The Tariff Discussion.

The McKinley Tariff Bill is being discussed in the U. S. Senate. The Republican policy as first announced was to let the Democrats do all the talking and to rest confident in the strength of party lines to draw in all the discontented and make absolutely null the force of individual conviction. It would perhaps have been wise for the party if this policy had been pursued. Ethically, failure is no crime but in practice, and in politics it is decidedly less humiliating to refrain from trying at all than it is to try and gloriously fail. Senator Hisscock has been leading the Republican renning debate and Senators Vance and Carlisle the Democratic side. Perhaps the hardest pill for the New York leader, and Republicans generally, to swallow is the answer of Secretary Blaine to the "Home and Industry" proposition of the McKinley measure: "How will the McKinley Bill open a new market for a single pound of farm products?" The great disciples of protection struck the cause of agricultural depression in that sentence, and he found it in his protective system—the system to which his magnificent talents have so long been given.

The farmers don't need any class legislation, the sub-treasury bill nor any other measure that might be headed "A bill for the relief of the agricultural classes." What they do need and have a right to demand is fair play. Let some of the outrageous tariff legislation that shuts us up, isolated from the rest of the world, be taken from our statute books; let the farmers have a fair chance to sell their products all over the world; let them not be confined to a market that produces more agricultural supplies than it needs, and the farmers are abundantly able to take care of themselves. They don't ask favors, they demand justice.

The McKinley Bill was framed on the avowed principle that this country should supply itself and use all of its own supplies. Such a principle is life to certain classes of manufacturers, but it is death to agriculture. It gives to the producers of those things that are produced in a comparatively small quantity a fairness that is abnormal, but a fairness that drains the life-blood from those that produce what nature intended us to have a surplus of. From a financial standpoint the McKinley Bill is the most outrageous, even if it is the legitimate outcome of the protective system. The debate that is now in progress is showing the fact, and though it accomplishes nothing now it will be effective before the real jury, the people of the country.

MANY men all over the State have received copies of an anonymous circular letter that has been issued from Raleigh by some opposed to the non-resistance cause. This letter charges a certain man in which Gov. Peale, Judges Clark and Whitner and Col. A. B. Andrews were involved, the result of which was the nomination of Cor. Fawcett and the appointment of Judge Clark and Whitner, all in the interest and at the command of the Richmond and Danville R.R. road company. As almost every man can testify from personal observation there are cases innumerable where men perfectly innocent are charged with the most corrupt acts, and by a skillful, adroit manipulation, the circumstances are made to point towards guilt. This being so it is reasonable how prone we are to believe the worst suggested are the motives that influence and given act. Judge Maynes, in a spirit of civility that is as commendable as it is rare, has withdrawn from the contest for Associate Justice. He is unwilling to be helped by slanderous charges against good men.

THE DEATH OF F. F. FRED, N. S. SUNDWICK, Esq., which occurred last Wednesday at his home near Hillsboro, is very much deplored throughout this section. For eight years he was Solicitor of the Judicial District and his great efforts at the bar have made for him a reputation second to that of no lawyer in the district. If eloquence be the power of moving and influencing men Mr. Sundwick was the greatest orator we ever heard. His appearance—his voice—his motions were of importance and to his fine intellectual gifts, and with these gifts combined to make his speeches models of strength and vigor. He was a typical Southern man with a dash of the North and a Southern vivacity. No man ever covered himself of doing a little thing. Big hearted, big brained he impressed every one as a really man. His life was an example to all and it is no small thing that he has left his wife and children well.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1st, 1890.

Another Blaine sensation was sprung on an inoffensive public this week when the statement was positively made that Speaker Reed, Mr. Harrison and other prominent Republicans had entered into a conspiracy to force Mr. Blaine out of public life. It may be said on authority that Mr. Blaine will certainly not resign until the Behring Sea controversy with England is settled.

The Senate began yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. This means that some of the Senators will thunder away in a ruff talk at empty benches for two hours every morning. Talking is contagious. The Republican Senators could hold in no longer so this week they began to answer the tariff speeches recently made by the Democrats. The earliest date yet set for the disposal of the tariff bill is the first of September. Vice-President Morton stood it for a few days, but he has gone again and it is thought that he will not return until the month ends. There are lots of others who would like to follow his example.

If House could kill, Speaker Reed would not live five minutes. He has made up his mind to let no other public holding, or private bills which carry an appropriation shall pass the House if his speech is not he refused to recognize members who wish to bring these bills. This is rough on the members, for nothing so subtle as the speech of a member in his chair as it really to get popular offices for public buildings. The members of the Republican members content themselves with abusing Mr. Reed in private and in letters to their constituents; but Representative Stable, of Iowa, did it in a speech on the floor of the House. He will not be likely to get good committee assignments in the next House should he be re-elected there to and Mr. Reed be again Speaker. The workmen's organizations too are abusing Mr. Reed because he will not give the Labor committee a day.

Merit Wins.

We do not say to our citizens, that if we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits.

Our Distinguished Guests.

Last Thursday evening a special train from Lynchburg brought to our little town quite a distinguished party of gentlemen, who came over on a pleasure trip and to visit Barnett pond and enjoy the fishing. It was probably the most distinguished party ever in Roxboro. The following gentlemen composed the party: Hon. John E. Massey, Hon. Marshal Hague, Hon. S. Houston Litcher, Col. Cary Breckenridge, Col. Peter Heald, Col. Jesse Elliott, Gen. Jas. McDonald, Gen. Scott Shipp, Col. Thomas Simms, Col. W. T. Poague, Dr. Geo. Ross, Col. J. M. Love, Editor A. McDonald, President P. J. Oney, and Capt. W. N. Mitchell. The party spent the night in Roxboro and early Friday morning went out to Barnett pond, where they spent the day very pleasantly fishing, boating, etc. In the afternoon they returned to Roxboro and immediately took the train for Lynchburg. We learn that the entire party were delighted with their trip.

"Just as Good."

Say some dealers who try to sell a substitute preparation when a customer calls for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Do not allow any such false statements as this induce you to buy what you do not want. Remember that the only reason for making it is that a few cents more profit will be made on the substitute. Insist upon having the best medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is Peculiar to Hood's.

AUGUST 20th, 1890
AT AUCTION.

These Lots are conveniently and beautifully located, and streets have been laid off and nicely graded, giving sidewalks to each lot. Roxboro is the County-seat of Person county, situated in a beautiful and lovely

One of the finest Tobacco Sections in North Carolina,

And midway between Durham and South Boston, on the Lynchburg & Durham Railroad, where the projected road from Greensboro to connect with the Atlantic & Danville crosses. Roxboro has a population of four or five hundred, 7 stores, and others being erected, 2 drug stores, 2 millinery stores, 2 carriage factories, 1 harness and saddle factory, 3 repairing shops, 1 flooring mill, 1 saw mill, 2 tobacco factories already built, and the Farmers' Alliance are making arrangements to build a very large tobacco factory, 1 large brick warehouse for the sale of leaf tobacco is nearing completion, and others to be built, and several prize houses will be erected in time for handling the 1890 crop. We do not claim that Roxboro will be a magic city, but do believe that it will grow and increase far beyond many places that have formed large land and improvement companies, and are being boomed as the coming cities of the nation, where land is being sold at fancy prices. In fact, Roxboro has the foundation upon which to build a superior to many of these places.

OWING TO THE ADVANTAGES OF THE LOCATION,

Remember, these lots have not been sold to stock companies at high prices, so you will have the chance of becoming the original purchaser and get in on the ground floor.

This is a Fine Opportunity for an Investment. No Danger of a Relapse.
