NO. 141

Body Of Mrs. Harvell Exhumed For Autopsy; Son Is Still In Jail

Autopsy Ordered by Solicitor Zeb V. Long for Purpose of Determining if She Met Foul Play.

NO WARRANT IS ISSUED FOR SON

It Still Being Held as Escaped Convict From Virginia.—Wife Says She Knows He Is Not Guilty.

The body of Mrs. Mary Harvell, which was found hanging in a woodshed near her home on North Church Friday morning of last week, was exhumed from Union cemetery this afternoon for an autopsy ordered by Zeb V. Long, solicitor of the 15th district.

The autopsy was directed this morning by Solicitor Long, who communicated with Sheriff R. V. Caldwell, Jr., and the sheriff authorized Dr. Joe A. Hartsell, county coroner, and Dr. P. R. MacFadyen, surgeon at the Concord Hospital, to make the autopsy.

When questioned about the autopsy Sheriff Caldwell stated that it had been ordered for the purpose of determining whether Mrs. Harvell had met with foul play.

That is all Sheriff Caldwell would say about the matter but it is generally understood that the autopsy is a result of rumors that Mrs. Harvell might have been poisoned or otherwise mistreated before she committed suicide by hanging.

Dr. Hartsell stated that he planned to have the body removed early this afternoon and hoped to begin the autopsy not later than 3 o'clock at Wilson's Funeral Home. It is expected that the results will not be determined for several hours.

Sheriff Caldwell stated this morning that no warrant had been issued here charging Roy Harvell, escaped convict, with complicity in the death of his mother. Harvell was arrested Friday near Norwood and is being held here as an escaped prisoner. Sheriff Caldwell emphasized. He admitted to local officers that he escaped from the Virginia State Prison after serving about 8 years of a 15-year sentence for house breaking.

It is understood, however, that while Harvell is in the local jail officers are trying to run down rather persistent rumors that his mother met with foul play. His future status, so far as local officers are concerned, may be determined by the autopsy.

Harvell first came to the attention of local officers several days ago when he sought to settle his mother's estate. He qualified as administrator of the estate first in Stanly county and later in Cabarrus county, and it is said that he sought to obtain certain money which his mother had deposited in local banks. This phase of this situation is said to have led to rumors that he was wanted in Virginia, and investigation brought the information that resulted in his arrest as an escaped convict.

Wife Sees Him in Jail.

Harvell's wife, who met and married him under the name of Roy Carvell, visited him in the Cabarrus jail today and a scene bordering on one of sadness was presented to a Cabarrus officer and a reporter of The Tribune who were in the jail at the time.

"Hello, Roy," his wife said as she entered the room where Harvell was behind the bars.

"Hello, Oradell," he replied.

Husband and wife then talked for a moment about their child, about a year of age, who was in the mother's arms. The wife raised the child up to Harvell and he held the babe in his arms for a moment. His arms were sticking through the bars.

"I understand that they are going to take up the body of my mother," she said, "and I am very anxious to see it. That's what I heard too."

"I know though that you didn't have anything to do with that though," she told him. "I don't know anything about the Virginia matter but I do know that you didn't have anything to do with your mother's death."

Mrs. Mary Harvell had threatened to kill herself several times, and had mentioned how easy it would be to commit suicide. Roy's wife told him, "Mother threatened to kill herself during the week before the body was found. The night before she was found dead she mentioned someone in Concord that had committed suicide," the woman said.

"I know that I am clear of that," Roy repeated and his wife said that she knew that he did not leave their room the night before the body was found.

Harvell, when seen in the jail this morning, had on a watch fob with the letters R. C. on them. His wife said that she had known him always as Carvell. "I stayed in the house with his mother for some time and she never did tell me that his name was not Carvell," the woman stated.

PREPARING NOW TO ADVERTISE BIG PARK

National Publicity Campaign For Smoky Mountain Park Will Start Soon.

Tribune Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

BY J. C. BASKERVILL.

Raleigh, June 25.—The Great Smoky Mountain National Park is at least a half century becoming a reality that has yet been, and within a few weeks it is expected that a national publicity campaign will be launched, with the Department of the Interior assisting, to arouse public interest in the project.

In conjunction with this campaign, an effort will be made to secure some $5,000,000 in private subscriptions, to be expended in purchasing additional land for the park.

This was announced here by Mark Squires, chairman of the State Park Commission, and author of the bill enacted by the last general assembly in which the state authorized a bond issue of $2,000,000 to be expended in securing land for the park.

The survey of the 428,000 acres of land which the National Park Service has fixed as the amount of land which must be obtained for the park has just been completed by the National Park Service, and his final report to the Secretary of the Interior is expected to be delivered either today or Monday, Mr. Squires said.

This survey has been going on for more than a month, in both Tennessee and North Carolina, and 214,000 acres in each state have been designated as acceptable to the National Park Service. Now that these specific tracts have been set aside, it will be possible for the park commission in both states to go ahead with the work of acquiring tracts which they now have the assurance will be accepted by the Government.

The North Carolina Park Commission is expected to start getting options or buying tracts outright, as soon as this report has been made public.

Another purpose of the survey was to exclude from the park those areas which are known to contain copper and other ores, so that they might be developed commercially.

There are a number of these deposits in Jackson county, which have been excluded, as well as some extensive Balm areas in Haywood county.

Within the next two weeks, or as soon as this report on the survey of the park area has been made public, it is expected that a meeting of the board of directors of the Appalachian National Park Association, Inc., will be called, and that the nationwide campaign for funds for the Great Smoky Mountains park, as well as the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia, will be outlined.

The North Carolina Park Commission, Knoxville, for Tennessee; Mark Squires, Lenoir, for North Carolina; J. H. Smith, Petersburg, and H. J. Benscholl, Woodstock, for Virginia, with Major W. A. Welch, director of the state parks in New York, as chairman.

Mr. Squires had just been in Asheville for a conference with Major Welch, and declared that Major Welch was certain that the $5,000,000 needed could be easily raised, and that he was enthusiastic over the prospects.

"All of which comes as welcome news to many people over the state who have felt that very little has been done about the Smoky Mountains National Park since the general assembly passed the bill authorizing the bond issue. Many also now realize that the park as a reality is still along way off, and that the general assembly did well to safeguard the expenditure of the $2,000,000, so that none of it can be spent until the Government actually takes over the park area to maintain it."

COLONEL LINDBERGH LANDS IN NEW YORK

Doesn't Know How Long He Will Be in New York Nor What His Immediate Plans Are.

Colonel Lindbergh landed here at 6:35 p. m. (eastern daylight time) today. He had flown from Washington in two hours.

Lindbergh, who flew in a Curtiss army plane, was escorted by two army aviators also flying Curtiss planes, and a Fokker army transport.

F. Trabee Davidson, assistant secretary of war, and Mrs. MacNider were passengers in the Fokker plane. Colonel Lindbergh left the field a few minutes after he landed for the Davidson home at Locust Valley, Long Island. He will be Mr. Davidson's guest during his stay in New York.

Colonel Lindbergh told newspapermen that he did not know how long he would remain in New York nor was he able to say, to tell any thing about his immediate plans.

BROADUS MILLER IS STILL AT LIBERTY; CONTINUING SEARCH

While Posse Has Ceased Its Hunt in and Near Morganton, County Officers Are Still at Work.

NEW REPORTS ARE RECEIVED

All Such Reports Are Given Attention by Officers.—No Unusual Crowds in Morganton Now.

Morganton, N. C., June 25.—(AP)—Morganton returned to normalcy this morning after nearly a week's mad searching for Broadus Miller, negro clubber of attractive Gladys Kineaid, 15 year old Morganton girl. Although information from the sheriff's office was that the man hunt which has spread into two states, was being continued by officials, no unusual crowds milled around the court house today.

An early morning report from Colletteville, mountainous settlement of Caldwell County that a negro fitting the description of Miller had been seen there, took out a small party of deputies in speeding automobiles and another party was continuing the search around Adako, far back in the mountains of Burke county.

Many members of the sheriff's department believe that the Adako report is the most authentic clue yet received. Yesterday it was the general opinion that Miller was actually in the Hoke's Store settlement, but search in that direction is understood to have been abandoned last night.

BYRD NOT LIKELY TO FLY BEFORE MONDAY

There Is Possibility, However, That Weather Will Be Better by Tomorrow.

New York, June 25.—(AP)—The mid-morning report of the weather bureau today set Monday as the first date when there seemed a likelihood of favorable conditions for the takeoff for France of the monoplane America, but there remained a possibility that the day might be begun tonight or Sunday.

"The region between here and New Foundland, where fog has prevented a takeoff during the past few days," said the weather forecaster, "is rapidly clearing up, but worse conditions are on the way from a storm center over the Lake region."

"It is hardly possible that Commander Byrd will be able to beat this new disturbance. There is a possibility that a takeoff may be possible tonight or Sunday morning, but indications are that the Lake disturbance will swing into the path and bar the flight at least until Monday morning."

MRS. MONTAGUE IS CALM UNDER FIRE; DENIES ANY GUILT

Nurse Being Tried for the Murder of Mrs. Mary R. Cooper Calm Under Severe Cross Examination.

MANY WOMEN IN THE COURT ROOM

Nurse Denies She Had Any Part in Death of Former Employer and Sticks to Story She Told Friday.

Asheville, June 25.—(AP)—The prosecution began a bitter cross examination of Mrs. Anna K. Montague, 45 years old, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Mary R. Cooper, 61, her employer, in an effort to break down the plausible story the accused woman told yesterday afternoon on the witness stand.

Just when the case will go to the jury depends upon to what extent the State carries its cross examination. The defense has a dozen witnesses to offer after Mrs. Montague leaves the stand, but their testimony is expected to be short.

Clad in a modish tan dress, a wide hat, cream colored stockings and black shoes, Mrs. Montague presented a defiant and slightly pathetic figure on the stand. She answered question after question fired at her by the state's attorneys without hesitation in a firm clear voice. She even smiled once or twice.

Probably the greatest crowd of the three days of the trial was present to hear the accused woman's testimony today. Women in the court room outnumbered men two to one. More than 1,000 persons were in the court room and another thousand was outside unable to secure entrance. Many carried their lunch.

Late this morning the State's questioning had failed in any way to shake the positiveness of Mrs. Montague's denial of implication in the killing. The body of Mrs. Cooper was found the morning of May 10th, throat cut and skull fractured, in a vacant lot next to her home. If the State succeeds in its attempt to implicate Mrs. Montague, who spent the night of May 9th in the Cooper home, it will have done so entirely on circumstantial evidence.

State College Student Wins Honors.

Raleigh, June 25.—Honor of a most unusual kind came to the State of North Carolina yesterday when the first and third prizes in a national oratorical contest held in California were won by H. J. Oberholzer and Hardy Ray, respectively, both students of State College, Raleigh.

Mr. Oberholzer, who carried off the first prize of $1500, entered State College last fall, enrolling with the junior class in the School of Agriculture. He is a native of South Africa and came all the way to North Carolina to complete his education at the Raleigh institution.

Credited for his performance as a forensic contestant is due largely to Prof. C. C. Cunningham, head of the Public Speaking work at State College, who early recognized the oratorical possibilities of the South African, although this student came to State College without previous speaking experience and in fact with a limited experience in the use of the English language.

Mr. Ray, who won the third prize of $750, is a native of Raleigh. He began his education at State College taking public speaking under Prof. Cunningham also. He is author of the State College Song "State College Keeps Fighting Along." Later he went to Northwestern University to complete his training. He won his way to the national contest from his institution, after defeating all opponents in the seven states centering around Illinois. Mr. Ray will return to his native city this fall and take up his new duties as instructor in the Department of English at State College.

Has Survey of Women in Industry Really Been Made?

The Tribune Bureau
Sir Walter Hotel
By J. C. BASKERVILL.

Raleigh, June 25.—Has a survey of women in industry really been made by E. F. Carter, secretary of the Child Welfare Commission? Or has he merely tabulated some statistics dealing with certain phases of women employed in industry, insofar as they are governed by existing State laws?

According to Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, commissioner of public welfare and chairman of the Child Welfare Commission, Mr. Carter has not made any independent survey of women employed industrially in the state, that might be called a survey that might be compared in any way to the survey which the women of the state have desired. And hence she stands by her original statement of several days ago that "if there has been a survey of women in industry made, I know nothing about it."

What has stirred up all the excitement is nothing more than the regular biennial report of the Child Welfare Commission, printed and distributed while the general assembly was in session. But this report, covering the activity of the commission from July 1, 1924, to June 30, 1926, is more voluminous than usual and besides detailing the activities of the commission pertaining to children employed in industry also gives some rather detailed information pertaining to women in industry, insofar as they are affected by existing State laws.

The gathering of these statistics and data was authorized by the Child Welfare Commission back in 1923 when Dr. W. S. Rankin was State health officer and a member of the commission. And the data were collected by Mr. Carter as best he could in the course of his regular duties, being published for the first time in the biennial report some months ago.

These facts pertaining to women industrially employed are not set forth in any particular section of the report, but are interwoven through it, as they become pertinent. "The report is an excellent piece of work and of course, as chairman of the Child Welfare Commission, I approved it," said Mrs. Johnson. "But I do not consider it in any sense as presenting anything that might be considered to even approximate a survey such as the commission had in mind last summer."

All that this report contains that might be considered as resembling a survey of women who are employed pertains entirely to the manner in which the laws regulating working conditions of women are being observed by the various industries concerned and the manner in which they are being enforced. And about the only laws along this line are the ones requiring seats for women employed in factories, those governing the number of hours they may work in specific occupations, and those governing sanitary provisions such as separate toilets for the different sexes and the specifications for them. Conditions regarding ventilation, temperature and drinking water are also under the control of the commission. So it is that the report of Mr. Carter deals with these questions, but no others.

Thus while it is admitted by Mrs. Johnson that as far as this report goes it is a good report, she further contends that it is so limited in its scope that it cannot in any sense be considered anything like a thorough survey of the working conditions of women in industry.

"Of course, it is not what the women wanted," said a high State official who has closely followed the controversy over the survey of women. "For they wanted a survey that would go into the homes, the offices, the department stores and every place that women worked and note their physical and mental and even financial conditions and degree of satisfaction, almost even tabulating any plagues or moles that might be found on their bodies, and have the whole presented in one grand, final report. Some even advocated a physical examination of all women employed to determine the percentage of venereal disease among women."

"But such a survey with the funds in hand or contemplated was patently impossible, and from many other considerations utterly impracticable, since any survey that would contemplate the entering of private homes would be very difficult."

"So while the facts and figures gathered by Mr. Carter do not in any sense go as far as many of the women desired, at the same time they give a fairly accurate picture of the most pertinent conditions relating to women who are employed, as any that have yet been collected. So in a sense, it may be considered as a fairly accurate survey of working conditions for women in the state."

So the biennial report of the Child Welfare Commission is or is not a survey of women in industry, depending entirely how one looks at it.

Nashville, Tenn., June 25.—(AP)—Tom Murray, of Chicago, the is at the Nashville Central Hospital, perhaps fatally shot, and Robert Shearon, private detective, is at the same hospital with a bullet wound in the leg, both casualties resulting from a pistol battle on the 8th floor of the Andrew Jackson Hotel this morning at daybreak. Officers said Murray and Slater have admitted complicity in an attempted robbery this morning, and robberies at other hotels in the South.

WAGE INCREASE FOR TRAINMEN IS DENIED

Conductors and Trainmen Will Not Get $1.00 Increase They Sought.

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—A wage increase was denied nearly 65,000 conductors and trainmen on 55 western railroads by a board of arbitration today. The trainmen had asked an average advance of $1.00 a day. Yardmen were granted a 7 1/2 per cent. increase.

In denying an increase to the conductors and trainmen the board held that they are now receiving wages 7 1/2 per cent. greater than the wages paid the same employees on eastern roads, and 6 1/2 per cent. greater than wages paid trainmen and conductors on southeastern roads.

Newton Wins Fight To Get Highway No. 10 Through Town

Raleigh, June 25.—(AP)—On appeal, the town of Newton won its case before the Supreme Court, to have the State Highway Commission construct a hard surface road as soon as possible over the existing southern route between Statesville and Newton on Highway No. 10.

Justice Brogden, writing the reversal, enjoined the Highway Commission for abandoning "the existing road in Catawba county as a permanent link in the state system of highways, to the end that the work done thereon shall be of such character as will lead to ultimate hard surface construction as rapidly as money, labor and material will permit."

Chief Justice Stacey and Justice Adams concurred in part, and dissenting in part with the court's ruling, simultaneously declaring "we agree with the majority that the application for a writ of mandamus was properly denied. We dissent from the order enjoining the defendant (Commission) from abandoning the existing road in Catawba County as a permanent link in the state system of highways."

JAPAN MAY PERPETUAL PEACE PACT TO AMERICA

At Geneva It Is Expected That Such Proposal Will Be Offered by Japanese Delegates at Once.

SEEMS CERTAIN TO BE OFFERED

Any Proposal Along This Line Will Be Given Full and Serious Consideration by the Americans.

Geneva, June 25.—(AP)—Overtures by Japan with a view to the signing of a perpetual peace pact with the United States are expected in authoritative circles of the tri-partite naval conference.

Notwithstanding denials by both the Japanese delegates and Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, that any such suggestions have been made, competent observers persisted in the belief today that when he had assurance that the overtures would have a chance of being favorably considered, Admiral Viscount Saito, the Japanese spokesman, possibly would propose a treaty outlawing war between his country and the United States. As the conference neared the close of its first week's deliberations to harmonize the views of the three participating nations on the best way to bring about a reduction in naval armaments, it appeared that the British were withdrawing somewhat from their desire to reopen questions settled at the Washington conference in 1922, chiefly the matter of further reducing the size of capital ships.

This apparent change came after the American and Japanese delegations notified the British officials that the present conference had no authority to discuss decisions which were part of the Washington pact. Although the two delegations at the request of the British decided to ask Washington and Tokyo whether the conference might re-examine the question of the size of the battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers, it is not expected the governments will deviate from their original programs.

Japan's desire to be allowed to construct as many light craft including submarines, all below 700 tons, as she deems necessary, remains unchanged, despite persistent rumors that her delegation was reconsidering at least the submarine feature of the project.
