OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

WHAT THE PRESS OF OUR STATE HAS TO SAY ABOUT MEN AND MEASURES.

As it Appears to Our Brethren of the Quill in North Carolina—On Political and other Questions.

President Cleveland said in his call for the extraordinary session of the Congress that the only "menace to the country's welfare" was the financial condition.

The limit of effrontery is reached when the Third party lodges about over the State go to passing resolutions telling Democratic Congressmen what to do about the Sherman bill.

Mr. J. C. Logan Harris says there is talk of again starting the Signal, and as a Republican Republican-Populist paper.

The Clinton Caucasian refers to the Star as an "organ of monopoly." If the Star were to express its candid opinion of the Caucasian it might refer to it as the organ of a "softheaded son of toil."

Sockless Jerry is every day becoming more of a crank, and is full of political predictions. We wish that he and Mrs. Lease, and a few score more of similar cranks, had "some sweet little isle of their own."

Some people are hard to please, and indeed they are determined not to be pleased. This seems to be the case with the Third party leaders towards President Cleveland.

The Washington Post, with praiseworthy enterprise and public spirit, has succeeded in raising a fund of many thousand dollars for the relief of the suffering families of the victims of the Ford Theatre disaster.

A MOGOLLON BEAR HUNT.

Jo Parr, one of the most noted hunters in New Mexico, lives in the Mogollon mountains, but owing to the severity of the climate in that country he came down into the valley of the Rio Grande to spend last winter at San Marcial.

"Well, I rigged up, got my dogs together—seven of them, and good ones, too—and we started for his place, reaching it about ten o'clock."

"On visiting the place the next morning the tracks could be seen quite plainly, although they were evidently a couple of days old."

"The trail led up a high, rocky point of the hills, making it all we could do to keep near old Dan. When we had traveled, as I judged, about eight or ten miles, I saw the dog suddenly stop on a little rocky point, and lifting his head sniff the air for a long time."

"The other dogs were on the spot at once, sending up to us a mingled chorus of yells and howls. There were many tall pines there, and, supposing they had run him up one of these, we rushed down with a great clatter, Briggs, the fellow who was with me, giving a yell to the dogs just as I came out into the open near them."

"For the dogs to stop him on the slope was impossible. We reached the edge just as they gained the bottom: Brain seemed to recover his wits first and bolted off down the canyon at his curious shuffling trot, with the dogs at his heels."

was a sheer fall of seventy or eighty feet, broken only by a narrow ledge about one-third of the way down.

"Hotly pressed by the whole pack and with old Dan hanging to his haunches, the bear came to this slope above the fall, slippery as glass with the water. He stooped or a second only, and down he started, with two hounds and a big dog named Boxer to keep him company."

"We had now climbed down and around until we faced the fall, and there, whimpering on the narrow ledge about thirty feet from the top, was the other hound crouching against the bluff wall. Boxer lay at the foot of the fall as dead as Julius Caesar. He had struck against a jagged rock and had been killed instantly."

"It was a hard climb among huge rocks and thick brush, but at last we got up to the high point where, among the heavy pines and bowlders as large as houses, the dogs had driven him into a rocky corner. One shot in the throat from my Winchester brought him down. He was the largest black bear I had ever seen and in good condition."

"How to get him out was a question that puzzled us, as the nearest we could bring the horses to him was a point more than half a mile away. The others having come by this time, we dragged him out, put him in a big wool sack that we had brought along, dragged him to a place where the spruce sloped steeply off and stated him to rolling, getting him to a point where we could bring the horses without much trouble."

"The wide tires for wagons, in common use in France, are coming into favor in this country. One of the New England States not long ago passed a law requiring the use of the wide tire, the law to take effect in 1895, to give ample time to make the desired changes in the construction of wheels."

"That depends upon the Liver. If the Liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirit is depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general despondency and the blues. The Liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like Nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons' Liver Regulator a medical perfection."

Tobacco Ruined in Connecticut. HARTFORD, Conn., July 19.—A cyclone storm, accompanied with hail, which passed over this city last evening, made terrible havoc with the tobacco crop in the town of East Hartford, the largest tobacco growing district in the Connecticut valley.

The Father Applied the Lash. RICHMOND, Va., July 19.—A special from Coburn, Wise county, Virginia, says that A. M. Rodgers, a drummer representing Messrs. Henderson & Co., boot and shoe merchants of Chicago, was beaten unmercifully by a mob of twenty-five citizens a few days ago for an alleged assault upon the eleven-year-old daughter of the Depot Agent Utter, at that place.

Wide Tires For Road Wagons. The wide tire on wagons, in common use in France, are coming into favor in this country.
