For every dollar of State money invested in rehabilitation, $37.04 are returns to society in the form of increased earning capacity. The savings effected for the communities in relieving them of the care of these 400 cripples on an average of twenty years apiece has not been included in the above figures.

A state-wide plan of orthopaedic clinics is described in the bulletin. The districting of the state and location of these clinics is shown by a small map. During the first year of operation of the clinics 1,070 cripples were examined and treated. Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs are sponsoring and supporting clinics at the following places:

Fayetteville, North Wilkesboro, Charlotte, Wilson, Waynesville, Winston-Salem, Reidsville, New Bern, Wilmington, Asheville, Burlington and Weldon.

WANTS GREAT BRITAIN TO KEEP TROOPS FROM CHINA

Foreign Minister Says Troop Movement May Not Be Understood by Chinese.

Peking, Jan. 31.—(AP)—H. V. K. Wellington Koo, foreign minister of the northern government, today addressed a note to the British legation here, protesting against the dispatching of British forces to Shanghai, and asked that it be transmitted to London in the hope that the British government would "give necessary instructions for the immediate withdrawal of troops dispatched to China, so nothing untoward may happen to the friendly relations of the two nations."

The foreign minister's note declared the "dispatch of additional naval and military forces to China is contrary to the spirit of the league of nations covenant. It cannot be over-emphasized that the national spirit of the Chinese people has been developed, and the military movement on the part of the British government is liable to lead to serious misunderstanding."

Dr. Koo further declared that if the object of the expedition was merely to protect the Shanghai international settlement such is unnecessary, maintaining that the Chinese authorities are capable of doing that, while "the presence of a large number of foreign troops in this area might lead to unforeseen complications, for which the Chinese government could not be held responsible."

DIARY AND LETTERS BY "PEACHES" NOT PUT INTO EVIDENCE

Justice Seeger Rules They Have No Real Bearing on Married Life of the Brownings.

PART OF LETTER IS ACCEPTED

Browning Lawyers Wanted to Show Something of Woman's Life by Means of a Diary.

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The diary kept by Mrs. Frances (Peaches) Keenan Browning, prior to her marriage was ruled out as evidence today by Supreme Justice Seeger.

The diary was said by Browning's attorneys to have contained the names of several "boy friends" of the young wife before the marriage. They were to be used as character witnesses, it was promised, should the diary be introduced in evidence.

Three letters identified Wednesday by Mrs. Browning as having been written to girl friends also were ruled out by the judge.

"I don't think it will help me very much," he said, "to go into the lives of either of these persons before their marriage. I think I can decide this case on the basis of actions during the marriage."

The letters, counsel for Browning told the court, referred to a "poker party" attended, he said, by the young woman before she became the real estate man's wife.

The justice later modified his order slightly to allow some of the evidence regarding Mrs. Browning's pre-marital life to be introduced in order that it "might be on the record" and "as there is no jury to be influenced."

Justice Seeger said that he would hold the testimony when he thought it had gone far enough.

Miss Marian Tussey, who testified for Mrs. Browning last week, was recalled to the stand as the first witness today and denied having told her landlord about the improper actions of Mrs. Browning.

Margaret Lew, employed by Bondy Greer, the landlord, testified that Miss Tussey had said that Mrs. Browning had gone out with a "lot of men." She denied that Miss Tussey had told of knowledge of improper acts of Mrs. Browning.

Louise Greer, wife of the landlord, denied that Mrs. Browning had said in her presence that he would "make it worth while for anybody to 'recollect' things against Mrs. Browning."

Leslie Fullenwider, who works for a newspaper feature syndicate, testified that he saw Mrs. Browning on the Thursday before she left her husband.

"She told me Mr. Browning was becoming unbearable, and asked, 'what shall I do?'" said the witness. "I said, 'we are newspaper people, not lawyers.'"

Nothing, he said, was said about writing any articles at that time.

The following Tuesday, he said, he saw her and her mother, but newspaper articles were not discussed until Wednesday. A contract was signed for $1,000. It was introduced as evidence.

City's Powers Limited Says Mayor Abernethy.

Charlotte, Jan. 29.—Mayor Abernethy announced today that all the city could do to stop the American Rescue Workers from operating here was to refuse to give a permit to solicit alms.

"It can not stop the organization from caring for charity patients within its home anymore than it could a private individual," the Mayor said.

If some individual or Sunday school class decided to contribute to the support of the American Rescue Workers' Home here that would be no affair of the city, was the announcement.

None of Important Measures Have Yet Come From Legislative Committee

The Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel By J. C. BASKERVILLE Raleigh, Jan. 31.—Things are beginning to lag in the general assembly and unless both houses, and especially the committee, get down to work in a good earnest way this coming week, the usual legislative jam at the end of the session will again become a very likely probability.

This was the opinion of a number of the older heads in both the senate and the house today, at the end of the fourth week of the general assembly. For while the session is almost half gone, none of the more important measures have as yet come from the committees to be put upon the calendar. True, most of these important bills have been introduced, but a number of them have been reposing in committee for two weeks or more.

The first committees to finish their task are the senate and house appropriation committees, which complete the joint hearings on the appropriation bill Friday, and hope to have the bill ready to report by Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest. But although this joint committee has speeded up its work, it really is of little use, since it must hold back the appropriations bill until the senate and house finance committees complete their work on the revenue bill. And this promise to be one of the longest tasks of all. Hearings just started this week, and but very slow progress has been made with the result that there is no definite time in sight for the completion of the hearings.

"Unless the finance committees get down to work a whole lot harder than they have been working this past week or two, things are going to get into a bad jam as has ever existed," said a veteran member of the house and incidentally of the finance committee, today in talking of the situation which in his opinion is far from encouraging.

"There is a lot of talk about economy, but very little of it put into practice," said one of the newer members of the legislature. "I believe in wise economy and in putting it into practice and already I have seen enough of the State's money wasted by the legislature so far to take care of the requests of institutions and departments which its committees will probably say it can't afford. There are too many pages, too many clerks; there is too much time wasted and not enough of the members of the general assembly take their work seriously. The Saturday and Monday sessions are pure fancies. But I can't afford to come out and say this—at least not yet."

And there is quite a number who feel the same way about the situation. Committee meetings are desultory affairs, with often only a handful of the members present. No one seems to think that time is passing and that something must be accomplished.

There are many important bills coming up that have not even been introduced, all of which must make their tortuous way through committees to the floor. Among these are the county government reform measure, sponsored by the administration, the radio station bill, and also an administration measure, the bill to limit the ad valorem tax rate in cities and counties, just introduced in the senate, and the bill to change the manner of administering State banks thrown into receivership. All of these, of course, in addition to the revenue and appropriation bills, around which will revolve the principal debate of the present session.

Of almost equal importance—and perhaps of even greater importance, at least in the amount of time that will be consumed—are several measures still before the committees on education, of which the bill to bar the teaching of evolution is undoubtedly the foremost. In addition to this are several other bills relating to education, including the bills to levy a statewide ad valorem tax for educational purposes, which are bound to produce prolonged and heated debates both in committee and on the floor should they reach it. Then there is the Smith-Hargett highway bill—a storm cloud to be reckoned with and many others.

Thus there is due cause for alarm at the excessive delay so far.

Private cables said there had been calling and covering in the Liverpool market, and that manufacturers of cotton goods were well engaged with some trade improving.

MUST BOOTLEGERS PAY INCOME TAX?

U. S. Supreme Court Is Asked For a Ruling on the Question.

Washington, Jan. 31.—A Supreme Court ruling as to whether bootleggers must pay a Federal income tax upon their liquor sales profits or submit tax returns showing such business was asked today by the government.

The questions arose in a case from Charleston, S. C., where Manly S. Sullivan refused to report tax returns on alleged bootleg profits. He took the position that income tax returns could not be compelled nor the levies imposed on same derived from criminal operations.

HUNDREDS FLEE TO ESCAPE FLOODS IN ARKANSAS BOTTOMS

Thousands of Acres of Rich Farm Land Under the Water and Many Rivers Are Still Rising.

LEVEES HOLDING WATER BACK NOW

Should They Break Several Towns Would Be Flooded.—Many Homes Now Deserted.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Flood waters continued to strike menacingly at river levees in Arkansas today with hundreds of families already driven from their homes, and thousands of acres of rich farm lands under water.

Workers still were engaged in strengthening two important levees where breaks would cause heavy damages.

One of the levees is on the White River near Devalls Bluff. Workers were more hopeful today that their efforts there would be rewarded.

The other is the St. Francis River levee near Marked Tree, where a break would cause the flooding of the entire town, according to reports.

Breaks in a White River levee six miles north of Des Arc have resulted in the flooding of more than 20,000 acres of land, much of which is in cultivation, and have forced from 300 to 400 families to take to higher grounds.

The refugees from the flooded areas are being cared for in the homes of friends and in rescue camps. In some places the waters have receded sufficiently to enable families to return to their homes.

The highest waters in ten years in some sections of the state have resulted so far in no loss of life and little loss of livestock, although the damage to farm crops is reported to have been heavy.

FLAT FEET IN NAVY CAUSED BY CHARLESTON

(By International News Service) Oakland, Calif., Jan. 31.—The Charleston causes flat feet. At least that's the belief of naval recruiting men.

S. C. Wovens, recruiting officer for the United States navy in Charleston, declared that of the prospective recruits more than 50 per cent had flat feet.

"Twenty-six were turned down because of flat feet," Wovens declared, "and ten were refused because of rapid heart action. Most of the rejected applicants admitted they were Charleston enthusiasts."

WILL EXPECTED "STORM" BREAK IN LEGISLATURE?

Or Will It Turn Out to Be a "Tempest in a Teapot?"

The Tribune Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, Jan. 31.—Will the long heralded and much-expected "storm" break in the general assembly this week? It has been scheduled to, according to the most reliable lobby gossip. But there are a number who merely smile at this report.

In the first place, what is the "storm" going to break about? True, it has been generally circulated around that the "insurgents," under the generalship of Representative Walter Murphy, of Rowan, would launch their attack, chiefly on the governor and the appropriations budget bill. But since there is little possibility that the budget and appropriations measure will reach the floor of the house this week, although it will be completed, many are at a loss to understand how any "action" can be made on the governor except through the appropriations budget measure, or some other administration bill. And since no other administration bill of importance is expected to come up, it is being wondered if any one will have the temerity to make an independent onslaught without the bolstering alibi of some measure to which exception can be taken.

There has been a feeling in some quarters that Governor McLean was using his influence to block the enactment of the Australian ballot bill and direct charges to that effect have been made in an article appearing in a Raleigh morning newspaper. However, those closest to the administration maintain that the governor not only is not seeking to defeat the bill but is really in sympathy with the measure. However, he is not taking an active part in the discussion of the bill for the reason that he feels that it is a matter for the members of the general assembly to decide among themselves, without his intervention.

This bill has the strong support of all the women's organizations in the state and seems to have a very good chance, despite some determined opposition from certain localities.

For a time there appeared that there might be a rift over the bill designed to increase the number of superior court judges in the state might cause a rift, since the administration recommended a measure to increase the number of judges through a system of permanent emergency judges so as not to have to create new districts or additional solicitors. And at first when Representative Everett, of Durham, offered his bills to increase the number of judicial districts, there appeared that there might be some kind of a contest on this point. However, Mr. Everett has since announced that he will be in favor of the permanent emergency judge plan if it is found to be permissible under the constitution. And assurance is given now that the system is constitutional.

Thus it seems that in the absence of any issue or measure over which "storm" clouds are gathering, there is much likelihood that the storm may turn out to be a tempest in a teapot, or merely a cloud of rumor.
