Meet the Crown Prince of Swat! Gehrig Seen as Certain Successor to Babe Ruth

Lou Gehrig is doped as the logical successor to Babe Ruth, and he's already rivaling the Bambino in the matter of home runs. Much is attributed to his powerful physique. His forearm, detailed above, is more powerful than Ruth's. He's fast on the bases, too, as the smaller action picture shows.

By JACK Y. KEENE International Illustrated News Sports Authority NEW YORK (I-I-M)—It must be tough to be the two-hundred pound home run king of the diamond, still in your prime, and watch your throne being measured for the crown prince. Our sympathy goes out to Babe Ruth. But he doesn't need now as much as he will in a few years from now when the news, between cheers for Lou Gehrig, will murmur, "Poor Babe! He was a good fellow when he had it."

Memphis Bobbed Bandit and Lover, Out of Prison, to Start Life Anew

By International News Service. Memphis, Tenn., May 25.—A childhood romance, crucified on the altars of love, hardened by years of prison toil, aired in the grim courts of justice and scandal-mongered by publicity, will blossom in June when a gunman walks from behind gray prison walls of the Tennessee state penitentiary into the waiting arms of his wife-sweetheart, who left the same institution only a few months ago. It will be a great day for Ernest Strait, bandit and gunman, and Marion King Strait, a pretty little Mississippi heiress, who turned bandit, weathered the scorn of society and served a prison term to win the man she loved even as a boy. Behind the romance of Marion and Ernest lies a heart touching tale, the story of a country boy who "went wrong," the undying love of his childhood sweetheart which led her through years of prison life, a story of a girl who sacrificed honor and years of her life for love. This long dreamed of day, the day when Ernest would be free again, the day when they would move to her little farm down in Mississippi, the day when their sorrows would be ended, is coming soon—the second week in June. The world will remember Marion King as the daring bobbed-haired bandit. An orphan in infancy, her real name was never known to her, Marion, with her big brown eyes and baby smile, won herself a home when a laughing baby. She was adopted by Sheriff and Mrs. Tom King, of Tupelo, Miss. She grew up on King's plantation as Marion King. Just over the hill lived G. C. Strait, whose son, Ernest, was a couple years older than Marion. As Marion blossomed into a pretty lass of 16 she was sent away to a school. While the years passed by things changed. Both Sheriff King and his wife died. Their estate, a large plantation, was left to Marion. Marion graduated from school. Ernest had not been writing lately. She was worried. She returned home. His parents said he had gone to Memphis. Marion tried to find him and failed. She heard he was in trouble, and hurried to Memphis. Ernest had fallen in bad company, had drifted downward, had joined a bandit gang and was in jail. Without legal advice, friendless in a big city, a poor business judge, Marion visited her lover. She talked to him through prison bars. She must have Ernest. He would be freed on $10,000 bond but this would cost $150 from professional bondsmen, Ernest hold her. He had a plan, told her how to do it, and she decided it was the quickest way to have Ernest out of that "awful place."

Automobilitis Ruins Farmers Says Observer Who Is Sorry Motors Were Ever Invented

(By International News Service) Smith Center, Kans., May 24.—William Fletcher, wealthy farmer and extensive land owner here, believes he has found out what ails the farmer. It's "automobilitis." So fixed in his belief he has set an example for others to follow and declines to run his own car which has stood unused in his garage since last November. He preaches economy. Listen to his sermon: "Automobiles have ruined financially hundreds of thousands of farmers. 'Tye learned that to be the case with all my unsuccessful neighbors and friends. 'If autos had never been invented, farmers in all the states would have plenty of money and land would be selling for $100 per acre anywhere in the United States. 'The whole country has gone speed mad. The highways bring us nothing but buzzing sounds. The little trading communities are dead except for the filling station business and hot dog stand. Whenever the farmer wants to buy he hops into his flivver and goes to the far-away city. Let's get sensible again."

TUBERCULOSIS RELIEF

Doctor Says Manual Labor Is Important in Treatment

Atlantic City, May 26.—Contrary to general opinion, manual labor is an important part of the treatment of tubercular patients, Dr. Phillip Hillkowitz, of Denver Colo., declared in addressing the twenty-third annual convention of the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society in the Hotel Breakers, here yesterday. He is president of the society. At the Denver sanitarium, he pointed out, patients profitably employed have gained a new interest in life. Eighty per cent. of the patients in the Denver institution come from New York, the society was told. A branch sanitarium is to be built on a 300 acre estate at Goshen, N. Y. The site has already been purchased. Plans for the sanitarium have been approved by the New York State Board of Health, and are now before the State Board of Charities for approval. The society approved plans for a $1,000,000 building program in Denver. Prof. Allan K. Krause of Johns-Hopkins University, Baltimore, a lung specialist, declared that the paramount problem in the cure of tuberculosis today is the prevention of relapse during the three to five year period following the discharge of the patient from an institution.

Pay Honor to Gatling

Winton, N. C., May 25.—This little North Carolina town is preparing to commemorate its most illustrious son—Richard Jordan Gatling, the inventor of the gun which bears his name. Mrs. R. C. Bridger, president of the Hertford county chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, has asked Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, to aid in securing an obelisk Gatling gun to be erected upon the court house square here. Senator Simmons has taken the matter up with the office of the secretary of war, and has been advised that either of two available Gatling guns will be offered to Winton, provided the gun is formally requested by a Soldiers' Monument Association or a municipal corporation and that all expenses connected with the donation are paid by the recipients. Gatling was born here in 1818. He is called the "father of the machine gun."

Lawyers May Collect Any Bill But Their Own

Paris, May 23.—French lawyers can sue everyone except their own clients. Young Maurice Barrean, newly come to the bar, has brought this state of affairs to light by demanding that lawyers should have the right to collect their fees, just as they collect debts due others. The council of the order, however, shows no inclination to allow the law profession to sink to the level of mere trade, in which a business man sues when customers fail to pay. Indianapolis News—If, as reported, Mrs. Coolidge doesn't know where the Coolidge family is going to spend its vacation this summer, most husbands will have a strong hunch that Mr. Coolidge doesn't either.

One of the interesting attractions of the forthcoming Redpath Chautauqua is the Arcadia Novelty Company which will appear here on the first day of Chautauqua. This splendid company's entertainments are notable for the marked diversification of the selections and the artistry and zest with which these selections are given. This is an unusual company. The four charming young ladies who compose it are each artists in their own line, and together they present one of the best programs of the season. Their programs are rich in individual and ensemble numbers of originality and charm. For the instrumental numbers, a violin, piano, auto, xylophone, and cornet are used. Splendid vocal numbers are given, and original costumed song presentations, cleverly interpreted, are featured. In addition, readings, many of them humorous, occupy a favored place on the program.
