PREPARE FOR COMING OF THE GROUNDHOG
 Weather Harbinger Will Make Annual Trip From Winter Den to Determine Weather for Six Weeks.
 What will the groundhog do tomorrow?
 This is a question of pertinence to that host of believers who yearly await the coming of the hog to see what the weather will be like for the next six weeks.
 Tradition says that if the groundhog comes from his burrow and sees his shadow there will be six more weeks of winter, but if he fails to see his shadow there will be an early spring.
 The origin of the folklore "sign" is dim. In history it is connected with Candlemas Day, the name of the ancient church festival celebrated annually on February 2nd.
 What difference does it make, however, where the legend started? There are thousands who believe it and other thousands who scoff at the idea that any particular species of animal knows any more about the weather than any other species. It's a disputed legend but one that creates interest every February 2nd.
 There is one phase of the legend, however, that even followers of the hog are not just certain about. They do not know at what particular time of the day he comes out. Some say he comes at sunrise, others that he comes at noon and still others that he waits until late in the afternoon to venture forth.
 The fact that there is no certain time for the hog's appearance is one thing that causes so much dispute. It is raining in the morning but clear in the afternoon and the weather for the next six weeks is bad, then believers of the legend say the hog came out in the afternoon. If conditions are just the reverse then they say he came out in the morning.
 There's always the loophole for those who are anxious to pay homage to the hog's weather-forecasting ability. The old superstition varies in different countries. In Scotland there is a rhyme that runs "If Candlemas is fair and clear there will be two winters in the year." The French have a similar saying as do the Germans. Different countries have different animals that take the place of the groundhog. In Germany it is the badger; in France and Switzerland it is the marmot; in England the hedgehog and in the Scandinavian countries it is a bear.
 Experts of the weather bureau scoff at the idea, and declare that records for the past fifty years reveal that the groundhog missed much more frequently than he hit.
 Tomorrow's the day. What will Mr. Hog say?

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD ANNIVERSARY TONIGHT

Local Camp to Meet Tonight at 7:30
 To Celebrate 25th Anniversary—28 Charter Members to Be Present and 28 Candidates to Be Put In.
 Elm Camp No. 16, Woodmen of the World, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary tonight at 7:30 at the Woodman of the World Hall.
 The numerals 25 will figure prominently in the 25th anniversary of the Camp for there are 28 charter members of the Camp and there will be 28 candidates for admission tonight.
 The meeting tonight will be composed of a program of speeches, music, refreshments, and a short memorial service for the 50 deceased members of the Camp. Frocks of the Moment Specially Priced
$9.75, $16.50, $22.50, $39.50

When your next invitation to luncheon and bridge appears don't have that feeling of not a new thing to wear. These Frocks are exceptional values, just arrived in the store. Their tiered skirts, sometimes in finely pleated effects, hiplines swathed in gorgeous sashes, slight blousiness and necklines made so becoming with yoke stylings are all details indicating their newness and chic. Three groups, in sizes 16 to 46. We suggest your seeing them today.

That Coat Is Smart this Spring Whose Fur Trimming Matches its Fabric

One of the first things you'll notice in viewing our Spring Coat collection is the number of Coats that have fur trimmings dyed the same tint as the fabric. And you'll also observe how very charming they are. For instance, a rose kasha model has a rose-tinted fur collar, and to be still smarter, it washions its cuffs and places a pointed insert of the pleats at the back of the neck.

SIMEON BALDWIN PASSES AT AGE OF 87
 Twice Governor of Connecticut and Former Chief Justice of State Supreme Court.
 New Haven, Conn., Jan. 30.—Simeon B. Baldwin, noted authority on international law and twice governor of Connecticut, died at his home here today. He was 87 years old.
 Mr. Baldwin, who was former chief justice of his state, many years before his death publicly expressed his belief that a human being had the right to die a natural death.
 "Old age," he said, "was the only natural way to death," and he deplored efforts of physicians to prolong life when death impeded from physical cause or when the patient was incurably ill. Mr. Baldwin himself became an illustration of his belief, although he could not foresee that when he took issue with medical practice which sought "merciful death" for the unfortunate.
 No cold formal legal opinion from the bench by him as chief justice, or any utterance by him as executive of the state received so much of wide-spread attention as did Judge Baldwin's address as president of the American Social Service association, in September, 1920, on "The National Right to a Natural Death."
 "Augusta Special" on East Schedule.
 Announcement is made by the Southern Railway of a change in the schedule of its "Augusta-Ashville Special," operating from New York to Augusta, Ga., which cars by way of Salisbury and Asheville.
 This train, which formerly left at 1:45 p. m., 35 minutes later. It leaves Washington at 7:25 p. m., instead of 7 a. m. formerly and arrives in Salisbury about 5 a. m. The Asheville cars arrive at 10:45 a. m., the same schedule as in recent months.
 The entire trip is made in 20 hours and 20 minutes. Ten minutes of the trip lost in leaving New York is picked up between New York

DR. CALDWELL BEGINS WORK WITH COUNTY
 Took Up Duties as County Health Officer During Morning—Has Conferences During Day.
 Dr. D. G. Caldwell this morning took up the duties of county health officer, succeeding Dr. S. E. Buchanan.
 Dr. Caldwell spent the morning going over records in the office and familiarizing himself with the book work of the office. This afternoon he had conferences with several persons.
 During the morning Dr. Caldwell also examined several prisoners at the county jail and paid a visit to several persons at the county home.
 The new health officer stated that he plans to continue actively all work heretofore undertaken by the department and to maintain the work as a live, public project.

Work Picks Up For Miss Mund's Office.
 Raleigh News and Observer.
 "Work has picked up right much with us during the past few days," observed Miss Rosa Mund, Engineering Clerk for the House of Representatives, yesterday. "We have a very efficient staff this year, and consequently the work is very agreeable."
 "Do we have much trouble reading the bills?" she repeated, smiling.
 "Well, no, not usually, but one gets right accustomed to reading all kinds of handwriting in a lawyer's office."
 Miss Mund has been connected with the House for a number of sessions, and is regarded as one of the most efficient employees of the Legislature.

At the First Methodist Protestant Church.
 Wednesday evening is being looked forward to as an outstanding event in our "church night" programs. The largest ever attendance is expected. A program of rare helpfulness will be given. All are invited to this service which begins promptly at 7:30. The first quarterly conference will be held at the close of service.
 Thursday rehearsal of both choirs will be held in the church auditorium. Friday cottage prayer meetings will be held as follows:
 Harry Hunter's, Kerr and McGill street, J. H. Sides, leader.
 At E. J. Mann's, Kerr street, C. D. Watkins, leader.
 At L. M. Williams', Pearl and Vance street, J. M. Blackwelder, leader.
 At the church with the Senior Christian Endeavor in charge.
 All neighbors and friends will be welcomed to any of these meetings and are invited to attend the one nearest them.
REPORTER.
 Young Negro Must Pay Monthly Sum.
 Monroe Boger, youthful negro, was tried in recorder's court Monday on a charge of carnal knowledge of a female. The court sentenced him to serve six months on the chain gang, unless to issue if he fails to pay the fine of $12.50 a month until he has paid her $230.
 The plaintiff gave birth to a child in December, it was said, and the defendant was arrested some time later on a warrant issued at the request of relatives of the plaintiff.
 The case attracted much interest among colored people, scores of whom were present for the trial.
 Lady Warwick withdrew her offer to adapt Easton Lodge at Warwick, England, for a labor university, because the Trades Union Congress was unable to raise necessary funds.
