

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

To THE EDITOR:—In the Sundays issue of the News and Observer, I notice the following which is to my mind very common stuff and a slander on all ex confederate soldiers. "The Democratic candidate for the House, in opening the joint canvass in Richlands last Friday, July 20th referred to the well known fact that thousands of the best citizens of North Carolina were not allowed to vote in 1868, while all the negroes were marched to the ballot box. In reply to this Mr. Isbell the Republican candidate for the House, said that this was because they were confederate soldiers, who had forfeited not only their right to vote, but their loves also, because they were guilty of treason and perjury. He argued that they ought to have been deprived of their vote and intimated that they were not hung as traitors."

This gentleman must be a Northern man, for surely no true Southern white man could have said such as this of the old veterans.

Were the negro the property of the Southern white men as much so as their horses, mules, cattle, etc? Then why not they fight for their property upon which they had been paying taxes? Probably Isbell don't know that they paid taxes on them. Would he call it treason for a man to fight for his horse? Surely not, but it is the same thing. He just makes such accusations knowing that a drowning man will grab at a straw, and that is what the Republican party is doing now catching at every little thing that passes by, that they have any idea they can find a little flaw to mislead somebody and get them to vote the Black and Tan ticket, but the more they try to mislead, the poorer luck they have and the more votes we get to support the White Man's ticket.

Why does this Mr. Isbell call them traitors. It is because the Southern States broke off from the Northern States? Did they not have a right to do so when they thought they were being imposed upon by their Northern brethren? It looks this way to me. Why don't he call the negro traitors? They done worse than the white men did, because they fought against their own interest, against the man from whom they were getting their food and raiment. Such talk as this should not be tolerated by the honest white man-hood of the State, and should be given the lie whenever and wherever spoken.

It is only a few days now until the election and we should roll up such a large majority for the Amendment that it forever hury the negro question and stop such incendiary and scandalous speeches being made about and against the white men and women of the State. Come white men let's give her a big majority in Person, and see if we cannot compete with any of the other counties according to population. Go to the polls on election day early and stay late and work while you are there. Let's carry the State and forever put an end to Black Supremacy.
