

HAM TO CLOSE HIS DANVILLE REVIVAL

That Meet Will Close From Sunday Comes as Surprise.

Danville, Va., June 10.—The revival led by M. F. Ham, which began on Sunday, will close on Sunday. Announcement to this effect was made by the evangelist on the platform of the tabernacle here today as a surprise. Only a few days ago E. G. Moseley, chairman of the laymen's committee which was the revivalist's return, felt that the meetings would last for seven weeks.

Members of the evangelist's party, however, point out that Rev. Mr. Ham does not expect to stay long in Danville, feeling that since he was recently installed as the pastor of a Baptist church in Oklahoma City that he could not spare much time away from his new charge.

Another incident in local church circles has come to light. A committee of stewards of Cabell Street Methodist church waited on the pastor, Rev. G. W. M. Taylor, and asked him if he would yield his pulpit to the evangelist next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Taylor said that if the plan was carried out it would be against his wish and that he would not attend the service. Rev. Mr. Taylor is pastor of the church of which Mr. Moseley is a leading member.

Not long after the Ham revival was announced, Rev. Mr. Taylor preached a sermon in his congregation in which he flayed modern evangelism and its commercial aspects being particularly scornful of the free will offering.

BANKRUPTCY ORDER VACATED BY WEBB

Previous Order Had Been Issued in Delaware Against Charlotte Corporation.

Charlotte, June 10.—The bankruptcy order against the Southern States Finance Company, issued in the United States district court here several months ago, Thursday was vacated by Judge E. Yates Webb. The action of the court was in line with a recent decision by Judge Hugh M. Morris, of Delaware that a bankruptcy order issued in the Delaware district court took precedence over the action here due to the fact that the corporation was organized under the Delaware law.

The affairs of the company became involved in September 1926 when North Carolina creditors filed a petition for appointment of a receiver by the Delaware federal court. The petition was granted in November 1926 and Edward S. Cannon of Trenton named receiver. An ancillary action was filed here by H. B. Adams of Waxhaw, in an effort to secure assets of the company here.

In August 1926 Mr. Adams had been appointed receiver by the State courts here and Judge Webb ordered him to turn over the assets to Mr. Cannon. Mr. Adams declined to do this and was cited for contempt. Mr. Adams also filed suit for $488,000 against officials and directors of the company alleging fraud and mismanagement.

BOYS SHOT WHILE BEATING A RIDE

Sawed-Off Shot Gun Used on Three Youthful Hoboes as Freight Train Comes to a Stop at Barber.

Three boys who were "beating" a ride on a westbound freight train Thursday night, were given drastic treatment at Barber about 1 o'clock this morning when some unknown party peppered them with shot.

Two of the young men were left here at an early hour this morning, one of them having to secure hospital attention, and a smaller boy, about 13 years of age, said to have been more seriously injured by shot, was taken on to his home in Asheville.

The young man who received the bulk of the first discharge of the unknown man's sawed-off shot gun gives his name as Lloyd E. Davis, 24 years of age, of Concord.

Davis states that his assailant, whom he took to be an officer, as the train was coming to a standstill at Barber, threw a flash light on him and immediately fired, the entire load having effect in his face, hand and chest. He heard the "gamer" shoot two or three times afterward, each time a hobo being the object of attack. Davis was not aware of what happened to the other hoboes, as he had to be helped into a box car—a negro man playing the Good Samaritan act—and was brought to Statesville.

Davis explains that he had worked in a cotton mill in Kannapolis for the past few months and had given up that job to go to Oteen where he hoped to secure employment.

Another young man, George Whit, of Greensboro, received one shot in the arm. He and the young man Davis are being detained here while the Railway authorities are making an investigation with a view to determining who did the promiscuous shooting. So far, no charge has been brought against the two young men held here.

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Bullman—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is the meteor of the tennis universe. A poetical, quiescent spiritual girl to Mary, despite her physical prowess. She has grown up with tennis balls. Her mother and serving them for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Nelson, a young reporter. Wally and Mary have much in common. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. She loves Wally. Wally takes her for a night ride.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"What are you telling me, Wally?" Mary was so deliciously sleepy. The breeze ruffled her skirt, and lifted her hair, and caressed the lobe of the ear that wasn't pressed against Wally's sleeve. Well-being filled her as comfort fills the well-fed tabby at the side of the fire. She cushioned her head against the brown leather of the car and flew with the stars. There was no earth, no long green roadster, no Wally. Just her gold-tipped wings. Elaine, the lily-maid of Astolat flying with the stars in a green roadster. With Lancelot! No. Not Lancelot. Lancelot was home, astride his broomstick, stalking a dignified patch. Then Wally brought her to earth.

"Mary, I love you, dear," he said.

The little green car flew on, with the stars keeping pace above and the wind singing against the motor. It was difficult to hear when words were spoken to the blackness of the silence ahead. What she had heard could not possibly be what Wally

"I consider it only fair to tell you that I intend to kiss you."

said. In the first place, granting she had heard right, it was ridiculous—that statement, at one's second meeting. No. It could not be that. And again, young men do not tell young women of their love against a throbbing motor, with mouths grim and chins straight ahead. And Wally's arm, against which her cheek was nestled, was laut. It could not be that. But he had spoken. Had said something. Mary turned her face to him and smiled. Brightly. Meaning agreement to those vague words he had spoken. "Yes?" her glance said.

The green car drew up in the inky dark at the side of the road and settled down with a gasp. There was a somewhat weary frown, Mary could see, and then the vagueness of innumerable trees, planted in rows, with thin young branches gnarled toward the heavens. An orchard, doubtlessly. She rose in the car, and straightened her ruffled skirt, and then sank back again, with a smile for Wally. He had turned toward her, and was watching her, one arm across the seat of the car behind her shoulders, and the other resting on the steering wheel.

"Well?" he said. Did it mean so little to her then, that she could rise, and straighten the folds of her skirt, and sink back again with that bright vague smile for him? Was she prepared to ignore his declaration to save him pain? Dolores—

"Elaine, dear." He called her their play name.

"Wally." Her sweet little face with the misty green eyes turned upward toward him.

He grew whimsical. Her fondness for this too-headed youth increased when his smile was wry, and his eyes narrowed.

"I am of much interest to you, I suppose, dear. But the fact remains that it was said—and maidens have been known to show some interest in the statement heretofore."

Quite suddenly there was no place upon which to rest her eyes, and she was thankful for the black of the night that entolded him. He had said that first time. He had said that he loved her. Her heart thudded once, with a queer resounding beat, as if it had been lifted and then dropped slightly.

Is Some Doubt About Success Byrd's Flight?

Berlin, June 10.—Chamberlin is a little doubtful as to the probable success of Commander Byrd's proposed non-stop flight to Paris and return, with a very brief stop in the French capital.

"I wish Byrd every possible success," said Chamberlin this afternoon, "but I doubt whether it could be done."

UNEASY SLEEP

"Nerves Were All to Pieces," Says Lady Who Tells How Cardui Helped Her When She Was Run-Down.

Hopkins, S. C.—Mrs. G. W. Arrants, of this place, says:

"I was suffering from spells of weakness. These would come on me suddenly and I would have to give up and go to bed. For several months I did not sleep well at night and got no rest from sleep. I was very nervous. I could not bear the least noise. The children worried me. My nerves were all to pieces."

"I had taken Cardui several times before, so I sent at once for some and began to take it again. At the end of a short time I felt much better, so I kept right on taking Cardui. When I would feel a nervous spell coming on, I took it more frequently for a few days."

"I can certainly say Cardui helped me wonderfully, for after a time the nervousness disappeared entirely. I could sleep at night and my general health was better. My appetite picked up and I enjoyed my meals, too."

Thousands of other women have told of the benefits they have received from the use of Cardui. Keep it on hand, to take when needed.

A medicine of long-established merit; mild, harmless.
